Sick, Sicker, Better War? No. Ready? Yes Shaming Dime Novels Giants Unknown

—By Arthur Brisbane—

LAST SATURDAY Wall Street was sick. Yesterday morning it was sicker. Yesterday afternoon it brightened up. Prices rose.

This time it is Harvard's turn, through its "Economic Society," to predict "the period of uncertainty will not be prolonged."

The lambs will pray that this will not be the prelude to another drop.

Brokers who know enough to gather in commissions without gambling could sing yesterday, "Happy Days Are Here Again."

Total sales of stocks, 8,270,000 shares, the biggest day since the great wind of 16,000,000 and 16,000,000 and 12,000,000 share days. At the last moment, bears, trapped, lost heavily.

That's small comfort for little lambs that had gone home from Wall Street leaving their "bank rolls behind them."

James L. Garvin, thoughtful Britisher, says:

"Fear is the greatest bar to peace."

Fear causes war sometimes. A white rat will bite when frightened.

But it wasn't fear that sent Napoleon on his way to Russia, or Genghis Khan eastward or Attila into France.

We have war because we are still animals, savages, barbarians, only 12,000 years from the late Stone Age.

Any country as rich and tempting as this, if it has any intelligence, will abstain from war, but KEEP READY FOR IT.

There is a great deal of action in modern killings, now so frequent it seems hardly worth writing about them.

Near Chicago, Chief Mitchell of the La Grange police, sitting with two other policemen, in a lonely spot, wondered why a machine ahead stopped and put out its lights.

Investigating, he saw a man, hands and feet tied, sitting against a tree, begging:

"Give me a break!" The reply was: "I'll break your head," as one of the three struck the victim over the head with a pistol butt.

There was a rope around the man's neck, thrown over the limb of a tree. It was to be a hanging, following "a ride."

The three policemen, with three flashlights, yelled: "Get your hands up!" And, having the drop, were obeyed.

Two of the intended murderers had been in jail and were paroled. There is too much paroling.

The victim, Holmes, a woodcarver, had met a woman belonging to one of the gang, wanted to marry her and "make an honest woman of her."

The gang decided to make corpses of both.

If you saw that in a dime novel, you'd say: "Impossible, nonsense."

You may have seen the statue of Lavoisier, behind the Madeleine near the Flower Market in Paris. France will give the statue a thorough spring cleaning this year, and "Lavoisier" will be more easily read by tourists to whom the name will mean nothing.

He was one of the world's greatest physicists and chemists, an able astronomer and a really great philosopher.

The French revolution chopped off his head, because he was faithful to his king, Louis Sixteenth. The French republic honors him now, and so it goes.

Great men that have built up science, civilization and knowledge are as little known as the great trees that fell in the forests ages ago.

Yesterday, on the little island of Elba, off the Italian coast, a small group celebrated the 109th anniversary of Napoleon's death at St. Helena, prisoner of the British.

Elba, Napoleon's first island prison, remembered his death with solemn high mass, and distribution of bread to the poor, using money supplied by Prince Demidoff in his will.

The word "Enough" did not exist in Napoleon's vocabulary. He intended to use France as a base, as Alexander had used Macedonia, and establish his real empire in Asia as Alexander had done. Quite seriously he planned his future as a convert to Islam riding around on an elephant.

It is wise to have that word ENOUGH conspicuous in your mind.

Some Wall Street mourners know that.

Stocks Make Gains of $3 to $39 a Share

CASE STOCK LEADS ALL IN RALLY

New Haven Is Strong Among the Rail Issues; Early Selling Is Heavy

New York, May 6—Substantial gains were recorded in today's trading on the New York Stock Exchange. Transactions started at a 7,000,000-share pace with the ticker falling well behind the market, but slowed down later.

Case Threshing added $39 a share, Ingersoll Rand $15 and American Power & Light $10.75. People's Gas jumped over $15. American Tobacco "B" was up $17.

Allied Chemical advanced $15, and Worthington Pump and Jewel Tea $7 or more.

NEW HAVEN STRONG

New Haven was a strong spot in the rail group, rising $5.50 a share.

The market opened with a burst of strength, see-sawed around noon, then resumed its advance after spotty profit-taking had been absorbed.

While higher prices marked initial dealings, the furious rush to buy which has marked the end of recent sharp breaks was absent.

Renewed selling appeared in the copper group as a result of the new cut in red metal prices, with Anaconda setting a new low, off over a point.

COMMODITIES FIRM

The commodity markets were firm. Wheat was up over a cent a bushel. Cotton added a few points. This helped to restore confidence.

Money was in good supply at 3½ per cent. Industrial reports were fairly good.

Prices on the big curb followed the trend established in the major market, and gains of $2 to $5 a share were fairly numerous in the afternoon.

Utilities and oils were leaders in the advance. Investment trust shares showed notable firmness.

American Scores 'Scoop'

Readers of the Boston Evening American received the news of the ousting of Police Commissioner Wilson Monday, an hour and a half in advance of readers of other newspapers.

This notable "scoop" by the American was one more demonstration of this newspaper's policy of giving the people of Boston and of New England THE BIG NEWS FIRST, and printing the news, not only first, but accurately.

In the same edition which announced the ousting of Wilson was carried the complete Boston stock market and the New York stock quotations up to 2:30 p. m. Yesterday's stock market was one of the most dramatic in many months and thousands of persons were able to obtain news as to the standing of their stock investments only through the several editions issued by The American.

People going home before 5:15 p. m. had no other news of the Wilson discharge or of the stock market prices than that they received through the speed and efficiency of the American news gathering forces.

1000 KILLED IN QUAKE, WAVE

Rangoon, Burma, May 6—At least 1000 persons were reported killed in a terrific earthquake which shook the town of Pegu last night, shattering many buildings into ruins.

A tidal wave followed the shocks. The city is in ruins.

The municipal building, the banks and the government school at Pegu were virtually in ruins and many other buildings were badly damaged.

The market was burned out and the whole town presents a spectacle of ruin.

The roof of the famous Shwe-Maw-Daw Pagoda, an ancient structure 324 feet high, was damaged.

Of public buildings, the police commissioner's office and the secretariat were badly damaged and had to be closed.

U. S. BAN ON ALL SALES OF HOME BREW KITS

Will Get After the Big Dealers First, Says Doran in Issuing Orders

Washington, May 6 (AP)—The government moved today to suppress all sale of paraphernalia for liquor manufacture.

The drive is being undertaken under the Supreme Court decision yesterday that distribution of such equipment was illegal under the Volstead Law.

Prohibition Commissioner Doran announced the step following the action of the Supreme Court in upholding the seizure of bottles, casks and corks in Pittsburgh—on the ground that they had been displayed to attract purchasers who intended to use them in manufacture of illicit liquor—and the bureau an effective weapon to proceed against every agency concerned producing such articles.

After the big dealers are "wiped out," Doran said, the bureau would then clean up the "fine."

"Our first job is to proceed against the big supply houses of paraphernalia for commercial home brew and for aging moonshine liquor," Doran said.

"We will proceed against every person and concern where the conditions are similar to the Pittsburgh case which was upheld by the Supreme Court yesterday."

Byrd Will Arrive at Balboa on May 13

Panama City, May 6 (AP)—A radiogram from Rear Admiral Byrd today to Admiral Blakely, commandant of the 15th naval district, announced that the explorer expected to arrive at Balboa, Canal Zone, May 13, aboard the steamship Rangitike from New Zealand.

The explorer requested cancellation of all entertainment planned in his honor since he desires a period of quiet after his arrival to straighten out the expedition's affairs.

N. England Pilgrims Arrive in Tunis

Tunis, Algeria, May 6 (INS)—New England's contingent of 100 priests and 200 pilgrims to the Eucharistic Congress at Carthage arrived here today on board the French liner Rochambeau.

Cardinal Lepicier, designated as Papal legate to the Congress, was expected this afternoon on the especially chartered City of Naples, first vessel to fly the Papal flag since re-establishment of the Vatican state.

MERCURY HITS 89 MARK

All heat records for May 6 were scattered today when the mercury soared to 89 degrees at 2 p. m.

The hot breath of summer caused an exodus of fortunate persons from the city to beaches.

Back in 1918, the previous heat record of 88 degrees for May 6 was hung up, but an early hour today it was evident that, if the wind continued from the west, that mark would be shattered.

To reach the 89 mark, the mercury climbed 30 degrees from the day's minimum of 59 at 4 a. m. Yesterday at 2 p. m. it was only 37 degrees.

Long before noon the sands of beaches in and near Boston began to show effects of the heat wave,

SAY MARSHALL DECLINED JOB

Andrew Marshall, former assistant attorney-general and former Boston Elevated trustee, is reported to have declined the Boston police commissionership.

That he had been offered the post was indicated today by his second conference with Governor Allen following the order for removal of Herbert A. Wilson yesterday afternoon.

After meeting the governor today he admitted that his call had not been in behalf of a client but said he wished any statement made to come from Governor Allen.

COULDN'T AFFORD IT

Yesterday, following Marshall's visit, Governor Allen smilingly admitted he would have offered the commissionership to Marshall if he thought he would accept.

Today Governor Allen admitted having discussed the commissionership with Marshall.

"I am experiencing difficulty in finding the right man for the position," he said.

Asked if he had tendered the post to Marshall, he said:

"I don't make a practice of offering any position to any man unless I know he will accept.' Asked if he hoped to name the

2 GOVERNORS SCORED FOR LAXITY IN EXPOSE

Birmingham Bolts as Committee Votes Secrecy on Warner Report; "Gags" Wilson

The "Garrett case" back-fired today with a concussion that jarred the State House and Republican leaders of the Legislature.

Bolting the joint rules committee's private session at which Atty.-Gen. Warner's report of the Garrett investigation was considered, Representative Leo M. Birmingham, Democrat and minority leader of the House, accused Governor Allen of having attempted to stifle the Garrett investigation before it was underway.

He charged that both Governor Allen and former Governor Fuller had been lax with relation to charges made against Garrett and declared this alleged laxity may have been responsible for conditions in the Boston police department.

The joint rules committee of 16 Republicans and four Democrats met in private session and voted to hold no public hearings on the Garrett findings. The Brighton Representative bolted, as he had threatened to do if the meeting was not made public.

He referred to the now famous "re-examination meeting" held last anuary in Governor Allen's office with Comm. Wilson, Senator Gaspar G. Bacon and Asstt. Atty.-Gen. Roger Clapp present to discuss the possible re-examination of Oliver B Garrett at a time when the Legislature was considering the resolve for the Garrett probe.

"MOVE TO STIFLE"

At the meeting, which was disclosed during public hearings while Wilson was giving defense testimony, Governor Allen was said to have suggested the re-examination of Garrett.

"I feel that the opinion asked for on the re-examination question was a move to stifle an investigation of which my colleagues and I were heartily in favor," Rep. Birmingham declared.

"Of the Republicans on the rules committee, only two voted in favor of the original investigation of Garrett," he continued. "The four Democrats on the committee voted for the investigation.

"An assistant attorney-general rendered an opinion to the effect that if a man were examined on December 31, 1929, for pension he could be re-examined on January 31, 1930, with a lapse of but a few hours.

"I maintain that no court in the State would sustain such an opinion.

"The governor requested the opinion from the assistant attorney-general on this question. I feel that the opinion asked was a move to stifle an investigation of which my colleagues and I were heartily in favor.

"I feel that former Governor Fuller and the present governor were in the same position as Mr. Wilson was in respect to Capt. Patterson.

"THEY BOTH KNEW"

"By that I mean that both Fuller and Allen must have known from information given them by the state police that something was wrong in the police department.

The time to act for them was when they were in possession of the information. Their laxness may have been responsible to a great extent for conditions existing in the police department.

"I said that if they didn't have open hearings, I'd come out. They haven't had and I have come out."

"I can't stress too strongly that I am not attempting to defend Wilson, but I understand on good authority he would have come before the committee as a private citizen and talked on House 1335 (the Garrett report.)

BLAMES G. O. P.

"I believe that every citizen, no matter who he is, should be given opportunity of free speech before any legislative committee. I believe if the hearing was open, Wilson would have come up."

While he did not so state, Birmingham inferred that the action of the rules committee in ignoring Wilson's statement that he would appear was due to the influence of Republican leaders who did not want to hear any more about the "re-examination meeting."

About 15 minutes after Birmingham had bolted, the rules committee ended its session. President Caspar G. Bacon of the Senate and Speaker Leverett Saltonstall of the House gave out the following statement:

"The committees on rules, acting concurrently, have voted by majority vote to hold no public hearings on the report of the attorney-general on the Garrett investigation as a whole.

"The matters suggested by the attorney-general therein as being capable of legislation consideration have not yet been considered and the committees have reached no conclusion as to hearings so as to legislation with respect to such suggestions.

"If the committees conclude at a later date that some legislation may be necessary, public hearings on such proposed legislation will, of course, be held. The committees adjourned subject to the usual call of the presiding officers."

MAY TELL CHARGES

By the rules committee's action, Wilson, removed from office yesterday because of ineffectiveness in the Garrett case, was "frozen out" of a chance to defend himself against those sections of Warner's report which he has characterized as false.

He was understood to be at his home and there was a possibility, in view of the circumstances, that he would issue a public statement to the press containing the charges he was reported to be drafting for presentation to the legislative body.

Birmingham's bolt and his attack upon Allen and Fuller was seen as the first move of Massachusetts Democrats to seize upon conditions exposed in the Garrett inquiry for their own party advantage, the alleged fraud and corruption found by the attorney-general having taken place under a police commissioner appointed by one Republican Governor and reappointed by another.

DOOMS HOME RULE

State House observers pointed out that the rules committee is almost bound to report at least one bill as a result of the Warner report, either in regarding to the law or pensions or regarding higher salary for the police commissioner.

With only three Democrats on the House committee and but one on the Senate committee there appeared the likelihood that no order giving Boston home rule in the matter of chosing its own police head would be born in committee.

Birmingham, of course, favors such a move as no Senator Robert Bigney and Rep. Jeremiah J. Healy. The committee, however, are overwhelmingly Republican.

The big battle for new legislation giving the mayor the power to name the commissioner will probably be staged on the floor of the House after rules committee has reported whatever bills may result from Warner's findings.

In that battle, it is expected, the Democrats will seize upon the opportunity to make their charges with relation to the alleged Republican inefficiency and possibly at that time, Wilson will be asked to appear to give his version of conditions.

A copy of his order removing Wilson as commissioner was sent by Governor Allen today to Superintendent Michael H. Crowley, acting commissioner. It will be read at roll call tonight at all division stations. State Detective Frank Hale delivered it to Crowley with two words:

"I'm sorry."

Meanwhile, District Attorney William J. Foley and his assistants have about completed their study of the Garrett evidence and probably on Thursday will begin placing it before the Suffolk County grand jury. John F. Sullivan, the prosecutions' star witness, was confined to bed at the Danvers asylum. There appears to be little possibility that the former Hotel Ritz proprietor who accused Garrett and others of graft will be able to appear before the jury.

An alienist may be appointed by the State to examine him.

WESTON, DOVER SHOW GAINS IN CENSUS

Stoughton, Falmouth and Tisbury, Besides Portland, Me., Increase

Population gains in the towns of Weston, Dover and Plainville in the past 10 years, were revealed today by Joseph J. Murray, supervisor of the ninth census district.

The figures were: Weston, 1930—3327, as compared with 2282 in 1920; Dover, 1930—1190, 1920—867, and Plainville, 1930—1538, 1920—1385.

There were 48 farms in Weston, 61 in Dover and 43 in Plainville.

Figures given out at Brockton today give the town of Stoughton an increase of 1327 over 1920, for a total of 8192. Stoughton farms have increased from 47 to 63.

Census figures for Falmouth are 4195, gain of 695, or 19.86 per cent, and those for Tisbury, 1541, gain of 266, or 20.66 per cent.

Providence, R. I., May 6 (AP)—The town of Gloucester has a population of 1691, compared with 1388 in 1920.

FAHEY OPPOSES PLAN FOR GAS MERGER

Companies Bought Up at Excessive Prices, He Tells the State Board

Emphatic opposition to proposed merger of the West Boston Gas Company and the Dedham and Hyde Park Gas and Electric Company with the Worcester Gas Company was voiced today before the public utility commission by John H. Fahey, of the Public Franchise League and by Atty. La Rue Brown.

Fahey said the New England Gas and Electric Association, which controls the three has bought a large number of companies "at very excessive prices" and contends for a return on its investment on the reproduction theory.

He charged there are $1,785,000 in notes outstanding and more than $2,000,00 of accounts payable outstanding which will be used in the future in an attempt to raise rates to customers.

Robert G. Dodge, attorney for the Worcester company, said it is proposed to issue $2,000,000 preferred stock for the West Boston and Dedham companies' common stock and that the total capitalization would be $4,500,000.

commissioner tomorrow, he said: "Oh, yes. I hope to."

This was taken to mean that the governor had offered the job indirectly, that Marshall was given the right to "sleep on the offer" and that today he indirectly refused.

He was quoted as having told a friend at the State House that he could not afford to accept the position, which pays $8000 a year.

Marshall is a prominent Republican. He was a classmate at Dartmouth and Harvard of former Governor Channing Cox, whose own brother, Guy Cox, was reported to be a candidate for the post following a call on Governor Allen yesterday.

NOTED GRID STAR

Marshall was an All-American Walter Camp selection for guard in 1905, his second year in that position on the Harvard football team. He later coached Harvard linemen.

He was admitted to the bar in 1910, and from 1907 to 1914 was an assistant attorney-general. In 1924 he was campaign manager for U. S. Senator Frederick H. Gillette, and in 1925 Gov. Fuller appointed him a trustee of the Boston Penitent, a position he resigned in 1927 because of his private practice.

He is a trial lawyer of note with an extensive practice which, according to the report, he could not afford to relinquish by becoming police commissioner.

Registrar George A. Parker, reported all along as the most likely candidate, does not appear to be receiving much consideration.

Among the names said to be before the governor are those of Brig.-Gen. Samuel D. Parker, Charles M. Davenport, Nelson Curtis, Judge Michael J. Murray, Homer Loring, Eugene C. Hultman, Sheriff John A. Keliher, Frederick Curtis, Frederick E. Simmons, Walter A. Gallagher, Rear Admiral Philip A. Andrews, Brig.-Gen. Charles H. Cole, James F. Powers, Malcolm E. Nichols and Dr. Nichols DuVally.

Some of them, admittedly, in the vernacular, "haven't a chance." They are just names that have been rumored in connection with the post.

Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., and Representative Eliot Wadsworth have been quoted as saying they would not accept.

Secretary Hurley was stricken with a digestive ailment during April.

Bar to Propose Revision of U.S. Laws

Washington, May 6 (US—A plan for revision of federal laws governing the sale of liquor and narcotics was discussed here by the executive committee of the American Bar Association, representing virtually every lawyer and jurist in the United States, it was revealed today.

Arrangements were made for the annual meeting in Chicago, August 20-22. At that time it will be proposed that the criminal code and judicial system of the United States be rewritten so that there may be less delay in enforcement of laws governing narcotics and liquor.

Giannini Retires on 60th Birthday

New York, May 6 (INS)—Amadeo Peter Giannini, who, as a boy, sold fruit on the San Francisco waterfront, retired today on his 60th birthday as executive of the billion-dollar banking corporation he founded.

While he is "definitely off the payroll," Giannini will not sever all connection with his enterprises. He will continue on the boards of directors.

WILSON OUSTER NEWS COMES BY PHONE

Secretary Merrick, Who May Resign, Receives Papers From the Governor

By FRANCES C. McLEAN, Boston American Police Headquarters Reporter.

Tempus mutat.

Eight years ago Herbert Alva Wilson, appointed police commissioner for Boston, raised his right hand before the Governor and took oath to fill his term honestly and squarely.

Yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock, Joseph L. Ferrari, now a state detective, but then a mere swaddling patrolman in the ranks of the police commissioner, delivered to Wilson his walking papers from the Governor.

Time does move and work changes! Joseph now is one of the most highly regarded of state detectives and Herbert Alva Wilson is branded an inefficient misfit and is out of a state job.

Word had come through from the State House that Wilson had been voted out of office minutes before the "winged messenger" from the Governor's office reached headquarters with his sealed orders.

ARRIVAL IS FATEFUL

Reporters were just as many minutes before Ferrari at the commissioner's office and desired to know what the then ex-commissioner might have to say.

The door leading into the only occupied office, that of John H. Merrick, Wilson's secretary, opened. Sergt. Delbert Augusta, doorman under many commissioners, strode in and announced the arrival of Ferrari.

Years ago Ferrari's coming would not have caused any form of alarm. This time, however, he seemed to mean something and the doors were thrown open immediately. Reporters were permitted to stay.

The eight years' lapse of time showed its effects. Ferrari was ushered in, carrying in his right hand the official envelope bearing the state seal.

The Ferrari was there under the chief executive's orders and was official. He stepped over the threshold of Merrick's office rather jauntily, reached his desk without tossing down a card or anything and said:

"Hello, John."

GETS A RECEIPT.

Merrick ordinarily resented the "John" part of his name. Men of his department had been educated to approach differently.

"John," spoke Ferrari, "I have this letter for the commissioner. Where is he? My instructions are to deliver this instrument in hand. It is from the Governor's office."

"The commissioner is not here just now," said Merrick. "He is out of town, but I will be in touch with him later. I will accept the letter if it is all the same to you and I will see that he gets it."

"May I use your phone?" asked the plain-clothed man. "I have to talk that over. My instructions were——"

"Hello, give me Haymarket 4600! Governor's office! This is Ferrari; Joe Ferrari.

"Wilson is not here, but his secretary says that he will see that he gets it. Is it all right? He will give me a receipt.

"O. K., I'll take the receipt. You can, of course, see that he gets the envelope."

Secretary Merrick agreed that Wilson would receive the letter, gave Ferrari a paper and then resumed his talk with reporters.

"A NOTE FOR YOU."

A few minutes later the phone rang and it transpired to be Mr. Wilson. It was the man who once was Ferrari's boss.

"What can I see you tonight?" asked Merrick. "I have an envelope from the Governor and I am to give it to you."

The discharged Commissioner seemed not to hear. Merrick repeated his message.

"All right," said Merrick, "then I'll see you there. It is from the Governor's office and Ferrari brought it to me."

"What we want to know," said the press to Merrick, "Do you intend to resign?"

"Well, you can bet on one thing," Merrick said, "I shall not embarrass the new commissioner in any way. I will remain until he comes, because it is my duty and I will offer him my services. If he does not want them, I will go."

Peace That Furies of the Quake Demolished With Toll of Hundreds of Lives

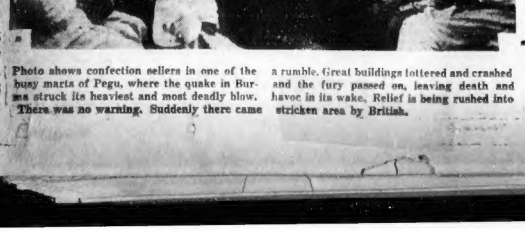

Photo shows confection sellers in one of the busy marts of Pegu, where the quake in Burma struck its heaviest and most deadly blow. There was no warning. Suddenly there came a rumble. Great buildings tottered and crashed and the fury passed on, leaving death and havoc in its wake. Relief is being rushed into stricken area by British.

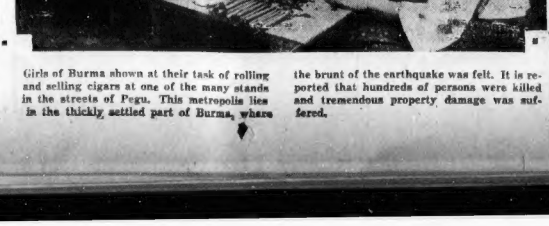

Girls of Burma shown at their task of rolling and selling cigars at one of the many stands in the streets of Pegu. This metropolis lies in the thickly settled part of Burma, where the brunt of the earthquake was felt. It is reported that hundreds of persons were killed and tremendous property damage was suffered.

OLGA EDWARDS ON PROBATION FOR FIVE YEARS IN AMSTER CASE

FREED UNDER SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Promises Judge She'll Be Good and Let Traction Magnate Alone Hereafter

New York, May 6 (INS)—Olga Elde Edwards, California dancing girl, went free today.

Convicted of attempted extortion from Nathan Leo Amster, traction millionaire, the dark-eyed dancer was placed on probation for five years by Judge Rosalsky, noted for his stiff sentences. She thereby escaped a potential penalty of seven years in penitentiary.

Before suspending sentence the judge made Olga promise that she would not exploit her conviction nor "annoy, worry or vex" Amster.

"Do you understand?" asked Judge Rosalsky.

"I understand perfectly," answered Olga, wiping her eyes. "And I promise."

Then she asked:

"Can I go to Europe?"

The Court said he would take that up with the probationary department. He admonished the girl to "change her ways" and lead a virtuous life from now on.

Amster, carrying a cane was called to the witness box during the judicial ceremony of mercy.

Miss Edwards had charged the traction magnate with being the father of her six-year-old son, Lee. She has a civil suit pending asking for the continuance of the $100,000 trust fund once granted to her by Amster.

3 STATES FIGHT BERKSHIRE FIRE

Raging forest fires, already accountable for $20,000,000 in damage, continued to blacken woodland areas of New England today, with little promise of rain to squelch them.

The worst fire reported today was on a 25-mile front in the lower Berkshire Hills range bordering the states of Massachusetts, Connecticut and New York. In its path were the fashionable summer homes of Boston, New York and Philadelphia residents.

On the Massachusetts front the flames were pronounced under control, but the other state fronts saw the efforts of more than 2000 fire-fighters apparently hopeless.

At Hollis, Me., a fire that burned 15 square miles yesterday, broke out afresh today. A fresh blaze sprang up at Sandy Hill close by.

The State Department of Conservation today estimated the burned area so far as more than 40,000 acres in Massachusetts alone.

Nearly every town in Massachusetts has been visited by fire.

Forest Fire Outlook ..etter, Says Bazeley

Commissioner of Conservation William A. L. Bazeley today stated that the gravity of the forest fire situation is not as great as it was yesterday.

The most dangerous fire, he said, is burning on Mt. Everett, in the western part of the state.

GIRL FLIER ON SECOND LEG

Vienna, May 6 (INS)—Amy Johnson, 22, and English, attempting a solo flight and return from London to Australia, was at the Aspern flying field here today preparing to take off on the next leg of her trip.

She landed late yesterday from London. Constantinople is the next stop on her ambitious itinerary of approximately 20,000 miles.

Gang Leader Gets Life in "Ride" Case

New Haven, May 6 (AP)—Orazio Malitez, who ordered a 19-year-old member of his gang of bootleggers and passers of counterfeit money taken "for a ride," today pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree. He was sentenced to life.

Arthur D. Brown, who confessed, police say, that he shot and killed Dominick Zito last November at the command of Malitez, and was paid $15 for the job, will be tried May 20. Both were indicted for murder in the first degree.

Maddened Bull Sends Broadway Into Panic

New York, May 6 (INS)—Broadway traffic at the height of the morning rush hour was thrown into an uproar of panic today as a fear-maddened bull charged south from Thirty-ninth st. The bull had escaped from a slaughtering pen. Mounted and foot policemen, gimlets in hand, pursued him through the traffic. Pedestrians ducked for cover.

Flame-Swept Nashua Bravely Faces Long, Hard Task of Rehabilitation

A few charred bricks and piles of twisted metal are all that remain today of the Crown Hill Baptist church, one of the first buildings to go under the gale of flames that swept Nashua Sunday.

The New Hampshire National Guards, who maintained martial law in the stricken city, made themselves generally useful. Here's trio of soldiers helping Agnes Latvis move some furniture back into her home. (Staff photos.)

The plight of Mrs. Alan Y. Bristoll is one that hundreds of other persons in Nashua are experiencing. Here is Mrs. Bristoll holding her sons, Truman, 3, and Thomas, 18 months old, while piled about her is all the property she was able to salvage. "Jeff," the dog, gave Mrs. Bristoll considerable trouble when he ran back into the burning house.

Noise Driving Americans to Divorce, Says Briggs

Washington, May 6—Many American divorces are caused by noise.

This was the interesting theory expounded to International News Service today by Dr. L. Vernon Briggs of Boston, president of the Massachusetts Psychiatric Society.

Human nerves, due to the babel of sound caused by the workaday world, are whipped raw, he said, and often cause the rift that sends a couple to the divorce courts.

"We will have to stop the noise, else America will go mad," he said.

"With radios, elevated railways, auto horns and riveting machines, it's a wonder all aren't already insane."

Noise has "shell-shocked" the nation and is responsible for many auto accidents, he added.

TWO KILLED IN INDIAN RIOTS

Delhi, India, May 6—Two natives were killed in rioting here today. More than 50 were wounded.

The killings marked the first sustained struggle with the followers of Mahatma Gandhi. Police fired into a crowd near police headquarters.

Many other serious clashes ushered in the second day of the imprisonment of Gandhi, leader of civil disobedience. Thirty were injured in Jullundhur and 15 in Panchanantala.

Natives from the surrounding country swarmed into Delhi by thousands.

Other vast crowds made their way to the prison where the Mahatma is confined at Yerowda, near Poona.

A complete cessation of business accompanied the strike of many thousands of Gandhi followers throughout India. Schools and colleges were closed.

Washington, May 6 (US)—Anti-prohibitionists will gather at a banquet here next Friday night to set in motion a unified campaign for modification of the dry laws.

WATSON PLANS PARKER PROBE

Washington, May 6 (Immediate investigation of the charge that federal judgeships were being offered for votes in the Senate for confirmation of Judge John J. Parker to the Supreme Court was demanded in the Senate today by Senator Watson, Republican floor leader.

Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, made the charge in assailing President Hoover's nominee in the Senate yesterday.

Watson's call for an investigation followed announcement by Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, that he would not vote for confirmation unless the Ashhurst assertions were disproved.

Ashhurst told the Senate today he had been misquoted by the official reporters in the debate yesterday as saying that the judgeship offers were being made "with the consent of Judge Parker."

Johnny Risko Takes Bride in Cleveland

Cleveland, May 6—Johnny Risko Cleveland heavyweight boxer, was married yesterday to Margaret Yoder, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myron J. Yoder of Shaker Heights.

The two agree it was "love at first sight." The romance started last September.

Inquisitive Woman Foils Bomb Plot on Cult Temple

Chicago, May 6 (AP)—A woman's inquisitiveness prevented a bombing of the Moorish Temple here.

The woman, passing by, wondered what was in a truck parked behind the temple. She walked into the alley and looked into the truck. Then she ran screaming for a policeman.

In the truck she had found 40 sticks of dynamite. Percussion caps had been attached. The woman's unexpected arrival apparently frightened away the bombers.

The Moorish Temple is headquarters for a negro cult.

TOBEY APPEALS TO ALL N. E. TO AID NASHUA

Emergency Is Too Great for City or State Alone, Says the N. H. Governor

Nashua, N. H., May 6—Governor Charles H. Tobey today issued an appeal to all New England to help reconstruction in Nashua, stricken by fire last Sunday.

His appeal followed a meeting of bankers and other business men at City Hall with Mayor William F. Sullivan.

"The courage of the city of Nashua is superb," Governor Tobey said.

"The emergency, however, is too great for the city and even the State. Our appeal is to all New England for help."

Harry Gregg, chairman of the finance committee of bankers, announced a let down in rules for construction loans to substantial citizens, so as to remove every obstacle in the way of home owners.

"The bankers have agreed that any substantial citizen will not have any trouble in obtaining a loan for the reconstruction of his home," he said.

PAYING INSURANCE.

Insurance companies started issuing checks today, waiving the 45-day law so that reconstruction may start at once.

Electric light and telephone companies started work on their lines to restore service. Men who lived in the burned area and were thrown out of employment were given preference in the hiring.

All refugees who had been housed in public buildings have been placed in private homes.

Search was started today for Mrs. Mary Gurette and her 14-year-old grandson, Armand, both of Williams st., who have not been seen since the fire started.

Fears were felt that both may have perished while attempting to rescue belongings from the flames Sunday afternoon.

One of the most important items on the rehabilitation program will be the reconstruction of the Nashua-Keene Railroad bridge, where the conflagration started.

Boston and Maine Railroad officials announced that work on the new bridge will be started in the near future, and as far as is possible only Nashua residents made jobless by the fire will be employed.

SEEKS BILLION FOR WARSHIPS

Washington, May 6 (AP)—Chairman Britten of the House Naval Committee announced today he would introduce tomorrow a bill for naval war craft costing $1,000,000,000 "necessary to bring the American navy to parity with Great Britain in 10 years."

Britten had conferred with Secretary Adams today on the London naval treaty.

The Illinois representative said he had obtained confidential figures which showed that new construction requirements for the next 10 years would call for 73,500 tons in six-inch gun cruisers, 150,000 tons in new destroyers, 52,700 tons in submarines and 60,000 tons in aircraft carriers.

Adams and the Naval General Board will be requested to report on the program and testify before the naval committee.

Bandits Try to Kill Davila in Rumania

Bucharest, May 6 (INS)—Carol A. Davila, Rumanian minister to the United States, narrowly escaped death today when bandits fired several shots at his auto as he was returning from Prince Bibescu's palace.

Several shots smashed windows of the car. The chauffeur drove on at full speed and no one was injured.

GIVES $65,300 TO BISHOP' TO BEAT SMITH'

Washington, May 6 (AP)—E. C. Jameson, New York capitalist, testified today before the Senate lobby committee that he had made contributions to organizations opposing Alfred E. Smith for President in 1928.

Jameson said he contributed $65,300 to Bishop James Cannon for the anti-Smith forces of Virginia.

He added his total contribution in 1928 was $172,800, of which $93,000 was contributed in Virginia.

PAID BISHOP'S DEBTS.

A letter written by Jameson, which was read by Chairman Caraway, said $17,000 had been used by Cannon and the remainder by the anti-Smith committee of Virginia, of which Cannon was chairman.

Jameson produced a number of checks to Cannon, several of which were made payable to "cash."

Two of the checks, one for $4300 and the other for $3000, were dated after the campaign was over.

Jameson said Cannon was in debt for bills and that this amount was contributed to aid the bishop.

"Where did you get the information the bishop was in debt?" Caraway asked.

"He told me so," James replied, saying the debts were for stationery and printing.

"Did he tell you what the printing bills were for?"

"No. I didn't ask."

Caraway said both the checks were made payable to "cash."

Jameson said he did not know the bishop until during the campaign. He said he met Cannon through "Mr Slemp."

Provincetown Auto Theft First Since '20

Provincetown, May 6—For the first time in ten years an automobile thief operated in this town early today, and as a result a man hunt is on along the Cape. The automobile, a small new sedan, was taken from Paige Brothers' garage. It is the property of the bookkeeper, John Agna.

The thief made his escape in the machine after breaking into the department store of D. A. Matheson and stocking up with a suit of clothes, two pairs of shoes, ten shirts, two dozen ties, belts, handkerchiefs, socks and a windbreak.

Professor's Pay Will Not Be Cut

Raleigh, N. C., May 6 (AP)—Professors at North Carolina State College today were assured their salaries would not be cut in order to carry out Governor O. Max Gardner's economy program.

In order to reduce expenses at the school, President E. C. Brooks decided:

"We will have to cut out certain items which will less seriously hurt us, but we have not decided which items these will be."

Pastor Shuler in Jail for 20 Days

Los Angeles, May 6 (AP)—The Rev. R. P. "Bob" Shuler, militant pastor of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, South, today adjusted himself to the routine of county jail life to serve a 20-day sentence for contempt of court.

Shuler's conviction yesterday resulted from contempt citations by the Los Angeles Bar Association, alleging that in radio addresses he had criticized two superior court judges for their actions in the handling of Julian Petroleum Corporation criminal trials. He was found guilty on six of seven counts.

U. S. National Banks Have 27 Billions

Washington, May 6 (AP)—The aggregate resources of the 7216 national banks in the United States, Alaska and Hawaii were 27,348,498,000 on March 27, John W. Pole, Comptroller of the Currency, announced the figure today.

The total was a decrease of $1,533,865,000 since December 31, the date of the preceding bank call. It also was a decrease of $1,673,414,000 in resources since the call of March 27, 1929.

Says Canada-U. S. on Eve of Tariff War

Halifax, N. S., May 6 (AP)—Canada is on the eve of a tariff war with the United States, J. H. Woods, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, told members of the Halifax Board of Trade at a dinner given in his honor last night.

Such a struggle was inevitable, he said, in expressing his "confident belief" that Canada would emerge victorious.

Old Mound Star Is Injured in a Fall

Taunton, May 6 (AP)—Thomas Gilroy, 45, former pitcher for the Cleveland club in the Federal League and later in the old New England League, but more recently an umpire hereabouts, was knocked unconscious today when a ladder on which he was working as a house painter, collapsed. He fell 12 feet, striking his head on a piazza. The extent of his injuries has not been determined.

Spurious Paintings Charge Stirs School

Paris, May 6 (AP)—Investigation of alleged operation of a "Millet factory," producing spurious paintings sold as originals, today cast a shadow over the entire Barbizon School. It was indicated that experts called in to determine the genuineness of paintings sold at high prices, had doubts as to the authenticity of some other examples of the school.

Pledged to Maintain The Highest Standards in DRY CLEANING AND DYEING

Introduction of new types of fabrics has necessitated additional equipment and workers, resulting in increased expense and problems for the Dry Cleaning Industry.

It is highly important that these new requirements be met in order to insure proper handling of your garments, with thorough satisfaction and dependable service, whether you deal with a plant, a dry cleansing shop, tailor or other agency.

The leading cleansers and dyers have associated to maintain these high standards. It is their belief that the slight increase in prices made necessary by added cost of production, will be recognized as essential . . . or in other words . . . an assurance of absolutely reliable dry cleansing!

The pledge of quality, by EVERY member of this association, is made for YOUR benefit . . . YOUR protection!

PROPERTY TAX BILL VETOED BY ALLEN

A bill which would grant exemption from taxation, locally, of certain personal property, including household furniture, farming tools, radios to a value of $2000, was vetoed yesterday by Governor Allen on the ground that such exemption would make it necessary to impose a heavier tax upon real estate.

The bill was reported by the special commission on taxation and would make $2000 the lump sum of personal property exempt. At present the law permits exemption of wearing apparel and $1000 worth of household furniture, and there are other exemptions for farming utensils, fishermen's equipment and the like.

Action on the veto, which was read in the House, was postponed until today. The veto message in part follows:

"I am returning without my approval, House bill No. 262, relative to the exemption from local taxation of certain personal property.

"It is very necessary to consider the sources of revenue of our cities and towns in the Commonwealth before granting further exemptions from local taxation.

"If this measure became law, the resulting loss in income would have to be replaced. The cities and towns could do this only by increasing the tax on real estate. Some of our municipalities have already reported that if the bill became law it would result in the loss of a substantial amount of revenue.

"The ever-increasing cost of conducting the affairs of our cities and towns now bears so heavily on our real estate that we must not unnecessarily add to the burden even in a comparatively small degree. I cannot approve placing an increased burden upon the homes of our people."

Sculptor Epstein to Show Up His Critics

London, May 6 (INS)—Jacob Epstein, the famous sculptor, is annoyed over the violent criticism which has greeted some of his recent works and so he is planning an exhibition of his finest just to show what he can do.

His model of the Madonna and Child, which has never been seen in this country, has been brought from America for the exhibition. The date of the exhibition has not yet been definitely decided, but it will probably be the end of May.

Rioting Closes Up Madrid University

Madrid, May 6 (AP)—Classes were suspended today in the University of Madrid by government order and the university itself was closed as a result of rioting since Thursday in behalf of establishment of a Spanish republic.

Heavy police forces were posted throughout Madrid to prevent more such disorders as yesterday, in which, according to the police, one worker was killed and 15 persons injured.

Princess Ileana in Romance With Count

Bucharest, Rumania, May 6 (AP)—Authoritative circles denied emphatically today persistent rumors here that Princess Ileana had remained in Egypt after her mother's return home in order to resume her romance with Count Von Hochberg.

Jerusalem, May 6 (AP)—Princess Ileana of Rumania arrived here today from Cairo, Egypt, traveling incognito.

Ramon Navarro to Take Music Course

East Lansing, Mich., May 6 (INS)—Ramon Navarro, moving picture star, arrived here today to spend the next two months studying singing under Louis Grauveuie, head of the vocal department at the Michigan State College Institute of Music.

Post-Debs Plan Dance May 23

Invitations Being Sent Out by Young Folks for Their Annual Frolic

EVERYTHING IS ALL set and invitations are going out for the dance to be given by the peppy post-deb group on May 23 at Del Monte's. It is not exactly a surprise that The Country Club has not been chosen for the scene of great delight. For several seasons these merry young folks have arranged a get-together for fun and frolic, not to make history, but certain high officials of country-clubdom and cold roast Boston are still dreaming of the good old days when candles were out on Beacon Hill and flannelettes donned before the clock struck twelve and that pretty little Cinderellas and their princes should stick to pink lemonade.

WELL, IN SPITE OF ALL this, Fate keeps on happening, and the Misses Virginia Cowles, Phyllis Ellsworth, Winifred Thorndike, Anstiss Boyden, Sally Wambolt, Caroline Read, Rosamond Rust and Virginia Taylor are directing the beautiful belles and their special swains to Rafe's Chasm by the Sea. And what a place for dining and dancing! All is romance: The circular ballroom that hangs over the cliff defying the breaking waves beneath, wide verandahs lighted by moonlight, softly singing violins, and the long drive home through the sweetly fragrant dawn.

MRS. ROBERT ALMY, MRS. ALBERT BURRAGE, JR., Mrs. Alexander Shaw, Mrs. Charles Harding, Mrs Harry Hill Thorndike, Mrs. Edgar Rust and that good sport, Mrs. Curtis Guild, will see to it that the girls and boys don't fall off the rocks and that no gate-crashers will be among those present.

Society Favorites Join Engaged Group

MISS MARGARET WENTWORTH will wed John Kimball Whiting, Jr., at the First Parish Church of Milton on Tuesday, June 10. Her sister, Mrs. Everett Morss, Jr., will be matron-of-honor and another sister, Miss Constance, will be maid-of-honor.

MISS JULIET GREENE, daughter of Mrs. Bertram Greene of Commonwealth ave., who is to wed James Richard Carter, Ed. Miss Greene is a popular member of the Junior League and Vincent Club.

Dinner Parties Will Preeede Cambridge Assembly on Friday

MRS. ROBERT WALCOTT will be dinner hostess for ten guests at her Brattle st. residence before going to the Cambridge Assembly, Friday evening. Another large dinner party will be that of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Miller Whitney on Sparks st., for 12 friends, and Mr. and Mrs. James Cunningham Gray are also giving a dinner for a few guests that evening.

MRS. CHARLES WALCOTT is chairman of the general committee and serving with her are Mrs. J. Thayer Addison, Mrs. Arthur H. Brooks, Mrs. Richard W. Irving, Mrs. Herbert Harwood, Mrs. Endicott Marean, Mrs. Kenneth B. Murdock, Mrs. John Noble, Mrs. Charles Peabody, Mrs. Robert D. Weston, Mrs. Charles Torrey, Mrs. Howard M. Turner, Mrs. Robert Walcott, Mrs. Robert Storer and Mrs. J. G. Nichols. Rooms decorated with painted medallions will adorn the sides of the ballrooms which will be lighted by many-colored Chinese lanterns and profusely decorated with lilacs. And it is hoped that the proceeds will surpass even their fondest expectations for the benefit of the hospital.

Miss Frances Meade Selects May 20 for Her Bridal Ceremony

MISS FRANCES PAULDING MEADE and Mr. Theodore Haviland, 2d, have chosen May 20 for their wedding at Leslie Memorial Chapel. Miss Meade is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Paulding Meade of Beacon st., and made her debut several seasons ago. She holds membership in the Junior League. Mr. Haviland is the grandson of Mrs. Guy Bancroft of Cambridge, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Haviland of Limoges, France. Miss Meade has just returned from a four months' visit abroad, where she was the guest of her fiance's parents.

MISS ELIZABETH MEADE will be her sister's sole attendant and Mr. Elberte C. Dale, cousin of the bride-elect, will serve as best man. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock and will be followed by a small reception at the Algonquin Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Higgins Return From Visit to Son in Panama

THE LAWRENCE HIGGINSES have returned from Panama where their son is stationed in the diplomatic service. The Higginses live at 100 Beacon st., but up to a season or so ago they resided in the beautiful George von L. Meyer place on that same popular street.

MR. AND MRS. CLIFFORD SMITH, brother of Mr. Grafton Smith who married Janice Vaughan, have taken a house at Wianno, the gold coast of Cape Cod.

MISS EVELYN LANSDALE, the stunning blonde who hit Boston (in the eye, I mean) when she arrived from the West, is at the Lincolnshire and her sister is vacationing with her from that most seelct of girls' schools, St. Timothy's of Baltimore. Mrs. Jack Mills of Milton is the aunt of these attractive girls.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN LAWRENCE of Topsfield are going to lead the simple life on their last million, we hear, at the Silsby cottage on the North Shore. Daughter Eloise and her husband are going to live on the "farm" this summer and if you have never seen the farm, just think back to where the Prince of Wales spent a few days, and you will know what I mean by the farm.

Paris Sponsors Unusual Material Mergers

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American.

Paris, May 6.

IF YOU take stock in fashion, you will notice that this season you can get your share of personality preferred. Never has it been so possible to individualize one's personality through the medium of one's clothes, and still be part of the sartorial picture. A vast range of clothes are in style, though, of course, strict care should be exercised that, despite the tolerance of the mode, a sartorial faux pas is not committed.

An embarrassment of riches is always penalized by the necessity of constant vigilance, and this applies to fashion as well as to other things. Do not experiment rashly with costume jewelry or other accessories. Let your costume be individual, with originality displayed in the choice of materials or trimming, but see that all other touches are appropriate.

The mode has been responsible for some strange mergers in a material way, since last season, and still they come. A recent and certainly most startling one is a frock made of satin, trimmed with pique and worn with a linen jacket.

Despite the strange alliance, the costume is quite a delightful affair and is essentially wearable by the type of woman who is an adept at donning a striking outfit and then promptly forgetting all about. Anyway, so that you may judge the looks of said suit for yourself, we have had two sketches of it made for your scrutiny. Patou had used heavy black satin for the frock, and has chosen as its trimming a gilet and boy knit of white pique.

The soft folds at the waistline are held in tiny pleats which pass under an appliqued band in front. This band forms part of a wide panel with a circular movement at the lower edge of the skirt and inverted pleats at the side.

With the dress is worn a tailored jacket of gray linen, which you must concede is a most unusual combination with black satin. But somehow it contrives to be delightfully smart. It nips in at the waistline ever so slightly and fastens with one button. A pink gardenia worn as a boutonniere, emphasizing the debonair appearance of the jacket, as contrasted with the somber satin frock.

TAILORED JACKET of gray linen, a most unusual combination is worn with the black satin creation. (Sketched in Paris.)

Flier Out to Break Cross-Country Mark

Los Angeles, May 6 (USA)—Los Angeles to New York in 13 hours! That was the goal set by L. Rosce Turner, who will take off for New York at midnight tonight, weather permitting.

Turner has his heart set on beating the new record of 14 hours, 45 minutes and 32 seconds, set by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife recently.

Ambassador Edge Is Sightly Ill in Paris

Paris, May 6 (INS)—United States Ambassador Edge was confined to his suite at the embassy today with a slight indisposition. His physician advised him to rest for a day. He will resume work tomorrow.

Virginia Town Gets Population Boost Honors for 1930

Washington, May 6 (AP)—The honor of having the largest percentage of increase in population in the last 10 years has shifted from an Ohio to a Virginia town. Michigan took the honors in 1920.

Announcement of the population of Hopewell, Va., the town which sprung up during the war as a munitions manufacturing center, placed its increase at 7107 per cent, with a total of 11,329 inhabitants, as compared with 1387 in 1920.

Prior to Hopewell's announcement, Garfield Heights, O., was holding the increase lead with 3107 per cent and a population of 15,575.

Rescue Blind Women From Death in Fire

Bath, Me., May 6 (INS)—Two blind women, a mother and her daughter, were carried to safety today when fire, believed of incendiary origin, destroyed their story and a half wooden dwelling on the outskirts here.

Those rescued were Mrs. Abbie Snowman, 66, and her daughter, Miss Lottie A. McDuffie, 45. They were carried through smoke-filled and blazing hallways by Patrolman George Wilson and Lorriston Esterbrook, a neighbor.

Dr. Minot to Get Scientific Medal

Dr. George Richard Minot, director of the Thorndike Memorial laboratories at Boston City Hospital, is one of four who will be presented gold medals at the annual dinner of the National Institute of Social Sciences Thursday in New York. The others are William Lyon Phelps, Lampson professor at Yale; Miss Jane B. Gallup of the Brooklyn Children's Museum and Nathan Straus, New York financier.

Dr. Minot is cited for "recognition of his invaluable connection with the treatment and control of pernicious anemia."

Open House at Angell Memorial Hospital Tomorrow

S. P. C. A. Auxiliary Prepares for "Hospitality Day" Tomorrow

By NANCY BREWSTER

The Women's Auxiliary of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will observe Hospitality Day tomorrow at the Angell Memorial Hospital.

This is a courtesy extended each year to the general public that a greater acquaintanceship with the work and benefits of the hospital might result.

From one to five Wednesday afternoon all departments of the institution will be open for inspection, after which a reception will follow.

VISITORS INVITED

It is hoped by the president, Mrs. Edgar Levinstein, that those women unfamiliar with the work of the auxiliary and its contribution to the hospital, will afford themselves of this opportunity and visit the building.

At 2 p. m. a bridge, under the direction of Mrs. Arthur W. Hurlburt and Mrs. William L. Edwards, will take place, the proceeds to go to the general maintenance fund of the auxiliary.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

A musical program will be given from 3 to 5 p. m., including a group of songs and selections on the harp and violin.

Tea will be served under the direction of Miss Helen W. Potter, assisted by Mrs. M. F. Jacobs, Mrs. F. A. Morrill, Mrs. William J. Underwood, Mrs. Ralph H. Baldwin, Mrs. Agnes P. Fisher, Mrs. Fred B. Kimball, Mrs. Marion Nicholson, Mrs. Howard F. Woodward, Mrs. Sarah E. E. Baker, Miss Ethelyn Lord, Miss Annie K. Graham, Mrs. Esmond Rowley, Miss Alice Rowley and Mrs. Guy Richardson.

Scholasticana Club Holds Bridge Party To Benefit College

St. Anselm's College and Preparatory School at Manchester, N. H., will materially profit when the receipts of the fourth annual bridge and whist, sponsored by the Scholasticana Club are tallied May 17 at the Hotel Statler.

In the interest of the educational institution, Mrs. Walter J. Whelan of Milton, president, has working with her an enlarged committee whose efforts will result in a great outpouring of philanthropic-minded women from Greater Boston.

Heading the various committees are Mrs. E. O. Hurley, Swampscott; Mrs. Edward Maguire, Newton; Mrs. Frederick Mahony, Brighton; Mrs. Thomas McAuliffe, Swampscott; Mrs. Edwin Carr, Swampscott; Mrs. John Ryan, Lynn; Mrs. William Ray, Newton; Mrs. John Pearce, Cohasset; Mrs. Edward Sliney, Brookline; Mrs. Willis Legge, Everett; Mrs. John K. Sullivan, Brighton; Mrs. J. Rafferty, Revere; Mrs. P. J. O'Connell, Watertown; Mrs. J. Doherty, Jamaica Plain; Mrs. J. Butler, East Boston; Mrs. Derocchers, Revere.

Those of the reception committee are Mrs. Joseph Dolan, Arlington; Mrs. Archibald Beaton, Dorchester; Mrs. William Schmidt, Roslindale; Miss Helen Murphy, Roxbury, and Mrs. John E. Sullivan, Brighton.

Elect New Officers for Current Events Club of Hyde Park

And still elections go on.

Mrs. Charles W. Taylor, president of the Current Events Club of Hyde Park, was re-elected to serve during 1931.

She will have as her official family Mrs. William M. Bailey, first vice president; Mrs. Ralph L. Waldron, second vice president; Mrs. Otto E. Zaugg, recording secretary; Mrs. G. Morgan King, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Walter D. Gordon, treasurer; Mrs. John A. Swanstrom, bursar; Dr. Elizabeth M. Briggs and Mrs. Frank B. Newton, directors; Mrs. Albert W. Hiller, press correspondent.

Auditors of the club's finances will be Mrs. Arthur T. Bryne, Mrs. Fred L. Johnson and Mrs. Crosby B. Thompson. The 1931 nominating committees consists of Mrs. Horace N. Case, Mrs. Charles A. Gould, Mrs. D. Wellington Stewart, Mrs. F. Henry Coffin and Mrs. Percy J. L. Reardon.

Brookline Eastern Star Women to Hold Sale at Town Hall

With the spring comes an influx of rummage sales and money-making ventures that women's organizations might tuck away for future use neat sums with which to carry on their activities of the ensuing year.

The Brookline Eastern Star follows this method, and tomorrow an all-day rummage sale of miscellaneous articles for man, woman or child will be held at the Brookline Town Hall, with Mrs. Edna H. Kellom in general charge.

Great are the anticipations, financially and socially, of the event to the success of which the following women have devoted endless hours and untiring efforts: Mrs. Flora S. Jenkins, Mrs. Janet Atkinson, Mrs. Margaret L. Higgs, Mrs. Gordon Esmond, Mrs. Charity King, Miss Pauline P. Curry, Mrs. John Harris and Mrs. Myra Marcey.

Hub Feminist Tells 20th Century Group of Suffrage Leader

There isn't a woman in Boston who doesn't know or know of Miss Alice Stone Blackwell.

We make this statement without reservation since Miss Blackwell has been in print and before the public for the past 30 years, if not struggling for women's suffrage, then battling for some other cause which would result in favor of woman's progress and for woman's future.

An unequivocal feminist, Miss Blackwell was a presidential elector for La Follette in 1924.

And on "Some Pioneer Women—Lucy Stone and Her Friends in the Suffrage Movement"—a subject dear to her heart, Miss Blackwell will talk before the members of the Twentieth Century Club at the last luncheon-meeting of this season next Saturday at 3 Joy st., at 1 p. m.

She is honorary president of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters and is an extensive writer on woman suffrage.

Five Minutes Later Kre-Mel is Ready

Make this healthful, delicious dessert . . .

Try this recipe—watch the clock—and you will agree that no dessert has ever been so easily prepared—

Mix thoroughly a package of Kre-Mel with ½ cup milk. Add 1½ cups milk and place over fire, stirring constantly until it thickens and reaches boiling point. This will take several minutes.

If cooked in a double boiler, mix as above and stir constantly until thick (2 to 3 minutes) after which continue cooking and stir occasionally for about 5 minutes.

Kre-Mel is pure, rich, delicious—and wholesome as well—yet it costs but 5c a package at your grocer.

Should Women Face Extreme Penalty for Murder?

Editor Boston American:

Is it right to hang or electrocute a mother for murder? That case out of west I cannot get out of my mind, where a mother was recently hanged for murder.

I think mothers should be exempt from such punishment. I notice that Dr. Methven, governor of Maidstone prison, England, is heading a movement for such exemption.

Then on the other hand such organizations as the Women's Freedom League and other societies are opposed to any discriminations for women.

What do your readers think about this?

Lauds Work Being Done at South Station

Editor Boston American:

It is much to the credit of those who are doing the great work of readjusting the South Station to modern conditions. Any observer of this work should notice how little, if any, discomfort or delay, has come to the patrons of these railroads.

If this work had been attempted 25 years ago, without some of these modern ideas to rely upon, there would be a great kick made daily.

There are lots of things done effectively in the world that no one cares to praise. They pass them by as matters of course. But the work of renovation going on at the South Station needs attention, showing the progress made today in doing a big work without annoying people who have to see it and without being hurt or injured by it.

Urges Promotion of Good Will Day

Editor Boston American:

Governor Allen has asked the people of Massachusetts, and especially the schools, to celebrate World Good Will Day on May 18. In his public statement the governor reviews the leading part which America has taken in world co-operation through numerous treaties of arbitration, though the unarmed Canadian border, through the Kellogg pact and the recent London naval treaty.

He continues:

"May 18 is observed by many of the nations as Good Will Day. I am very glad to call the attention of the people of this Commonwealth to the importance of observing in some appropriate manner the significance of this date.

"I sincerely hope that the teachers in all of the schools, both public and private, will at appropriate times and in adequate measure, endeavor to instruct the young people committed to their charge in the meaning of Good Will Day and of the other important movements in the interest of world co-operation and international peace."

The governor's notable statement deserves greater publicity and the widespread consideration of our citizens.

The observance of this day has the endorsement of such leaders in the educational and civic life of the commonwealth as: Bishop William F. Anderson of the Methodist Church; Pres. Wallace W. Atwood of Clark University; Arthur C. Boyden, principal State Normal school of Bridgewater; Frances G. Curtis, president of the Women's City Club of Boston; Dr. Robert C. Dexter, secretary, department of social relations of American Unitarian Association; Dean Lucy Jenkins Franklin of Boston University; Mrs. C. E. French, chairman of the international relations committee of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs; Pres. Harry A. Garfield of Williams College; Dr. Alice Hamilton, professor, Harvard Medical school; Prof. Arthur N. Holcombe of Harvard University; Rabbi Harry Levi of Boston; Pres. Ellen F. Pendleton of Wellesley College; Pres. R. W. Thatcher of the Massachusetts Agricultural College; Mrs. Samuel B. Woodward of Worcester, and Pres. Mary E. Woolley of Mt. Holyoke College.

It is especially fitting in this Tercentenary year that Massachusetts should celebrate this day in recognition of the contributions which all races have made to the upbuilding of our commonwealth. Furthermore, now that our nation has, under the Kellogg Pact, pledged its honor to the peaceful settlement of every dispute, it is essential that we give the coming generation an outlook of international understanding and good will. I urge the readers of the American to do what they can to promote the observance of World Good Will Day, May 18, in schools, churches, Sunday schools and elsewhere.

Pole Can Never Be Definitely Located

Editor Boston American:

Commander Donald McMillian, explorer, in speaking in a conversation during his visit to Wellesley, said:

"The North Pole can never be discovered in a definite way. Instruments delicate enough to indicate the exact spot cannot be manufactured. At its best, it is more or less a guess. We can approximate. That is all."

I am glad to hear this, because it confirms what I have maintained for some time, but could get no evidence except what this explorer gave to substantiate my point.

Says Ape Theory Should Be Kept In Background

Editor Boston American:

That professor over in Cambridge, who is invariably upset if anyone denies they are descended from anthropoid apes and who finds an opportunity now and then to boom his ancestors of Mayflower heritage, should hang a few pictures of anthropoid apes in his parlor alongside his ancestors of Puritan pedigree.

I would not say this, did not some of us students become weary of hearing so much about these apes, when that name evolution is sounded forth. It seems to me that what is a theory should be held in the background more. J. H. TOWNSEND.

Sportsmen to Exhibit Steel Traps

Editor Boston American:

At the regular meeting of the Dedham Hunting and Fishing Association to be held at Fidelis Hall, corner of Washington and Rockland sts., West Roxbury, on May 8 at 8 p. m., there will be an exhibition of the steel traps which the proponents of House Bill 291 are trying to legalize to the exclusion of the present steel trap.

This is the bill which will go on a referendum next election. As your paper has been referring to this bill as the "anti-steel trap bill" and by so doing are unconsciously helping the cause of the proponents, we ask you to send a representative from your paper to examine these traps and prove to his satisfaction that this is not an anti-steel trap bill, but simply a "change in steel traps bill." It legalizes steel traps that are now outlawed and prohibits some of the steel traps that are now in use. We think that the papers want to be fair to both sides and by referring to this bill as the "change in steel traps bill" which you can find out for yourself is the true situation rather than as the "anti-steel trap bill," which is a misnomer and does not in the least describe the actual situation. As the proponents of this bill are making their greatest appeal to the women voters, we find that some of them think when they see "anti-steel trap bill" that they are legislatively the steel trap out of existence, which is decidedly not so.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

If you want to see what auto congestion can be, just watch the streets of downtown Boston from noon to 5 p. m. This is especially true on Saturdays or days before holidays.

Streams of autos fill streets in the older section of Boston. Take portions of Franklin st. within two blocks of entering Washington st. This portion, like others, is just thick with autos. Pedestrians suffer from this. Traffic cops will be taxed in these conditions, confronting them, to solve problems which they cannot handle. It is a wonder how they handle them so well.

But there are times when this exacting duty is really beyond them. It is really beyond any human intelligence. I am often inclined to pity officers, who are face to face with traffic problems in Boston and get no real or ready help from the right sources.

Wins French Press "Good Will" Award

Paris, May 6 (AP)—The Ralph Beaver Strassburger prize of $1000 for the best work in the French press designed to improve relations between France and the United States, was awarded today to Rene Puaux of Le Temps. His prize winning articles were a series of notes based on a trip to America.

CLASH MARKS POWER LINE HEARING

A verbal clash between Atty. Howard Donnell, representing a group of opponents to a bill authorizing the public utilities commission to grant the Eastern Massachusetts Electric Co. locations for a transmission line in Danvers, and Senator Angier L. Goodwin, chairman of the legislative committee on power and light, marked the hearing before the power and light committee.

Donnell was asked if he had commented that if the committee's action in approving a similar bill were known "it would not make good reading."

"I think that refers to me because I reported the bill," said Goodwin. "I would like you to know that when a bill is reported it is the action of the entire committee. I would like to know whether in making that statement you meant to cast a reflection on the power and light committee. I would like to know just what you meant by that statement."

BRAINTREE COP GRAFT PROBE BLOWS UP

Dist.-Atty. Winfield Wilbar of Brockton characterized as "the bunk" the highly touted investigation of the Braintree police department which blew up last night following the special session of the Braintree board of selectmen.

A statement issued by the selectmen declared there was no evidence to warrant the preferring of charges against any member of the police department.

The statement, however, stated that there would be an adjustment of police discipline and administration.

Only one member of the investigating committee, Joseph Magaldi, had anything to say concerning the affair, and he gave the department a clean bill of health. His only complaint was that those who made the original charges are now "mum."

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

New York, May 6—After three Bronx hospitals turned away William Fullreid, 53, who had tried suicide by gas, he was carried around in an ambulance for three hours before being admitted at Bellevue Hospital.

Jailed as Forger, Youth Seeks Death

Adams, May 6 — A few hours after he was sentenced to two years' imprisonment for forging a $20 check, Henry Bellard, 18, of this city, attempted to kill himself in his cell yesterday. Police found him hanging by his belt from the ceiling and cut him down. Physicians who examined him said he had a broken neck and a fractured skull and probably would die.

WORTH CROSSING THE OCEAN TO GET

A New London Designed Masterpiece in Worsted

Savile Row has been busy. And so has Bond! This crooked little London street, in which are created the finer points of gentlemen's attire, recently introduced a very smart new two-button business suit. We men always welcome such all-too-rare style changes from the "year-in and year-out" sameness of the clothes we live in ▾ ▾ And so, a Bond fashion observer promptly dispatched one of the original models of this new suit to the Bond factory—where it has been faultlessly reproduced in a special group of world renowned worsted fabrics ▾ ▾ This new style has decidedly military lines—with broader shoulders, shorter coat fronts and higher lapels. Men who appreciate a rare combination of jaunty youthfulness, flavored with English conservatism, will wear it with keen pleasure. And the very substantial savings of Bond's great 26-store factory-to-you volume will materially add to their enjoyment. ▾ ▾ Meet this good-looking Britisher at Bond's—today! You'll agree it was "worth crossing an ocean to get."

THE DAILY HUBBUB

—By ANTHONY SKELDING—

GARDEN SAILORS

WE WALKED through the Public Garden yesterday to catch a glimpse of the tulip beds and old fashioned wall flowers now in blossom. Two wild ducks were swimming in the pond . . . the same old drake comes every year at this time so the gardener told me. He has a new mate this year; it's a passionate marriage . . . Sailors on leave were having a boat race around the pond. We know a letter carrier who takes long hikes for his health on week-ends. We have also heard of an undertaker who goes to lodge funerals on days off. But all the same, if we were a sailor (this editorial "We" gets complicated) on shore leave, we wouldn't get much of a kick out of a rowboat race.

CHARLES ST. MALL

NOW IS the open season on the Common for free shows. On pleasant Sunday afternoons the ballyhoo is good. A collector of cults can stroll the rounds and take his choice. The "Flat Earth" man is there with his portable "pitch" and cosmic charts. He usually sets up his stand near the Park sq. entrance. "You can believe it or not," he says, "I aint got nothing to sell. If you don't think it's flat just look at it!" We looked . . . and not feeling competent to refute him, walked on. We have watched the old man for years expounding his flat earth theory. But what does he get for his labors? . . . Just arguments! . . . Sometimes an empty banana.

FURTHER UP another man is quite excited about the Great Flood, or was it a river of blood? which would presently engulf our "Jazz civilization." The catastrophe might come at any moment now! "Be prepared," he exhorted. Like Noah, who built himself an ark, the "Great Flood" man does not intend to be taken unequipped. He wears under his Sunday clothes a bathing suit . . . ready to swim. We got this inside tip from one of his disciples who stands on the side and helps with the singing. We threw a nickel in the basket and beat it in quest of pleasanter prophesies.

LARRY COHEN, the boy orator from Harvard, holds a good-sized audience. Larry is a Socialist, the son of a rich New York lawyer. In soft blue shirt and flowing tie he pours forth the shibboleth of the "class struggle." "Down with the capitalists" . . . "Workers of America, you have nothing to lose but your Fords." The regular chairholders of the Common for some reason have little sympathy for such doctrines. They are a leisurely lot and don't want to start any trouble. They have a philosophy of their own . . . a mixture of cynicism and despair. Larry talks a lot about the problems of labor . . . excess production, etc.; he uses the word "work" a whole lot; they don't like it. And anyway, they haven't any Fords to worry about. Now and then Larry stops his windy flights to ease his throat with a pellet. A cynic from the crowd heckles him—"Say! Why don't yer go back to where yer come from?" "Where did you come from?" retorts a sympathizer. "Hyde Park," answers the heckler. Thus the revolution is delayed for some minutes until order is restored.

NEAR THE Beacon st. gate the Esperanto man holds forth. By the establishment of a world-wide language he hopes to save the world from all future wars. This gent is a prosperous State st. business man and an expert accountant. He was in the Great War and didn't like it very well. He says that most of the trouble would have been avoided if the nations involved had had a common language. This would save the necessity of educating our diplomats in Turkish, Chinese, Bulgarian, Chinese, etc. The idea appealed to us, but the man's demonstrations (he gave samples of international words) were so technical we didn't get much from one lesson. On the whole we should say that this hobby makes a very interesting sideline for a business man who doesn't care for golf or bridge.

LAST IN LINE was "Good Will Bob," the gentleman who got converted many years ago in the cause of Christian fellowship. He belongs to no church for the reason that he has one all his own—under his hat. He is a picturesque character and still wears a big black sombrero which covers his long hair. "Buffalo Bill never cut his hair; why should I?" asks Sam. We could think of no particular reason why he should. When Sam is off his own box he wanders around the other meetings cutting in with rhetorical questions. The Common mobs have no use for hecklers. "Give him the air!" shouts a pious listener. "Tar can't!" retorts Sam, "I already got it!"

College Romance Ends in Divorce

A college girl's romance was shattered in Dedham "Probate Court yesterday when Harriet P. Lyons, Wellesley graduate, was divorced from Joseph N. Lyons, of Newton, on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

They were married soon after her graduation in 1927, she told Judge McCook, and only a year and a half later, during a quarrel he struck her and called her names, she said.

SENATORS FIND OFFICES LOOTED

Washington, May 6 (AP)—Investigation and conjecture today followed the disclosure that the offices of three Senators had been entered and rifled and a few small articles stolen.

The offices were those of Senators McKellar and Brock of Tennessee, and Smoot of Utah. The loot reported consisted of four pens and a desk pad, although McKellar also said that his desks, files and papers had been ransacked.

He told of the incident in the Senate late yesterday, saying it occurred Saturday night and blamed "secret service agents" as the "probable" marauders.

Poland Has 30,700,000

Warsaw, Poland, May 6 (AP)—The Central statistic bureau today reported that the population of Poland as of January 1 was 30,700,000, an increase for the year of 458,000.

PROBE ILLINOIS PRIMARY FUNDS

Washington, May 4 (AP)—The Senate campaign funds committee today prepared for a trip to Illinois next Republican senatorial primary charges that candidates in the recent Republican Senatorial primary spent more money than their reports showed.

Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, who won the nomination, told the committee that her expenditures totaled $252,000, all her own money, and Senator Deneen, her defeated rival, reported expenditures of $24,000.

The committee, however, has received charges that more than these amounts was expended. For the present it is holding them confidential and special investigators are making inquiries in Illinois.

King Celebrates His Crowning Day by Betting on Race

Newmarket, Eng., May 6 (AP)—King George placed a wager on a horse today, for the novelty of working one of the new betting machines on the 20th anniversary of his coronation.

When his majesty arrived for the races he became greatly interested in the totalisator offices, which were only recently installed. After listening to the explanation of how betting is done through the machine, the King purchased a ticket. The name of the horse he backed was not made known.

Washington, May 6 (US)—The Williamson bill providing for transfer of the prohibition enforcement bureau from the Treasury to the Justice Department was favorably reported by the Senate Judiciary committee.

LINDY SEES END OF STUNT HOPS

New York, May 6 (INS)—Hazardous "stunt" flights have just about served their purpose, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh indicated in an interview today.

"There is a marked tendency on the part of pilots and the personnel element of flying organizations to plan more practical flights," declared Lindbergh.

"I see no reason for a long non-stop flight when it would be more feasible to make an intermediary stop and re-fuel—that is, if such a stop could be made.

"Pioneering flights have carried out a definite purpose. But the others, yet to come, will be of a more practical nature."

Colonel Lindbergh denied he planned to attempt a flight from Paris to New York, as was recently reported.

Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm Leads Fire Fighters

London, May 6 (INS)—Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany tried his hand at fire-fighting today.

According to a Central News dispatch from Amsterdam, the Ex-Kaiser quickly marshalled his servants when fire broke out in a village near Doorn, where he is living in exile. The blaze was in the home of a local burgher, Herr Brand, a friend of the Ex-Kaiser's.

in a cigarette it's Taste

WHAT INTEGRITY is to a public official, taste is to a cigarette—the one quality that wins and holds public confidence and esteem.

ON TASTE AND TASTE ALONE, Chesterfield continues to gain smokers, both men and women. Chesterfields are mild—not strong or harsh—yet they have richness of flavor and aroma. They are not insipid or tasteless.

WITNESS THE STEADY GROWTH in the popularity of Chesterfield—a popularity which proves that with smokers, as with us, it's "TASTE above everything".

Undefeated Teams Clash in Four-Ball Tilt

MR. BOSTON
by JACK CONWAY

Ladies Show Increased Interest in Baseball

Mr. Boston believes the baseball owners will have to build larger ball parks if only to accommodate members of the fair sex who take advantage of the free admissions on ladies' day.

"Out in Chicago," said Mr. Boston, "the Cubs have found it necessary to limit the ladies to 20,000 tickets on ladies' day which takes place each Friday when the club is at home. The management will begin distributing the pasteboards on Wednesdays and it will be a case of first come, first served.

When ladies' days were first started at ball clubs, the members of the fair sex were usually accompanied by a male escort, but nowadays attend the games often alone.

"The club owners feel that the influence of the ladies on the popularity of baseball is good. They get so much interested in the pastime that they make good husband or the boy friend them to the Saturday and day games.

"Ladies' day is popular at Fenway Park and Braves Field. Bob Quinn and Emil Fuchs, ever thoughtful in regard to the little problems of life, have furnished nurses who take care of the babies while their mothers root for Babe Ruth or some equally husky young man to knock the apple out of the baseball orchard.

Hockey Games Draw Thousands of Ladies

"Thousands of ladies attend the hockey games at the Boston Garden. This is one of the chief reasons the Bruins usually sell out. The hockey magnates never adopted a ladies' night, but admit that much of their business success depends upon the patronage of the ladies.

"I have seen large numbers of women at championship boxing matches. This was particularly true when gorgeous Georges Carpentier battled Jack Dempsey. The girls fell for the handsome Georges.

"The boxing shows promoted in Boston by the Crosscup-Pishon Post of the American Legion have attracted society leaders who have graced the ringside on evening gowns.

"On the whole, however, ladies have not been very strong for attending boxing shows. They take in the big spectacles, but leave the men enjoy the average run of shows.

"Wrestling has a stronger appeal to the ladies. This is partly due to the fact wrestling is a European sport and is a part of the family life in some of the countries overseas.

"But neither boxing nor wrestling can boast of as large a patronage among the ladies as is the case with baseball and hockey.

"If you were to ask how the ladies like football, I would rate it even ahead of baseball and boxing. They don't know what the game is all about in most cases, but they like the social atmosphere that surrounds the fall gridiron clashes.

"It doesn't injure one's standing in a drawing room to remark in a very nonchalant manner about having watched the youngmen of Harvard and Yale battle.

Milk Fund Show Gets the Social Leaders

"The greatest turnout of the social leaders takes place at the Milk Fund show in New York each year. Mrs. William Randolph Hearst and her committee have found that the social leaders give the great charity event color.

"I know that neither Jack Sharkey nor Max Schmeling will be interested in the social standing of members of New York's '400' who watch them battle on June 12 for the heavyweight championship of the world. Their chief concern will be in winning the title.

"Tickets sold to the social leaders, however, will swell the gate receipts and this fact will be of interest to all parties connected with the championship quarrel.

"The ladies understand boxing much better than they do football and hockey, but, then, the dear young things have been doing quite a lot of scrapping themselves down through the ages. Perhaps after all boxing is their game."

BRAE BURN IN MATCH WITH WESTON

Four-Ball League Standings

	Matches W.	L.	Points W.	L.

Charles River	2	0	20	4
Winchester	2	0	18½	5½
Weston	1	0	11½	8½

Belmont Spring	0	2	10½	13½
Country Club	0	2	8	18
Wollaston	0	2	4½	19½
Commonwealth	0	2	2½	21½

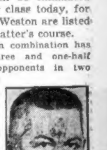
MATCHES TODAY

Brae Burn at Weston.
Belmont Spring at Charles River.
Winchester at Commonwealth.
Oakley at Wollaston
Woodland at Country Club.

By BILL GRIMES

At least one of the four undefeated clubs of the Boston Four-Ball League will be eliminated from the honor class today, for Brae Burn and Weston are listed to meet at the latter's course.

The Brae Burn combination has only yielded three and one-half points to its opponents in two matches. The West Newton team opened the season by swamping Wollaston, 11½ to ½, and last week managed to annex nine out of the 12 points in The Country Club tilt at Brookline.



Bill Grimes

Although Weston has won two matches, they were close. In the opening match, Weston was only one point up on Woodland, and then were unable to get better than an eight and four break with Wollaston.

The outcome of the Brae Burn-Weston match this afternoon should favor the West Newton aggregation by a six's margin.

The Charles River-Belmont Spring battle will be the feature attraction. Charles River is defending the title and has been playing a brand of golf that is sufficient to cause the other contenders considerable worry.

Going into the third match, Charles River is only a half point after from Brae Burn and if the players had functioned up to real form they would now be out in front, instead of in the runner-up position.

Charles River holds a 9 to 3 decision over The Country Club and came through with an 11½ to ½ victory over Commonwealth. A three putted 9th green stopped Charles River from making a clean sweep.

State Amateur Champs to Play for Belmont

Capt. Frank Craven has rounded up a well balanced aggregation to represent Charles River, in spite of the fact that three of last year's championship team are not available this season.

Belmont Spring will be loaded for bear when they tackle Charles River today. Fred Wright, the amateur champion of the State, is expected to be in the Belmont lineup for the first time this season.

He will be paired with Billy McPhail and will be opposed by Eddie Murphy and Bill Arnold. This will be a match well worth witnessing and should be the outstanding one of the day's play.

Winchester has a fine opportunity to pull right up in the midst of the fight for first place, for Commonwealth has been practically wrecked and has only been able to win 2½ out of a possible 24 points.

Winchester knocked off Belmont and Oakley and pitcher can time the throw so that it reaches the bag as the exact instant the shortstop arrives.

When the play is executed properly it nabs many a base runner and saves many a game.

WALKER TEAM IN ENGLAND

Plymouth, Eng., May 6 (AP)—Members of the American Walker team reached England today on the Mauretania. All disembarked except Bobby Jones, who remained aboard and proceeded to Southampton. He expressed the opinion that the team's prospects were good.

"But," Jones said, "I am sure that we shall have a very hard fight, for I think that Great Britain has got together her strongest team in years. I myself have been playing very well, I suppose, but having played a lot of golf I don't like to say too much about that.

I have not played for three weeks, however, and got only a little practice on the boat. We shall see how we shape up when we get down to hard practice."

Jones would not commit himself on probable pairings of his men in the foursomes. The junior member of the team, Donald Koe, evidently was thrilled over his first visit to England, "the responsibility thrown upon us by the golf association rather frightens me," he said, "but I'm determined to play my very best. I know I'll have a wonderful time."

Douglas Fairbanks also arrived on the Mauretania, with the intention of seeing the matches. He said that he had gone so golf-mad that he just could not remain in Hollywood, while his fellow-countrymen were battling in England. He was even more optimistic of the team's chances than was Jones himself.

Crimson Prepares for Penn Game

Harvard's baseball team began preparations for their coming battle with Penn at Soldiers Field today. A long session on the field daily will be Mitchell's program to get the Cantabs in shape for Saturday's tussle with the Quakers.

Unquestionably, Charlie Devens will get the twirling assignment in Harvard's only game this week. Devens will need all the work he can get, for he was far from good shape in Harvard's last battle.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

Now let us see what happens to the driver when you start it away from the ball in this fashion—and also what happens to you. As the clubhead swings back it stays close to the ground and your right elbow keeps inward the body. Your wrists maintain their same relationship to the shaft, that is, with the club withdrawn two feet or more your wrists and hands, if you stopped the club, would not have changed at all. You could return the club to its address position without shifting your wrists at all—correct. This action back with the club will naturally have drawn your left arm in close to you so that, with the club a few feet back from the ball, your left elbow should be in the pit of your stomach. Now this is quite different from having the left elbow projected out and away from you. Then from that point you merely keep on going with the club, and, since it cannot go out any, it obviously must go upward, so, that's exactly what it does. But elevate the club with your arms and not by "breaking" your wrists. And the higher you go with your left arm the greater the sweep you will give the swing as a whole.

Arlington Golfers Play Woburn Rivals

The Arlington high school golf team will go to Woburn, this afternoon, to play the Woburn high golfers. The Arlington golfers, have been going strong this spring, and have lost only one match. They will take on the Brockton high golf team next Monday afternoon on the links of the Arlmont Country Club in Arlington Heights.

LYONS QUITS AS MEDFORD COACH

Anthony T. "Tony" Lyons, basketball coach, fine coach of the football squad and assistant physical director under Head Coach Hubber Collins, tendered his resignation to the Medford school committee, to take effect at the close of the present school year.

Lyons came to Medford from Brockton. He was selected as All-American football star by Walter Camp.

Medford always was successful on the basketball court while Lyons was coach. Last season they lost only to the Chelsea high team in the Tech tourney. At the present time Lyons is in Washington with the basketball team.

In 20 football games the Lyons-coached teams have suffered but two defeats.

While no formal announcement is being made by Mr. Lyons it is rumored he is headed for Lynn English. He has turned down flattering offers from Freeport Academy, Long Island, N. Y., and Colorado school of mines.

Curly Brown of Race Track Fame Is Dead

Glendale, Cal., May 5—The sports world—and more particularly the followers of the sport of kings—today were in mourning over the death here yesterday of Harry D. "Curly" Brown, multi-millionaire sportsman.

It was through his promotion that tracks were established at Havana, Cuba; Homewood, Ill.; Arlington, Chicago and Tia Juan, Mex. A son and grandson were at his bedside.

B. C.-IOWA MAY PLAY IN STADIUM

Although not much has been said about the Boston College-Iowa football game, proposed for the American Legion Convention in Boston next October, dickering is still going on and it looks like a sure thing, according to the A. A. offices at the Heights.

Dr. Ward of the American Legion has been handling arrangements and is trying to eradicate the minor hindrances that are holding up the settlement. He is expected to announce that the game has been settled in a short time.

The American Legion will then make a move to obtain the Harvard Stadium for the football game, which will be one of the biggest gridiron attractions that the Hub will have all next fall.

17,580 FANS SEE SONNY WIN

Los Angeles, May 5 (AP)—Gus Sonnenberg, claimant of the world's wrestling title, defeated Everett Marshall, La Junta (Col.) challenger, two out of three falls here tonight.

Before a crowd of 17,580 fans who paid $89,745.50 to see the contest Marshall won the first fall in 21 minutes 38 seconds by using his airplane spin hold.

Sonnenberg, however, came back and in 11 minutes 55 seconds had Marshall on the mat with a series of four successful flying tackles.

Sonnenberg took the third fall in 1 minute 22 seconds with another flying tackle. Sonnenberg missed one tackle and fell from the ring. He returned, however, in 12 seconds.

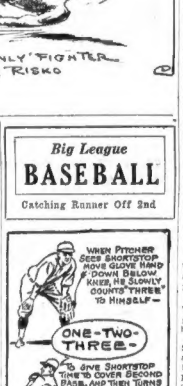
Big League BASEBALL

Catching Runner Off 2nd



WHEN PITCHER SEES SHORTSTOP MOVE GLOVE HAND TO CHARLEY HORSE KNEE, HE SLOWLY COUNTS THREE TO HIMSELF — ONE—TWO—THREE—
TO GIVE SHORTSTOP TIME TO COVER SECOND BASE, AND THEN TURNS AND THROWS
TRAPPING BASERUNNER ON 2 SECONDS
A. DeMAREE

By AL DEMAREE
Former Pitcher New York Giants

Catching a base runner off second base in a close game is often the difference between victory and defeat. If often breaks up "big" innings, started by the opposition, and tends to destroy their morale.

The shortstop allows the base runner to take an unusually big lead off the bag, by apparently ignoring him. Then, by a prearranged sign of moving his gloved hand below his knee, he signals the pitcher that he is going to dash for second base. The pitcher, who has been watching him from the corner of his eye, slowly counts "three" to himself, to give the shortstop time to reach the bag, wheels and throws without apparently looking.

By constant practice, the shortstop and pitcher can time the throw so that it reaches the bag as the exact instant the shortstop arrives.

When the play is executed properly it nabs many a base runner and saves many a game.

Scott to Fight Stribling June 1

Paris, May 6 (INS)—Phil Scott, British champion heavyweight boxer, has signed a contract to fight Young Stribling, American heavyweight, in London on June 2 it was announced here today by Jeff Dickson, American promoter.

The bout will be a twelve-round affair.

Vets Paired With Young Players at Winchester

To a large extent, the success of Winchester's team is due to the fine judgment used in pairing players. Instead of bracketing the strongest players, Winchester has paired steady and experienced veterans with each youngster.

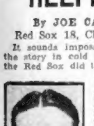
Chuck Cass, one of the best four ball players in the league, is playing with Wood, who is a sophomore at Harvard, while in the first match Arthur Corwin, who, for years was a reliable standby for Brae Burn, played with Charlie Eaton, the former junior champion of the state. Last week Eaton was teamed with Win Jackson another top notch five baller.

Red Sox, in Batting Orgy, Crush Cleveland, 18 to 3

FOUR INDIAN HURLERS HELPLESS

By JOE CASHMAN
Red Sox 18, Cleveland 3.

It sounds impossible, but that's the story in cold figures of what the Red Sox did to the Cleveland Indians in the fourth game after they had handed the first three contests to the visitors.



Joe Cashman

Exactly 14 of the 18 tallies were more or less useless as Milt Gaston limited the enemy to seven hits and three runs, but the boys remembered the ninth stanza of the Sabbath contest and made just as many hits and markers as they could.

It was the most glorious orgy of batting either Hub team has enjoyed in years and, unfortunately, the crowd that saw it was one of the smallest of the season.

Manager Wagner used twelve players and they all hit safely. The locals are supposed to be weak against southpaws, yet 13 of their hits were at the expense of Shaute and Miller, both portsiders.

Every move that Pilot Heinie made was successful. He inserted Cicero as a pinch hitter for Webb and the kid came through with a single to knock in two runs. He later knocked in a run with a sacrifice and another with a triple.

He put in Bill Sweeney to bat for Todt and the new first baseman connected for a single which drove in two runs and the next time up doubled to register another counter.

Bill Narlesky batted for Rhyne in the ninth and doubled to manufacture the Sox final run.

In their big fifth inning, 13 Sox went to bat, eight of them made hits, two walked and nine scored.

Todt opened with a single, advanced to second on a balk and scored on Rhyne's single. That ended Hudlin, who had started, and Shaute, making his first appearance of the season, came in. It was soon apparent why he hadn't been used before.

Red Sox Begin to Pile Up Runs

Berry greeted him with a single and after Gaston had forced Rhyne at third, Oliver came through with a single to score Berry.

Reeves was purposely passed and Cicero, batting for Webb, singled to send Gaston and Oliver home. Scarritt was thrown out and Regan was purposely passed, filling the sacks once more.

Singles by Morgan and Burnet, first two batters to face Gaston, a sacrifice by Jamieson and a single by Hodapp gave the enemy their first two runs. The other scores resulted of a drive over the clock by Goldman in the seventh.

It was the first time in days the Sox played errorless ball.

Rangers Pay $25,000 for Two Players

Vancouver, B. C., May 6 (AP)—Fran Patrick, owner of the Vancouver Lions, Pacific Coast Hockey League champions, announced today the sale of Jack Boothe, pet cent headed cent reice star, and Joe Jerwa, big defence ace, to the New York Rangers.

The Boston Bruins and the Rangers were both in the market for the pair, but they went to the highest bidder. It was reported the Rangers paid $25,000 for the players.

Beattie made his debut in professional hockey in Vancouver, coming from Edmonton amateur ranks in 1928. Jerwa also joined the Lions in 1928 after having played amateur hockey in Canmore, Alberta.

Diamond Pick-Ups

Tom Oliver made two singles in five times up in the 14th consecutive game in which he has hit safely.

He also showed that he is thinking, more of the club than himself, for, after failing to hit on his first two trips to the plate, he took two beautiful strikes while earning a walk in the fourth.

Bobby Reeves never looked better than against the Indians. He hit the ball hard, showed that his eyesight was O. K. by getting two walks and fielded sensationally.

His great speed in whipping the ball across the diamond saved the Sox on several occasions when the hosiers threatened and all his throws hit the target, something they don't always do. He will never be taken out of there again if he keeps on playing the way he began.

Little Joe Cicero also must have given Heinie Wagner something to think about. He came through with a single to score two runs in a pinch and later drove in runs with a sacrifice and a triple. Webb can hit and all that, but nobody could tell that apple any better than Joe did and he is a much better bet in the field than his rival for the right field berth.

If the Indians can stay in the flag hunt until their cripples are all fit again, they promise to make a great bid for the flag. With Fonseca, Sewell and Porter playing regularly, they will be 50 per cent stronger than they are at present.

Manager Roger Peckinpaugh of the Indians appears to be the greatest believer in the intentional pass who has boosted a big league ball club since the days when George Stallings was running the Braves. Peck is continually ordering his twirlers to walk batters purposely. It was the intentional pass that was responsible as much as anything else for Stallings' success and the same play may bring Peck a pennant. It can, if employed wisely.

Our old friend Dave "Sheriff" Harris, who had two trials with the Braves, will be here with the Chicago White Sox today. He isn't playing regularly, but he is coming through in great style as a pinch hitter and seems likely to stay up this time.

The White Sox will also display one of the most expensive trios in the history of baseball in Willie Kamm, third sacker; Chalmers Cissell, second-sacker, and Sneed Jolley, outfielder. Cissell cost $125,000, Kamm $100,000 and Jolley $50,000.

B. U. CRIPPLED FOR TUFTS TILT

With two pitchers crippled and the star outfielder out with a broken ankle, Boston University's nine will make a desperate attempt to avenge its earlier defeat in the hands of Tufts when the two meet at Tufts Oval, tomorrow afternoon.

Coach Gilmore's makeshift outfit will enter the game as underdogs because of no pitching strength. Bucky Weafer, his hurling ace, is out with a wrenched arm and "Lefty" Lojko, the Terriers' second best bet, has a bad shoulder.

With these two out, Coach Gilmore will have to choose between Art Murphy and Harry Corsen. Both are right-handers and show great promise, but as yet are rather wild and only pitch well in spots.

It looks as though Murphy will get the assignment, however. He finished the last affair with the Jumbo and in two innings held them hitless.

The loss of Normie George has also hurt the team considerably. Normie was batting for .417 and was doing a neat job in the field.

TRIBE TRAILS REDS, 10-6, IN OPENER

Cincinnati, O., May 6—The Boston Braves didn't look so good in their local debut. After taking two out of three from the Pirates, Redland fans expected the visitors to look like world beaters against the lowly natives, but the Hub outfit appeared anything but classy while being beaten, 10 to 6.

The Howleymen cinched the game in the fifth inning when they scored five runs and drove Burleigh Grimes, Hub spitballer, who had held them to one run in the first four frames, to the showers.

The Braves put on a five-run rally in the sixth, but even that didn't scare the Reds. They went right out and added four more to their total in their half of the frame off "Lefty" Brandt.

The visitors scored off Benny Frey, who relieved Rec Lucas in the sixth. Berger, pinch-hitting for Moore, hit a homer with two on base, his fourth circuit drive of the season.

Horace Ford, a Somerville, Mass., boy, led the Reds with the stick, getting three doubles and a triple in five trips to the platter.

"Socks" Siebold and Pete Donahue are down as the opposing flingers in the second game of the series, this p. m.

NEW GROUPING OF 'H' JAYVEES

Seeking to strengthen the Harvard junior varsity crew, Coach Charlie Whiteside sent a new eight combination on the Charles today.

Tom Buckley, husky sophomore rower, was promoted to the jayvee eight from the third varsity shell. He takes the place of Everett Millard at No. 7.

Whiteside also tested out a new stroke in the third crew shell today, when Bob McKesson swapped seats with Morris Brownell, who is No. 2 with the thirds.

Long rows for conditioning work will be the order at Newell boat house for the remainder of this week. Whiteside hopes to take his eights into the Basin daily for time trials, but stated that his plans depended entirely upon the weather.

No change will be made in the varsity crew for the balance of the season, unless something unforeseen takes place.

American Ring Champion Tells of Early Struggles

JACK SHARKEY'S OWN LIFE STORY

By JACK SHARKEY
American Heavyweight Champion

Now I shall try and set down in order the story of my life, dealing in part with my career as a boxer.

I was born in Binghamton, N. Y., on October 26, 1902 which makes me 27 years of age. My father, mother and sister still make their home there, while I live with Mrs. Sharkey and our three children in Boston.

MY REAL NAME

I came from Lithuanian stock My original name was Josef Paul Cukoschay. In the navy they called me Rattling Ski. When I started boxing professionally I took the name of Jack Sharkey.

I called myself Jack after Jack Dempsey, whom I have always considered one of the greatest champions the ring game ever knew, while I took the Sharkey end of my name after Tom Sharkey, old time heavyweight, who, like myself, saw service in Uncle Sam's navy.

The name Jack Sharkey caught on immediately. It was so popular with me that I petitioned the court in Boston to have it made my legal name. My petition was granted.

I spent my boyhood days with my parents at Binghamton, N. Y. It was my mother who formed the code of living which has enabled me to reach the physical perfection which has brought me fame and fortune in the ring.

SCHOOL DAYS

As a boy, I attended school in Binghamton. I completed the third grade in the Oak at public school and then transferred to St Patrick's Parochial school, where I was taught by the good nuns.

I was in the eighth grade at the age of 12 when my father became ill and mother nursed him. My sister was younger than myself and was attending school.

In a few months father's slim savings were gone. It was necessary for me to bid goodbye to my classroom and go out into the world in quest of work

I secured employment in a shoe factory, where I tacked soles and assembled lasts.

At the age of 14, I quit my bench in the shoe factory for a pick and shovel in a construction gang that was building a dike in the river bed at Binghamton back in 1916-17.

Meanwhile, the God of War was in the saddle. My blood tingled as I read the stories of battles on land and adventure at sea.

Uncle Sam then cast his lot on the side of the Allies. I was then 15 years of age. By this time my father had regained his health sufficiently to provide for mother I felt my service allotment would take care of my sister.

TRIED TO ENLIST

With my heart beating wildly at the thoughts of adventure overseas, I presented myself at an army recruiting station

"Too young," was the verdict of the recruiting sergeant after I told him I was 15 years of age.

I then tried every other branch of the service, but was always turned away on account of my youth.

Everywhere the bands were playing, soldiers marching

I could not bear to remain in Binghamton swinging a pick under such conditions So, unknown to the folks at home, I set off for Bridgeport, Ct., which I had been told was a great war base for munition plants

Arriving at Bridgeport, I was hungry and penniless. It was not long before I had secured a job on a coal barge shoveling coal. I worked eight hours a day, for which I received $30 a week.

From Bridgeport I traveled to New York by passenger coach, worked for a short time in New Jersey and then returned to my home in Binghamton. The close of the war found me at a bench in a shoe factory at Binghamton.

JOINS NAVY

In 1920, I presented myself at a naval recruiting station and was accepted

I give the navy full credit for developing me as an athlete. My early introduction to hard labor at the dike at Binghamton and on the coal barge at Bridgeport had placed the foundation for a strong body, but the more scientific training I received in the navy brought out my athletic ability

My first bout in the navy was staged off the Azores. I was pitted against a 190-pound Negro by the name of Green. I knocked Green out in a round.

I was later transferred to the Rochester, which had quite a few boxers aboard. From the Rochester I went to the Denver.

It was while on the Denver that I won my way into the all-navy finals in the final bout. I was pitted against Biff Crowley For six rounds the milling was furious.

The judges disagreed and an extra round was ordered. The verdict went to Crowley.

(In tomorrow's article of Jack Sharkey's remarkable life story he will tell how he started boxing as a professional and of his ring experiences following his discharge from the navy.)

NEW LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED

Marlboro, May 6—The Blackstone Valley Baseball League was officially organized last night when delegates from Milford, Whitinsville, Marlboro, Worcester and Framingham met at the high school and elected officers.

Paul Williams of Milford was elected president; Walter Schuster of Douglas, vice-president; Henry S. Crawford of Whitinsville, secretary, and Joseph Carey of Milford, auditor

The five-team circuit will include Milford, Whitinsville, Worcester, Framingham and Marlboro. East Douglas has decided not to operate and Framingham was voted to replace Clinton

Walter Brown, secretary of the Boston Tiger hockey team, will manage the Framingham team

George W. Jones of Worcester was appointed to draw up a 30-game schedule subject to the approval of the league officers. The teams will play two games a week, one twilight and the other on Saturday

The season will open May 24 and finish on Labor Day.

Horton Smith Has a 74 at Southport

Southport, Eng., May 6 (INS)—Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., only American contender in the $7500 British professional golf tournament, turned in a tidy 74 in the first qualifying round played over the Birkdale course today.

Smith's score was among the lowest of those turned in by the 150 entries completing the cream of Britain's professional golfers

His card:

Out . . . 3 4 4 5 4 4 3 4 5—36
In . . . 5 3 4 3 5 5 5 5 4—38

The hundred players turning in lowest scores after two qualifying rounds on four different courses today will play two rounds each at Birkdale on Thursday and Friday.

Canzoneri Gives Carlton a Lesson

New York, May 6 (INS)—Tony Canzoneri, New York lightweight and former world's featherweight champion, was a few hundred dollars richer today and at the same time had expended little energy.

The New York Italian merely breezed to a 10-round victory last night over Harry Carlton of Jersey City.

McCarthy to Battle Christner Monday

Pat McCarthy, Roxbury Adonis, was signed yesterday to clash with Meyers Wilson K. O. Christner of Akron, O., in the 10-round feature bout at the Garden next Monday night.

The Diamond Belt eliminations for the championships of New England will be continued, with three six-rounders among five weights and perhaps six four-rounders among lightweights. The entire card will consist of more than 50 rounds of fighting.

N. E. A. A. U. Diving Championships at Y

One of the most closely contested diving contests seen in this section in a long time is assured for the Boston Swimming Association swimming meet in the Boston Y. M. C. A. Saturday evening, when competition is held for the New England A. A. A. U. men's senior diving crown

There will be also two New England title events for women besides 100-yard freestyle handicap and 300-yard freestyle invitation, both for men.

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

SCHOOLBOY ACE

Vito Tamulis, Boston English high hurling star, who has averaged about 10 strikeouts a game. He may pitch against Jamaica Plain today.

Between You and Me

Schmeling Much Like Dempsey, German Sure of Winning Would Like to Fight Tunney

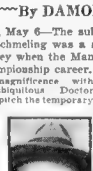
By DAMON RUNYON

New York, May 6—The suite in the Hotel Commodore occupied by Max Schmeling was a striking reminder of the quarters of Jack Dempsey when the Manassa Man Mauler was in the heydey of his championship career.

The same magnificence with which the ubiquitous Doctor Kearns used to pitch the temporary camps of Dempsey was there

A big parlor and a string of connecting rooms very costly to inhabit.

Waiters constantly moving in and out with pitchers of ice water, and trays of edibles A dozen great wardrobe trunks scattered around. The telephones ringing in all the different rooms at once.



Damon Runyon

And in the rooms were the corresponding characters that used to infest the premises wherever and whenever the one-time heavyweight champion of the world set up his tepee

Some of these characters were indeed the very same. There was Prof. William McCarney, the colored man of fistiana, for example all dressed up in his Sunday best and suave, and smiling, and gloriously reminiscent, as he toiled in the depths of a big settee.

Even Joe Benjamin, the shiek of the San Joaquin, was there. He had called with his friend Mendel the golf pants maker, to pay his respects. The California light weight was a fixture of the Dempsey entourage in the old days.

Of course, the ubiquitous Dr Kearns was not on hand, but talking place in the east was Joe Jacobs, with a huge cigar in his kisser, volubly guarding all comers, and retiring at intervals to the bath room for important conferences with some.

THIS LAST was a peculiarly Dempseyesque touch. No one was ever able to find privacy in any of the many rooms that Kearns always had at Dempsey's disposal in a hotel.

Hard to Find Privacy in Champ's Suite

Only the sanctity of the bath room afforded freedom from eavesdroppers. Many an important deal in Dempsey's behalf was consummated in the bath room by Dr Kearns. 'Twas in the bath room of your correspondent's apartment in the Great Falls Hotel, in fact, that the conference was held which decided the fate of the Dempsey-Gibbons battle at Shelby.

A little Cachuud was rolling around the floor of the Schmeling suite Sunday. He had brought it over from Germany for a newspaper friend.

You could kick up a purp somewhere around Dempsey's rooms. A score of newspapermen were talking in the Black Uhlan of the Rhine —or at least they talked to him when he held still for a minute.

He was up and down, and back and forth, shaking hands with newcomers and answering the telephone, or just pacing the carpet with all the restlessness of the Dempsey of a few years ago.

"Hy, my!" remarked Joe Benjamin, glancing around at the mob. "It's just like the old days. And how that guy resembles Dempsey before Jack got his beezer lifted! I never saw anything like it. He moves around a room like Dempsey. He's got big hands like Dempsey. Well, if he can only fight as good as Dempsey when Dempsey was his age, I feel sorry for Sharkey."

Max Silent on Plans If He Wins Crown

Tom McArdle, the pudgy match maker of Madison Square Garden leaned against a table listening to the chatter. Frank Bruen, general manager of the Garden, called early to say hello, and incidentally to ask the Black Uhlan about fighting for the Garden corporation next year if Max wins the heavyweight title, a point on which Frank got no satisfaction

Mike Jacobs peered in for a moment. Herman Black, the big boss of Atlantic Highlands, sat with a pitcher of water at his elbow, from which he imbibed frequently.

Mushky Jackson the young trainer of gladiators, was acting as a sort of major domo, assisting the callers out of their coats, and into them

Schmeling's own trainer, Max Mahon, listened eagerly to the chatter, and said nothing. All day long a string of visitors passed through the rooms. It must have been something of a strain on the Black Uhlan, but he kept smiling cheerfully, and talking volubly in his broken English.

Max has an accent that reeks of the Rhineland, but it is easily understood after you get the hang of it.

Moreover, he quickly assimilates conversation addressed to him in English. In fact, he talks more English now than he does German, even to his German callers

When a business proposition is put to him in English, he has to revolve it around in his mind awhile, possibly to translate it into German for his own reflection, but for ordinary conversational purposes his English suffices.

He has a world of personality which is perhaps another way of saying charm His modesty is natural He loves the crowd as Dempsey loves it. He likes the bustle and stir in his hotel camp.

Around Tunney's diggings there was always an atmosphere of restraint. Around Sharkey there is a peculiar air of surliness, and even hostility. The Black Uhlan has that thing which is so rare in human beings, popular appeal.

Lynch Wins Third Victory Over Villa

Fall River, May 6—Billy Lynch of Providence scored his third straight win over Pancho Villa of New Bedford in an eight-round bout here last night before the largest gathering to turn out for a fistic program this season.

ENGLISH NINE PLAYS JAMAICA

English high plays Jamaica Plain today. Leo Daley's nine has gone along well this year with Vito Tamulis pitching, though the team is not very strong without the services of its mound ace.

If Tamulis flings this afternoon, Jamaica Plain batsmen will have a difficult time

Revere high plays at Lynn English today, while Country Day goes to Roxbury Latin, and Mechanic Arts clashes with Milton.

Three Catholic high school league games are listed for this afternoon. Immaculate Conception high plays at Cathedral. These two teams are tied in the cellar of the league, so the winner of the game will be one notch out of the bottom position

Our Lady's plays at St. Clement's. These teams are tied for the league lead, Our Lady's having won three and lost none, while St. Clement's has won two and lost none.

St Mary's high of Brookline, which has won three and lost none, plays Mission high in the third of the circuit contests. Mission has won a couple and dropped one and will try to push over the Brookline nine. Mission is strong and Bernie Kilroy's nine of St. Mary's high must play fast ball to win.

Monte Refuses to Join Max's Camp

Joe Monte, Brockton heavyweight, has turned down an offer to join Max Schmeling's training forces. Monte, who clashes with Al Friedman at Mechanics building next Monday night, is now training with Jack Sharkey.

FOUL BARRED IN TITLE BOUT

Detroit, May 6—The managers of Jackie Fields, who will defend his welterweight crown Friday night against Young Jack Thompson, San Francisco, have agreed to substitute a five-minute rest period for a decision in case either fighter is fouled

The Michigan boxing commission will meet here to consider such a ruling today.

The five-minute rest period for a fouled fighter, under the ruling sought, would be granted by the referee, Elmer "Slim" McClelland, only if the combatant and his seconds feel it is needed to recuperate from effects of the foul blow.

British Track Squad to Compete Here

The British Amateur Athletic Association has accepted the invitation of the American Amateur Athletic Union to a track meet following the British Empire games at Hamilton, Ont., in August. The meet, according to Daniel J. Ferris, secretary of the A. A. U., will be held at Chicago or Cambridge

The British will select their team on the basis of the Empire games while the Americans plan to choose their team following the national championships at Pittsburgh.

GOLD STAR SHIP RADIO PUT IN OFF TOMORROW

New York, May 6 (INS)—Gold Star mothers and widows, here today from all parts of the country, will sail tomorrow from Hoboken, N. J., on the first of a series of pilgrimages to the graves of Americans who died in France during the World War.

This afternoon at City Hall military ceremonies were held in honor of the presence of the war mothers and widows. A distinguished company of citizens, headed by Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee, took part in the ceremonies.

Later the pilgrims were escorted to their hotels where they were entertained with teas and receptions by the New York Gold Star organizations.

Tonight many actors and actresses will provide a continuous entertainment for the visitors until bedtime. Meanwhile there will be sight seeing trips.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

MEARS' PLANE

San Francisco, May 6 (US)—Out to beat the Graf Zeppelin, John Henry Mears, veteran globe circler, is here today. In his sleek, ultra stream-lined monoplane that proclaims itself full of speed and power, he jumped from Los Angeles to San Francisco in two hours and 50 minutes, bucking stiff head winds all the way and "deadheading" for many miles around cloud and fog areas.

Immediately on landing, the craft was wheeled into a hangar where a crew of men began installing its two-way radio equipment—a short wave set of some 6000-mile range, through which Mears will flash progress of his race to the nearest newspapers.

About June 1 he will hop off from New York, thence to Newfoundland and across the Atlantic to Ireland. Then Berlin, Moscow, Vladivostok and across the Pacific to Alaska.

Mears, piloted by Charles La Motte will fly back to Los Angeles today and thence to New York.

President's Guest

HOOVER GREETS HONEYMOONERS

Washington, May 6 (US)—Washington's spring blossoms formed a delightful setting for the crowded 12-hour honeymoon visit of Mr. and Mrs. David O. Selznick of Hollywood, who were the guests of President and Mrs. Hoover, at a White House dinner last night.

Into the brief space of a half-day the youthful couple crowded a breakfast given in their honor by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, a luncheon offered by the Chilean ambassador and his wife, and a visit to the U. S. Senate. The President's dinner was the final event in their program and, immediately afterwards, Mr. and Mrs. Selznick left for New York.

Mrs. Selznick was the former Irene Gladys Mayer, daughter of Louis B. Mayer of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios in Los Angeles. Selznick is a film producer, formerly of New York, but now living in California.

The marriage of Selznick and the former Miss Mayer was one of the most brilliant events of Hollywood. They were married last Tuesday at the Santa Monica home of Mr. and Mrs. Mayer.

After the transcontinental trip which brought them into the capital, Mr. and Mrs. Selznick will leave for Europe, Friday, on the Olympic.

The Chilean Ambassador and Madame De Davila was host at a luncheon for them at the embassy.

SEEK GUNMAN AFTER CRASH

Poking through the Reading-Andover woods with guns drawn, posse of Lawrence, Andover and Reading, with state police from the Reading barracks, scoured the section in a man hunt today following the ditching of a stolen car on the Andover-Turnpike.

The man is said by police to be John Oskosky, 20-year-old Lawrence youth, wanted by police of Bridgeport, Fairfield and Darien, Ct., for a series of auto thefts and holding up a Darien policeman and relieving him of his gun.

The wrecked auto is one owned by a Bridgeport doctor that was stolen after the chauffeur was beaten and stripped of his uniform.

Report of a passing motorist given to police indicated that the youth was wearing the uniform when he wrecked the car. He fled into the woods, the motorist said.

Corp. Sumner Matthes led a detail of officers from the state barracks at Reading to the scene and started a systematic search of the section. They were augmented by details from the other towns, many of whom are familiar with the man wanted.

Oskosky is said to be a member of the widely known Troy gang that operates in and about Worcester and over the State line into Connecticut.

Radio Station Is Saved From Fire

New York, May 6 (US)—Forest fires which have swept Long Island for two days, were under control after endangering the receiving station of the Radio Corporation south of Riverhead.

Officials of the station feared the flames would melt the ground cable by which messages received from Europe are sent to New York. Part of the corporations 1000 wires was burned, but the tall radio towers were not menaced.

Hub Man Jailed as Illegal "Doctor"

Los Angeles, May 6 (INS)—Charged with practicing medicine without a license, Charles Stuart, formerly of Boston, and his assistant, Rudy Morris of Seattle, were under arrest today. Stuart is known to radio listeners as the "Mystic Prince of Radioland."

CITY TO ESTABLISH MOTOR BOAT HARBOR

Anne Quick to Rush to Aid of Dolly

Bright-haired, vital, alive, young Anne Murdock had been three years at the Eaton Advertising Agency when her opportunity came—the opportunity to become Eaton's personal secretary. To work with a man of Lawrence Eaton's breadth and power was something to dream of; for Anne had ambitions beyond a suburban home with Ted O'Hara, who was on her own rung of the ladder. The only beauty Anne Murdock saw in her own home was that of her sister, Kathleen, who had lately deserted that home for a career in the chorus. But Eaton overhears a conversation between his secretary and young O'Hara, which leaves him wondering whether he may not have to surrender his efficient assistant to Cupid. Anne senses this and de-whatever of matrimony. Eaton sends Anne on a business trip to Chicago.

CHAPTER XXI

Shortly afterward, one night very late, the telephone in Anne's home shrilled alarmingly. Murdock answered it. It was for Anne and he called her.

Mrs. Murdock, coming to her door, demanded anxiously:

"What's wrong? Is it Kathleen? Or Jim? Is it one of the babies?"

Anne slipped into a kimono and went downstairs to the instrument.

"It's Dolly," a husky voice reached her.

"What is it?"

"I must see you at once."

"It's very late. Is anything the matter?"

"If you care anything about that kid sister of yours," Dolly told her, "you'd better step on the gas."

"I'll come," said Anne, and hung up the receiver.

She was trembling and she twisted one hand tightly within the other, trying to regain her composure.

Mrs. Murdock was asking, in despair:

"Will she not answer me, my own daughter? What is the matter, Anne?"

"It's all right," Anne told her. She thought frantically, then lied easily. "It's Betty Howard. She's been taken ill and is alone—so I'm going to town at once. I'll stay the rest of the night with her."

"Poor child," Mr. Murdock commiserated, all sympathy and relief. She liked Betty—but, thank heavens, one of her own was not threatened!

Anne dressed and Mrs. Murdock fluttering about, nearly drove her mad.

"Here are your shoes. Aren't you going to brush your hair? I've chicken broth in the icebox. Take a jar. Tell the girl I'll come and look after her tomorrow in case she has no one."

Anne refused the broth and evaded all her mother's questions. Shortly afterward she stepped out into the eerie night and shivered at the first touch of a chilly wind.

It was after 1 o'clock when she knocked at Dolly Davis' door, and Dolly, fully dressed, opened it. Dolly was haggard, but her eyes were over-bright.

"So you're here," she said, with some hostility. "You've had time to go to St. Louis and back."

"I came immediately," Anne said. "What has happened?"

"Nothing yet. Only your precious Kathleen is planning to run away with Georgie—that's all. I found a note from her in some clothes I was sending to the cleaners," Dolly said bitterly. Then she laughed as she saw Anne's expression. "Don't look so upset. He lives here most of the time—and on me."

Anne sat down. She rarely smoked, but now if ever she needed something to steady her nerves. She reached out for a cigarette and lighted it, her fingers shaking.

Dolly flung herself into a deep chair and began to talk incoherently.

"After all I've done for him, the little rat!" she said, and proceeded for three minutes to inform Anne what she thought of George.

Anne listened, fascinated. Dolly's mouth was painted in likeness of a curved red bow, and from that bow the black curses, poison-tipped, were released like little arrows.

When that was over, Dolly said sullenly:

"I love him. I've fed and clothed him, and I despise him—and I love him so much that I'd kill myself for him tomorrow. I will kill myself—I'll haunt him all the days of his worthless life!"

She began to cry, making no effort to stem the tears and the hoarse sobs.

Ann rose and passed through the untidy living room into the bedroom and bathroom. She hunted in the medicine closet, stained and dusty, and found a bottle containing scrolls of ammonia. She measured a dose and returned to Dolly, who was still crying.

"Drink this!" Anne ordered quietly.

How to find Kathleen? How to stop her? How to make this pitiful, hysterical woman talk sense?

Dolly pushed the glass aside.

"Take that stuff away! Get me a drink—out of the cellaret!"

Anne removed the medicine and poured a straight dose of whisky. Dolly drank it, wiping her mouth with the back of her hand. The rouge came away in a long crim-

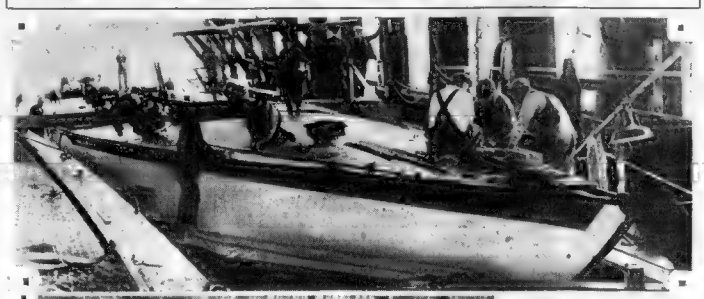
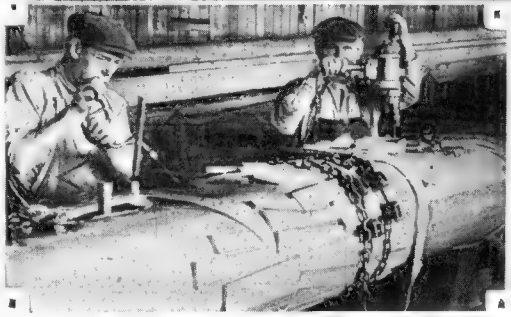
The Whirlwind Will Slide to Sea Tomorrow





Working on the spar of the Whirlwind, at the Lawley shipyard. These two brothers, Gus and William Mattson, have been building water crafts for years. (Staff photos.)

From the ways of Lawley's at Neponset, at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning the New York owned Whirlwind will slide into the water. Conditioning for the cup defender races will be started at once.

LAUNCH RACING CRAFT HERE

Nearly $1,000,000 in cup defenders will slide down the ways at Neponset this week when the Boston-owned Yankee and the New York entry Whirlwind take to the water at Lawley's.

The Whirlwind is scheduled to dip into the high tide tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock and the Yankee will take to the briny Saturday, according to present plans.

FINANCED IN HUB

The Yankee, financed by a committee of Boston business men is finished with a beautiful bronze plate hull and a double diagonal deck.

She measure 126 feet over all with an 83 foot waterline. Her draft is 14 feet, her beam measures 22 feet and an 80-ton lead ballast is required when she is in racing trim.

BOTH CARRY 23 CREW

The Whirlwind measure 130 feet over all with a 21.6 foot beam, 15.6 draft and 86 foot waterline. She is equipped with a 73-ton keel and will be sloop rigged with a mast 152 feet above deck.

The Yankee will be in command of Capt. Gus Olsen, formerly in the cup defender Advance, and the Whirlwind will be skippered by Capt. John Meur. Both craft will carry a crew of 23 men in addition to officers.

MAYOR CITES SAFETY OF WATER

Sees Vast Growth in Sailing as a Pleasure; Big Exposition Set for 1931

Taking cognizance of the increasing popularity of water travel, Mayor Curley toda announced that plans are being shaped for a motor boat anchorage and landing in Pleasure Bay, at the exertme end of the Strandway, South Boston.

There will be a parking space for automobiles nearby and arrangements will be made for the convenience of boat owners who will use the landing as a point of transfer from their craft to automobiles.

"Because of the crowded highways, the waterways are becoming very valuable and travel by boat exceeding popular," the mayor said.

"The boat-building plants situated along Dorchester Bay, in Boston and Atlantic, are booming, turning out craft varying in price from an extremely low figure to $1,000,000.

"The South Boston waterfront on summer days presents a view to the traveler along the shore of more pleasure boats than may be seen at any other place in the world, not excepting the famous port of Ostend."

Next year the Boston Industrial Exposition will take place in that district, at Columbus Park. This exposition was originally planned for this year but the mayor announced today that due to lack of time for preparation it has been thought advisable to hold it in 1931 instead.

On or about June 11 of this year the Kearsarge Naval Veterans will dedicate a memorial on the Strandway, near the headhouse, at City Point, commemorating the service of American sailors in all wars. The memorial will consist of an anchor from one of the modern fighting ships with a bronze tablet.

Chemical Explosion Panic

$66,300 PAVING ORDER SIGNED

Papers were signed today by Mayor Curley authorizing Public Works Commissioner Joseph H. Rourke to pave 11 streets with asphalt and granite blocks, at a cost of $66,300.

The work will be done by city employes, Commissioner Rourke supervising the construction. Following are the streets and the cost of the surfacing:

West Roxbury, Mountview st., asphalt, $4000; Mt. Vernon st., asphalt, $7500; Florence st., asphalt, $11,000. Brighton Pratt st., asphalt, $3200. Dorchester, Willow ct., asphalt, $1600; Clapp st. asphalt $2800. East Boston, Boardman st., asphalt, $2500. Hyde Park, Sunnyside st., asphalt $4700. South Boston, S st., granit blocks, $3000. Charlestown, Brigham ave., granite blocks $2500; Elm st., granite blocks, $3500.

PROTESTS NEW AIR LINE

Protest against the sanctioning of another airline, and banning all commercial soliciting at Boston airport, was made today by Harry D. Copland, manager of the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service.

According to Copland, the Curtiss-Wright company, as a result of this ban, is in the position of a company that has invested $200,00 at the airport only to discover that "we have contributed $200,000 to the appointment of a beautiful park."

The Curtiss-Wright manager asserted that at present 80 minutes are taken out of the flying day to permit safe landing and take-off of Colonial Air Line passenger and mail planes.

Lose-Pound-a-Week Diet

DIET NO. 19

A safe and sane diet, which should reduce weight at the rate of one pound a week, has been prepared by Dr. A. I. Ringer, consultant of metabolism for the Medical Information Bureau of the New York Academy of Medicine. The menus appear daily in the Boston Evening American. Here is the 19th day's menu for tomorrow:

BREAKFAST
Orange juice
Two poached eggs
Thin slice of bread

LUNCH
Oysters
Tomato salad (without dressing)
String beans
One baked potato
Coffee, one cup, with milk (no sugar)

DINNER
One plate of lentil soup
Moderate portion of Roast duck
Red cabbage salad (without dressing)
Two tablespoonfuls of Lima beans
Thin slice of bread

Diet Hints

If you want to substitute cake for bread in your reducing diet, you may do so. But eat plain cake, without frosting. And be sure not to take both cake and bread at the same meal.

You may eat any meat or fish you like—if you eat a moderate portion. White bread, rye and graham all contain approximately the same amount of carbohydrate. Your choice is left to your own taste. Ordinary biscuits, rolls or muffins may be substituted for bread, in equal amounts.

Dry biscuits must be taken more cautiously, because they are dry and contain more carbohydrate. Fruits may be "dressed up" in various ways, as fruit cocktails or fruit jello. But don't take cream and sugar with your fruits.

The desperate help problem is solved by taking a hitherto apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

Jewish Juniors to Present Operetta

"The Red Mill," operetta of Victor Herbert, will be presented at the Boston Opera House tonight by the Boston Council of Jewish Juniors. The production is in charge of a committee headed by Ernest A. Gordon. Other members are Falk Nathan, Kay Slin, Aaron S. Bloom, Betty Gorfinkle, Joseph Saklad and Sidney Frank.

The cast, which is supported by a chorus of 50, includes Richard Feldman, Walter Hamburger, Emily Jackson, Ethyl Goldberg, Phoebe Woolf, Esther Herman, Joseph Kolodney, David Gallant, Raymond Miranda, Matthew Brown, Harry Ladin and Charles Pearlman. Fred erick Seidler will do several specialty dances.

Favors So. Boston Grain Elevator Plan

The resolve calling for an investigation of the proposal to have the State erect a grain elevator on the South Boston harbor front, today received a favorable report from the Senate Ways and Means committee.

The project has been urged by both Governor Allen and Mayor Curley as a move to re-establish Boston as a great grain shipping center.

Quilt With 1100 Names for Pastor

A quilt, embroidered by hand with 1100 names of persons who paid 10 cents each for the privilege will be presented tonight to the Rev. H. Arthur Keinen, pastor of the West Roxbury Congregational Church. The quilt was made by Mrs. George H. R. Bailey of 8 Alarie st., West Roxbury, as one means of raising money for the church.

SCHOOL BODY TO AID JOBLESS

In an effort to relieve unemployment in Boston, the school committee at its meeting last night urged an immediate start on the 1,30 building program, with employment of local labor at standard wages and the use of home products.

A motion to that effect submitted by Dr. Joseph V. Lyons was unanimously adopted. It read:

"Inasmuch as the labor situation is critical and inasmuch as the portable situation needs immediate relief, a special consideration should be given to the school building program in an effort to aid as much as possible these deplorable conditions, and the following motion is submitted for adoption.

"That the school committee shall herewith request the State Legislature, the Mayor of Boston, the city council, the finance commission and the board of commissioners of school buildings to co-operate in every possible way with the school committee in an effort to commence work immediately on the 1930 school building program.

"Further delay will tend only to create hardships and show its effect on the economic conditions relating to the citizens and business interests of Boston, and that the builders shall be ordered to comply strictly with the general laws and all other rules and regulations in regard to the employment of citizens and local labor, and standard and customary wages, and furthermore that such a policy shall be extended to include the use of homemade products as far as possible where equal to the standards required."

The report of Business Manager Alexander B. Sullivan, submitted and accepted at the meeting, showed a total expenditure for all school purposes during the first four months of the current year of $5,938,930.83.

DELAY OF ART COMMISSION THREATENS SEN. LODGE MEMORIAL

TIME LIMIT OF 2 YEARS NEARLY UP

$30,000 Appropriation to Be Defaulted Unless Speedy Action Is Taken

A storm, rivaling in intensity that which arose over the years of delay in hanging the portrait of former Governor David I. Walsh at the State House, today gathered around the State art commission in connection with a memorial to the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge ordered by the Legislature in 1928 and the plans of which have not even been submitted.

Under the general laws, an "appropriation for any purpose other than ordinary revenue shall not be available for more than two years after the date of the appropriation, except that payments may be made thereafter to fulfill contracts and other obligations entered into within the said two years."

MAY BE DEFAULTED

This means that unless the art commission gets busy before July 25, two years after the date of the resolve calling for the memorial, the $30,000 appropriation for the project will go by default.

Charles R. Greco, architect member of the art commission, said he may have two plans drawn up will probably be sent to the governor and council this week. One, he declared, is within the $30,000 alloted. The other exceeds that amount.

The original petitioner for the memorial was Representative Slater Washburn of Worcester. The resolve filed by him was adopted in 1927.

FOOT PATH URGED

The art commission on December 1, 1927, recommended a memorial path with gates, a footway to connect Mt. Vernon st. with Beacon st. along the western side of the State House and across the capitol grounds for a distance of 300 feet. The estimated cost of this plan was $60,000.

As a result of criticism of this plan a new resolve was passed and approved by Governor Fuller July 25, 1928, with an appropriation limit of $30,000. The money was also included in the general appropriation bill for that year.

As the resolve specifically states that the memorial be recommended by the art commission, the Governor and Council, in the absence of such recommendation, have been unable to proceed with the work.

Medford Announces Dates for Pageant

Medford's tercentenary committee at its meeting last night definitely settled upon dates for the Medford pageant. It will be given on the Brooks estate, Grove st., West Medford, near the Winchester line on June 23, 24, 25, 30 and July 1 and 2. There will be two thousand seats available each night, of which four thousand seats will be reserved.

The pageant was written by Mrs. Richard B. Coolidge, wife of ex-Mayor Coolidge, and is being directed by Leslie R. Carey of the dramatic department at Medford high school. Nearly three thousand people will take part.

Road Oil Contract Goes to Standard Co.

'MIDNIGHT' SAFE AT HOME AGAIN

"It certainly pays to advertise."

In cat language, "Midnight," the mystery Arlington cat, murmured just that today when she was returned to her owner after her first "showing" to the public in the Boston Evening American.

Midnight was found last January rescued from a cold bunk in a snowdrift by Mrs. W. C. Swicker at 8 Eleanor rd., Arlington.

Yesterday Midnight got some publicity in this newspaper, telling of his—or her—plight and today William P. O'Connor, of 15 River st., Arlington, took the feline home.

Mrs. Swicker reported that O'Connor was but one of many who sought the cat both last night and today. From Dorchester the query of A. R. Danielson, of Codman Hill ave., reached this office. He planned on a trip to Arlington tonight but was notified the cat had found its home.

Another aspirant for ownership of Midnight was Mrs. Alice Smith of Goldsmith pk., Roxbury. She lost a cat answering the description of the lone Midnight was found last January.

Newton Adds to Tercentenary Fund

Despite vigorous opposition, the Newton Board of Aldermen last night authorized the appropriation of $4000 in addition to $15,000 already set aside for the city's tercentenary observance.

Alderman Edward H. Crowley opposed any further expenditure on the ground that the money could be better used to relieve unemployment and business depression. After a hot discussion the appropriation was authorized by a vote of 13 to 8.

SAY LYNN FIRM PASSES BOGUS BILL; IS BANKRUPT

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in federal court today against the R. Doria Leather Co. of Harbor st., Lynn, by three New York creditors.

The petitioning creditors are the Anglo-South American Trust Co. with a claim of $100,000 for money loaned; Simpson & McConnell, New York, Inc., $23,900 for hides and skins, and Balfour Williamson & Co., $17,900 for hides and skins.

The petition charges that on June 25 last, the Lynn concern committed an act of bankruptcy by paying $4,000 to Robert Deitz, with the alleged intent to prefer him over other creditors.

City Hall Sign Will Name Conventions

A large sign will be placed on the front of City Hall next Monday for the purpose of announcing from time to time what convention is in the city. There will be 500 conventions in all here this year. The sign will show two bell ringers and the words:

"The City of Boston, this Tercentenary year, welcomes within its gates the convention of——" with a blank for the name of the convention.

Real Signs of Spring— 'Skippers' at Work

In the spring a young man's fancy depends on the man—and spring is here for the yachtsmen who have been grooming for weeks at the yards of Lockery & Butts, boat builders, in Neponset.

While millions of dollars were being shaped during the winter in the nine of luxurious craft, most of whose owners will ride merely as passengers, the true yacht skippers have been working on their own craft in this and other yards and now are ready to ride with their boats into the water.

BIG FAMILY SPIRIT

Only in a small boat yard, where the big family idea prevails is the real "spring fever" apparent, a fever accompanied by tar and turpentine smells, by the glint of copper paint and glare of "flat white," by the hissing of sandpaper and the squealing of scrapers.

It is a leisurely bustle in the smaller boat yard where the "poor man's" yacht emerges from its winter swathing of canvas and tarpaulin, and where old friendships are renewed, experiences exchanged, and data on paint formulas and chains swapped.

YETS AT WORK

A casual cruise through the Lockery & Butts yard discloses rangy Tom Halpin, old-time runner at work on his launch Dolphin and Mike O'Leary, for many years secretary of the Massachusetts Democratic State Committee, tuning up his famous racing sloop Chewink.

There is Warren Spur, laundry expert and past commodore of the South Boston Yacht Club groaning his Mildred II, the motor cruiser he built and launched last year.

READY FOR WAVES

Over there are George Little and Harry Staples, attaches of the West Roxbury courthouse and leading lights of the Winthrop Yacht Club getting their boats ready for the first slap of the waves.

Bob Lake of bicycle racing fame is refitting his motor cruiser, recently acquired by his father, an expert in antique furniture.

Take a look around these boats and you find Frank Rivers and his Ranger, which is so carefully maintained that you can scratch a match if you dare in her bilge.

GOES TO N. Y.

Bert Green, New York magazine writer, is here with his Cavalier, which is well known in Boston waters but which he will take to New York this week.

On the Lavon S. Ames, old-time cutter, dismasted in last fall's race with Monarch, Leo Pistorino and Fred Gross are bossing their crew as the craft is outfitted.

And here is the Irene American family—all bosses—the Driscoll family of Chelsea, engaged in preparing their Sinner, glass-cabin launch, which inevitably hits the water on time despite the heated discussions of the best way to do it.

SHE STRETCHES

If you take a look at the sloop Urchin, you will find Al Lynch and his crew, led by Bo Mack, readying up their craft, smartest boat in Old Harbor.

Now here IS a boat and here IS a real yachtsman of the small yards. The 18-footer Oriental, possession of Frank Hurley, Boston schoolmaster, had been out of water two years, and the sloop, the sloop had outgrown her class by increasing her waterline length to 20 feet—sagging as she dried.

THEN SHRINKS

George Rolt, racing ace of the South Boston Yacht Club, undertook to put her back in her class although they told him it couldn't be done."

He steamed the whole boat sprung her overhangs back into place, and shortened her back into her class with wooden suspenders. Now they expect Oriental to clean up in her class this summer.

LOTS OF POWER

Over there is Bill Parker, engineer at the tercentenary, engaged with his motorboat Ada May, and over there is Bill Stuart, newspaper stereotyper, and his motor-cruiser.

Rear Commodore Bill McDonald flag officer of the South Boston Yacht Club, is prettying up his Margaret; Dr. Henry Hawkins working on his sailboat, Nonita, and Tom Denny and his Waterness now getting attention after Tom's reputed periodical trip to Cleveland for his tobacco.

Y. W. C. A. FUND HITS $200,000

The campaign of the Boston Y. W. C. A. or its $453,980 service continuation fund went over the $200,000 mark yesterday when workers turned in 1090 new contributions. This was the largest number reported on a single day since the campaign opened.

The teams of business girls and women captained by Mrs. Florence L. Pearl led all others reporting, with a total of 97 new pledges, amounting to $919. With two other workers, Mrs. Marcus Morton, Jr., and Miss Katherine Evatt, Mrs. Pearl shared the honor of winning membership in the Five Hundred Club, composed of the workers who have secured pledges totaling $500 or more.

Hospital Patient Is Robbed of $210

Some one stole $210 in York st. subway station today from the pocket of Angus MacAskill of Fayette st., Norfolk Downs, who was en route to Massachusetts general hospital for treatment.

The car was crowded, he told police, and at Park st. he was jostled and later discovered the cash was missing.

BOY CONFESSES SETTING FIRES IN WAKEFIELD

Twelve-Year-Old State Ward Liked to See the Engines Run, He Tells Police

Confessing he had set five fires in Wakefield, with damage totaling $17,000, Joseph N. Sousa, 12, a state ward, was arrested today by Wakefield police. His home is in Bennett st, Wakefield. He confessed in the presence of Asst. Fire Chief Edward Jacobs, after being taken into custody on an anonymous "tip" to police.

At a private hearing in Judge Davis' lobby of Malden court, young Sousa's case was continued until tomorrow for juvenile court and he was placed in custody of the state.

The boy said he set the fire because he liked to see the fire engines roll.

He said he set the first fire in a dump in the rear of the American Reed & Willow Co. in the afternoon and another in the rear of the Wakefield-Heywood Co. at night on April 28.

On May 1 he set a $2000 fire on the property of the Curley Bros. in Main st.

On May 3 he set fire to other barns on the Curley property. The loss was $14,000. Yesterday he set fire to a box car in the Boston & Maine Railroad yards and caused $1200 loss.

HUSBAND FOUND DEAD IN HOME

With gas flowing from an open jet, William A. Griffith, 38, of Moulton st., Charlestown, was found dead in a room on the second floor of his home early today.

Neighbors, smelling fumes, notified Patrolman William Gaskel of the City sq. station. He broke down the door and found Griffith on the bed.

Griffith's wife is in the surgical ward at City Hospital and has not been notified of her husband's death. Neighbors insist that death was accidental.

Seized as 'Dodger' After Auto Crash

After telling a policeman a man was a fool to run away following an auto accident, Irenus N. Abbott of Myrtle st., Wakefield, was arrested on that charge after a crash at Forrest and Main sts., Malden.

Abbott's car was in collision with that of Albert M. Thompson of Forest st.

When police saw Abbott telephoned them his car had been stolen, but that the call was received after the accident. Abbott, found at the scene, said his car had been operating the car in court he was held until Thursday.

Fireman's Widow to Get $600 Annually

The City Council yesterday voted $600 yearly to the widow of Frank H. Lasky, a member of the fire department, who dropped dead in 1927. His death was attributed to a cold contracted in the line of duty. Mayor Curley's veto, twice vetoed by former Mayor Nichols because of statements by physicians that Lasky's death was not due to this cause.

"King" in Court

Arraigned in Quincy Court yesterday for rum-running, James Vincent, alias James Vicciona, known in Quincy police as "New York Jimmy," king of Braintree's "Prickbottom," was held in $200 for his appearance on May 14.

HUGE ICEBERGS IN NORTH ATLANTIC MENACE OCEAN LINERS

2 DODGED BY KARLSRUHE ON TRIP HERE

Liner Battles Gale and Fog on Voyage; 163 Passengers Are Landed

Two monster icebergs were reported in the westbound steamship lane from Europe today with the arrival of the North German Lloyd steamer Karlsruhe at Commonwealth Pier.

The Karlsruhe landed 163 New England passengers here and then sailed for New York with others.

Capt. Heinrich Filsinger, skipper of the vessel, reported the icebergs to the U. S. Hydrographic Office at the Custom House and told of his narrow escape from the monsters.

En route to make a stop at Halifax, Capt. Filsinger took the southern route from Galway and encountered the berge in latitude 43.2 north, longitude 46.55 west, he said. Within a half hour after the danger was passed a heavy fog settled over the ship, a fog that would have meant disaster in the berg area. Last Thursday the ship ran into a full gale and battled it for 12 hours, Capt. Filsinger said.

Of the passengers landed here, Miss Gussie Pieper of LaGrange st., West Roxbury, returned from a six-months visit to her parents at Leipsic, Germany. She was accompanied by Gertrud Guttler. Others aboard included Henry Abraham, 17-year-old German boy, who intends to enter the University of New Hampshire.

Some Protection for Centre St. Folk

Action, plenty of action, is demonstrated in giving protection to pedestrians along Center st., in West Roxbury. Today, by order of Traffic Commissioner Joseph A. Conry, traffic signs were placed. The slow sign was placed at Corey st., the school sign at Hastings st. and danger signs at Park and Mt. Vernon sts. Other precautions will be installed. "Death Corner," at Center and Corey sts., was brought to attention of public by the Boston Evening American. Leo McGonigle, traffic engineer, was aided by John F. Hurley and Albert Shea. GUM MASSAGE LATEST EDICT FOR BEAUTY

Bay State Dentists See Big Benefits in Use of New Appliance

The secret of beauty today? Massage your gums instead of your cheeks for the foundation of real health and beauty, is being heralded by hundreds of dentists gathered today at the Copley-Plaza for the 66th annual convention of the Massachusetts Dental Society.

SPECIAL APPLIANCE

"Vanishing cream" for the gums eventually will replace face creams, some of the dentists believe. A special appliance for gum massage has been perfected and the keynote of the dental program hinges on the regular and systematic use of this and the toothbrush by children.

"Dentists have emphasized the evils of too soft foods for years and it hasn't helped very much with the receding gum troubles that lack of stimulation encourages," said Dr. W. Henry Grant. "So we no longer quarrel with modern diet but catapult a new for an artificial stimulant for the gums. This is the real foundation for health and beauty and should begin in early childhood and be carried out through life."

ELECT OFFICERS

A questionnaire is to be presented to the convention later in the week by Dr Norris Taylor of the national bureau of standards, Washington, D. C. Delegates are today engaged in clinical work, notably that of 3,500 tea drinkers conducted by Dr Edward F Sullivan of Boston.

Dr Frank A Dobarre of Boston was re-elected president of the society. Dr William H Gilpatrick was elected for next year. Dr Walter I Evans of Lowell was first vice president Dr Philip E Adams secretary and Dr. Joseph T. Paul treasurer.

FIELDS CORNER POLICE SWELL DWYER FUND

Dorchester Post, V. F. W., Sends a Check to Aid the Family of Slain Officer

Police of the Fields Corner station raised $546 or more than $5 per man, it was announced today, for the widow of their slain brother patrolman Franklin B Dwyer.

In making the announcement Capt. Michael Goff said all the men had not been interviewed and the total of the station may reach the $600 mark. It will be turned over to the Dwyer fund that already has reached the mark of $6891.

The announcement followed receipt of a check from Dorchester Post 498, Veterans of Foreign Wars

Dwyer, a veteran himself, was a member of the police post and a member of the department only two years when he was shot down in the rear of a Dorchester drug store.

The post's check was turned over to the Dorchester Board of Trade by the Boston Evening American. The board of trade is handling the fund and all contributions may be sent to its office, 1443 Dorchester ave., Dorchester.

While friends are endeavoring to swell the funds for the policeman's widow and children, a suspect was being questioned in Salem jail by Special Officers Martin Monahan and Edward Brabazon of the Fields Corner station.

Walter Cobbler, one of three men arrested at gun point Sunday morning, was suspect queried after the report of a missing finger from his left hand reached police

Fingerprints found on the cash register of the drug store indicated that one might was missing on the left hand of the man who robbed the store and killed the policeman.

Arrangements for a radio broadcast Sunday night were completed today with the assurance that Sergt David I Walsh and other speakers would lend their aid in raising funds for the family. A benefit show is also planned.

WARNS DRIVERS OF FIRE CAUSES

Registrar George A. Parker has suspended the license and registration of Manuel Amaral, 19, of Williams st., Dighton, who with three young men companions were found guilty in Taunton court of setting the destructive fire which on Sunday swept through part of Dighton.

After stating that Amaral and his companions had been given jail sentences, Parker said:

"As far as this office is concerned, drastic action will be taken against all motorists found guilty of maliciousness or carelessness in causing fires in any kind anywhere within the State. Automobilists must be particularly careful about throwing lighted cigars or cigarettes from their cars. They should make sure that their smokes have been completely extinguished before disposing of them.

"I should also take this opportunity to caution our motorists against driving to fires, thus congesting the highways and making the work of fire departments doubly difficult. The power of suspension and revocation will be used against all operators who violate those provisions of the law of the road which are intended to prevent such unwarranted interference with fire apparatus and hosemen."

SIGNS WARN OF TRAFFIC PERIL

Centre st., West Roxbury, breathed easier today following efforts of residents through the Boston Evening American to obtain traffic signs warning of dangerous localities.

Signs were posted by workers of the traffic commission under the direction of Traffic Engineer Leo McGonigle at four points along the street in positions that are expected to aid in the reduction of accidents

A warning sign "Slow" was set up at Corey and Center st., on the approach to one of the busiest and most dangerous spots in the section

At Hastings st., a sign telling of school children in the vicinity was posted and "Danger" signs were posted at Park st. and Mt Vernon st., where they meet Center st.

The signs are of black lettering on yellow background. They are expected to materially reduce the dangers so prevalent in the section.

There's a casket thief at large, police were informed today.

The Herrick Trucking Co., of 558 Columbia rd., Roxbury, reported that one of its trucks, carrying a casket, was taken from in front of its place of business, and later found abandoned in Rocky Hill ave, Roxbury.

The casket, brand new, was missing.

W. END HOUSE SEEKS FUNDS

A membership drive and a campaign for raising additional funds to endow a library for the West End House, Blossom st., were outlined at the second annual banquet of the West End House Alumni Association last night

The Rev. Christopher R. Eliot, guest of honor, was introduced by Toastmaster William H. Lichtenstein. In addressing the 400 members, he encouraged the work of the association.

"Direction is vastly better than speed," he said, "and the quality of one's services more important than the amount.

"Social service should also be recognized as far more important than sociability," he declared.

Other speakers were Joseph Blumenthal, Louis P. Kersten, David A. Howe, Roger Conant, Samuel Block and Bernard Lewis.

Officers elected for the year were William Lichtenstein, president; Dr. David A. Klein and Harold Horvitz, vice presidents; Charles Melrick, clerk, and Max S. Kershen, treasurer.

PLAN ROSE DAY FOR SATURDAY

"Rose Day," sponsored by the Soldiers and Sailors Club, is scheduled for Saturday.

Once again, with memories of the great war dimmed by more than 10 years, an ever generous public is asked to help the thousands who have not been able to forget. Those thousands, soldiers, sailors and marines, lie in government hospitals, suffering from its effects. For them the war is more than a memory

On May 10 roses will be sold throughout Boston and in nearby cities and towns for the relief of the veterans and for the maintenance of the club for service men off duty. Hundreds of women each month find a warm welcome at the Soldiers and Sailors Club. Sponsored by prominent Bostonians from every walk of life Rose Day has every indication of being the most pretentious and successful yet undertaken.

140 WAR PLANES COMING TO HUB

Plans were complete at Boston Airport today for reception on Thursday of the navy's 140 battle planes.

Sixty will leave Hampton Roads today and land late for the night at Anacostia air station. Tomorrow morning 30 more will take off from the Norfolk base to join the others over Washington and fly to New York.

Thursday at 9 a. m. all will start a 400-mile swing up the New England coast to Providence, Bridgeport, Boston and thence back by way of Hartford and Springfield. They are due over Boston at noon, daylight time

Sixty will land at Boston Airport to refuel. Others will land at Providence, Hartford and Springfield for the same purpose

Salem Committee Sees O'Neill Play

Mayor George J. Bates of Salem, who permitted the opening performance of Eugene O'Neill's play "Strange Interlude," having no personal objections to its presentation and feeling there were a number of people in the city who wished to see it, did not attend the first performance in the Empire Theatre.

However his citizens' committee of 12, whose names have not been revealed, were among the audience and will report to the mayor today. He will determine from this report whether he will permit continuance of the play in Salem.

Slattery Named to Board of Appeal

Mayor Curley has appointed Daniel G. Slattery to be a member of the board of appeal, in place of W. Franklin Burnham, whose term expired April 30, 1930. The Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange nominated Slattery for this position. The term is for a period of five years.

Miss Mary C Croswell, guardian of the confined lawyer, who brands Gross "an interloper," will appear in contest represented by Atty. Richard W. Hall.

Atty. Gross styles himself "next friend" of the confined attorney

Judge John M Maloney has been appointed master to hear evidence in a bill in equity brought against Gross which seeks to prevent him from starting further legal action First hearing will be held at Judge Maloney's Boston office at 9.30 o'clock Saturday morning

Milton Women Spend $900 in Health Work

Nearly $900 of funds raised by the Milton Woman's Club has been apportioned for public health work through the public health committee of the club during the past year, according to a report given by the chairman, Mrs John R. McPeake at the annual May breakfast yesterday.

Of this sum, $500 is to be given the town to start a tuberculosis clinic. Milk and luncheons have been provided in the public schools, and clothing and other necessities have been supplied needy families.

Given Prize Mackerel

Miss Eva Gelzinos, who was presented 7-pound mackerel, one of first catch of season brought to Boston today.

FIRST CATCH OF MACKEREL IN

With a grandpappy of the fish included, the first catch of mackerel for the local season was raced to Boston today by the schooner Fanny Powell, Capt. Benjamin Bazazia

The Powell's 12500 pounds were caught near Fire Island, off the Jersey coast and Capt. Bazazia said the fish seemed plentiful there

One measured 25½ inches and weighed more than seven pounds. It was presented to Miss Eva Gelzinis of Fourth st, South Boston, who welcomed the schooner on arrival.

The Fanny Powell was out of port only two and a half days

Cabinet Member for Labor Needs Urged

A secretary in the President's cabinet to divide or spread labor over industrial needs was urged today by William H. McMasters, speaking before the Rotary Club of Chelsea.

"If we had a secretary of equalization in the cabinet he might be able to spread labor over the industrial needs," he said. The hard thing about attempting to divide labor is that we are faced with the human equation. A man will lose his job and blame it onto conditions.

"Ask the same man to divide his time with another man who wants a job and he will yell at the injustice being done him."

13-Year Fight Gets Him Station Permit

After 84 unsuccessful attempts to secure a permit authorizing the erection of a gas station and garage on Watertown st., Newton, Jacob Kligman finally had his petition granted by the Newton Board of Aldermen at their meeting last night.

Kligman's successive endeavors had stretched over a period of 13 years. His son, Reuben Kligman, ran for the Board of Aldermen last year, making the granting of the permit his major issue. He was defeated.

YOUNG STAR OF 'ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT' SIGNED FOR NEW FILM

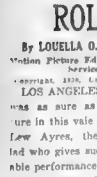
LEW AYRES IN GANG ROLE

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service

Copyright, 1930, Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, May 6 It was as sure as anything is sure in this vale of tears that Lew Ayres, the 20-year-old lad who gives such a remarkable performance in "All Quiet on the Western Front" would soon find himself another good job. Darryl Zanuck was lucky enough to be the first to put his name on the dotted line.

Perhaps you feel lucky is a strong word to use for a newcomer but after "All Quiet on the Western Front" catapults through the country this boy is going to be in demand more than any other young player his age. He will be starred in "Handful of Cloud" the underworld story which Archie Mayo is directing.



Louella O. Parsons

The name "Handful of Cloud" is attributed to Dion O'Banion, the Chicago florist, who was killed by gangsters, and it was first used to describe the killing of one of his pals.

ALL OF FILMLAND will watch what Universal will do with "Little Accident." There is a play obviously too unwholesome difficult to get on the screen, yet Universal must have prepared a scenario satisfactory to their organization or their new director, some changes in the original play. Anita Page has been borrowed from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for the feminine lead and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. will move over from First National to play opposite her. We look with respect upon any idea Universal may have these days after all they have done with "All Quiet on the Western Front." William J. Craft will direct "Little Accident."

TABLOID NEWS of some of the film folk includes the signing of Kenneth McKenna to play the juvenile lead in "The Sea Wolf." As soon as he finishes with Mary Pickford Al Santell, who will direct, is in San Francisco looking for a ship, and he is also looking for a leading lady. Kay Johnson has finished her work in "Madame Satan," and is going to one of the hot springs for a rest. Cecil De Mille has finished "Madame Satan," and is cruising on his yacht, also resting. Reginald Denny has gone to Lake Arrowhead, and Roland Young to Laguna

Norma Talmadge entertaining her family and a few close friends at luncheon at her beach house. Roger Davis reciting a poem he composed himself. Wanda Hawley, former motion picture star and at one time very well known, greeting old friends at the Brown Derby. Hallam Cooley week-ending at his cottage in Laguna Beach, Roland also there. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

CANNON STAR WAS IN WAR

A flash of flame—a burst of smoke—a loud report—a blow from hurtle madly through the air!. A gasp of mingled fear and admiration from the thousands within the "big top." And then from the net where he has alighted after being fired bodily from a huge cannon arises Hugo Zacchini, the originator and original "Human Projectile." This happens at each performance of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus which is appearing in Boston Garden

Hugo Zacchini

During the late World War, Zacchini served as a commissioned officer in the army of Italy. It was there that he conceived the idea of building his siege gun from which he is now hurled through the air twice daily.

Zacchini is 32 and has for 15 years been testing and experimenting with the cannon since was he badly injured.

'STRANGE INTERLUDE' OPENS BRIEF SALEM ENGAGEMENT

Boston theatergoers who were unable to see the Theater Guild's production of Eugene O'Neill's extraordinary nine-act drama Strange Interlude," when it played its record breaking engagement in Quincy act fall have an excellent opportunity this week in Salem where the play opened last evening at the Empire Theater. It begins each evening at 7:15 sharp with a 10-cent interval from 7:40 until 8 Automobile roads and special train service will take care of those who wish to see the play. This is the last New England engagement of "Strange Interlude" this season.

This drama boasts of another distinct the point of novelty, aside from its unusual starting hour The story of Nina Leeds the principal character with her three men, husband Sam, lover Darrell and friend Marsden whom Nina loves she has engaged, is told on two planes, so to speak, through the voiced mental reactions of the characters as well as through the ordinary meanings of the characters to one another There have been many of varied opinions about the play. Everybody is talking about it. Some discuss violently with O'Neill's philosophy and the conduct of the heroine, Nina the most discussed lady of the American stage today.

Elisabeth Risdon

All are agreed however that The Theater Guild has given a fine production.

The company which plays the Salem engagement has been seen in San Francisco, Chicago, Washington and many other cities. The cast includes Elisabeth Risdon as Nina; Ernest Glendinning as Dear Old Charlie; George Gaul as Dr. Darrell; Elaine Cordier as Sam Evans, and others

Miss Risdon gives a magnificent performance. Her Nina is more the sort of person O'Neill had in mind than the interpretations given the role by other actresses. Ernest Glendinning is another who does an outstanding piece of work as Dear Old Charlie. The whole cast is superb.

This production goes to New York next week. There will be but five more performances in Salem, no matinees, of course, because of the play's length Restaurants in the vicinity of the Empire Theater are serving special dinners to take care of the large audiences during intermission

'REDEMPTION' TOPS STATE PROGRAM

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

IF THERE HAS to be gloom, it's all to the cat's meow if joy be its partner. Smiles may go hand-in-hand with woe, or may come toe to heel; but as long as there are smiles, why worry? So at Loew's State this week, though depression be the keynote of the feature picture, "Redemption," abundant mirth lies in "Hot Dog," with an all-canine cast and which we account the best animal comedy to date. "Redemption" may please, or may bore you; but "Hot Dog" can be guaranteed to tickle your funny-bone.

RUSSIAN DRAMA does have its good points. But at its best, Tolstoi's "The Living Corpse" was depressing when seen on stage; and now on screen it is even more so. Ordinarily, a reviewer would find it puzzling to associate the name of such a able Fred Niblo with the direction of this photoplay; and yet something we recently read out of Hollywood may explain the mystery. The word was that Mr Niblo wanted to reflect the state of mind of the central character Fedya, played by John Gilbert. So Mr. Niblo called in a Russian expert, Alexander Tolubeff, whose task it was to "make depression the dominant note." He did. And how! There's hardly a chance to crack a smile at any time. Heavily the action goes, with millstones hung just about as heavily around the necks of the principal performers There is occasional life such as in the gypsy scenes which are excellently done, and with much spirit. But "Redemption" as a whole suffers from anemic trouble and naturally enough shows its effects.

MR. GILBERT may be said to have improved somewhat as to voice, yet not enough to make his audiences sit back with a sigh of satisfaction. He also fails to convince us that he is a Slav, or a Tolstoian "corpse." For instance in the first courtroom scene he acts with a great deal more vigor than his antecedent fits of illness would indicate to be his. Eleanor Boardman is only so-so; likewise Renee Adoree. Conrad Nagel is the most human of the important personages

THAT DOG COMEDY should most assuredly be enjoyed by all fans. It is a riot; lots of human beings we have seen couldn't do better. In its line it takes high place, much as that thrilling German film, "Killing the Killer." The Stage has other good features, including a notably fine Harriet Maxmilne Newsreel Mr Rodgers entertains at the organ, and the Stateonians play peppily

350 TO DANCE IN FESTIVAL

As the time draws near for the 42d annual May Festival, sponsored by Mrs. William S. Hutler, the advance sale of tickets for the afternoon and evening performances on Saturday, May 10, at Mechanics Building, indicates that the affair will be the most successful in its history

More than 350 dancers have been busily rehearsing and preparing for the event for past weeks, under the direction of Boston's staff of dancing instructors, Mrs. Lilla Vines Wyman For years Mrs. Wyman has devised and originated the festivals, and has herself trained the youth ful participants. Each season finds clever and unusual dance novelties on the program, with an elaborate ballet, "The Enchanted Pool," one of the high lights of this year's recital.

Every version of the dance, from the primitive folk dancing of foreign countries to the last word in tap dancing, will be represented. Some of those who will participate are Viola Breiding Evelyn Dixon, Gertrude Norris Mary Hagen, William Murphy, Burt Kelsey, Lillian Gomes, Cynthia Gano, Marion Zbrosky.

Joan Crawford does one of her best bits of acting in "Montana Moon," musical western offering which is being shown all this week at Loew's Orpheum. Supporting the star is a brilliant cast composed of John Mack Brown, Ricardo Cortez, Dorothy Sebastian, Karl Dane, Benny Rubin, and Cliff Edwards.

The film tells an interesting story of the outdoors. Seen as the daughter of a millionaire ranch owner, Miss Crawford gives an excellent performance

Bob Nelson, billed as "The Song a Minute Man," headlines this week's stellar vaudeville program with a pleasing list of original and popular melodies Nelson injects plenty of personality into his song numbers, and he receives good assistance from his accomplished pianist, Charles Drew. Johnnie Berkes ranks second best with a very amusing presentation of dancing and comedy. Harry Hayden and company are seen in a domestic comedy entitled "Take My Advice," with Lela Bliss and Glen Kent.

Myers, Lubow and Rice are well received in their own dancing revue, which includes a ballet of Perry Mansfield girls, led by the talented Sue St. John. The Aurora trio, comedy acrobats, open the bill with a clever novelty act.

THE OFFICE WIFE

By FAITE BALDWIN

son streak. She stared at it as if it were blood.

Anne said, still with forced repression:

"Let's talk quietly. When are they going? Where? Tell me everything you've found out at once!"

"I don't know," Dolly said suddenly. She jumped to her feet, rummaged in a desk drawer and returned with a three-cornered note which she flung onto Anne's lap. "Read that."

Anne read, eagerly yet reluctantly.

Darling (Kathleen had written) I know you love me. We'll go away and be happy somewhere together, and that woman will never bother you again . . .

Anne read no more. She dropped the note and commented:

"But she mentions no definite plan here."

"What of it? I haven't seen him all day; and he didn't come this evening. I was to meet him for dinner. I waited in front of Ching Lee's for an hour, then I had to go to the theater. I phoned you as soon as I got home."

Suddenly she leaned forward, her eyes and lips hard. "Could better take care of your sister," she warned. "Take care!"

Anne was conscious of sickness—a sickness of fear. She remembered certain sordid headlines in the tabloids. But anger took hers anger that anyone as beloved and basically sound and sweet as Katherine should be threatened by people like Dolly, like Georgie.

"I'll take care of her, all right!" she told the older woman. "Do you think for one moment I'll let her have anything to do with that slimy beast if I can help it?"

"Keep your tongue off him!" Dolly warned her. "I'm the only one that can run him down. He never raised his hand to her. She chased him—silly little fool—making eyes and cooing and philandering him on my account. What's she got that I haven't? Youth, perhaps, and better looks." Dolly answered her own question grudgingly. "Well, if I ever get my hands on her she won't look so pretty, and she'll feel a darned slight older!"

"Don't be an idiot," Anne ordered sharply. "Look here, have you anything to prove your—your relationship?"

"Relationship?" Dolly stared, and then with one of her sudden changes of mood laughed heartily. "Proof? He's got a hatchkey, if that's proof. And here"—she rolled up her sleeve and exhibited a bruise—"here is a fingerprint!"

"I can't take them to Kathleen," Anne told her, disgusted.

Dolly's eyes were enormous.

"Do you mean to tell me that she needs—proof? She must be more of a fool than I thought. Why doesn't she bring her rattle to rehearsals?" Dolly commented.

Anne rose. "I know it now," said Anne. "She's young and gullible. I don't know what your precious Georgie has told her, but whatever it is, it wasn't the truth. When she knows that she'll have no more to do with him."

"Look here," Dolly interrupted with ominous calm, "are you trying to tell me that George is not a good enough for your sister?"

"Well, is he?"

"He's a damn sight too good for her!" Dolly exclaimed passionately.

She stopped and looked at Anne. Anne was leaning back in her chair. Once was white as the dress of eyes, no longer disgusted or angry, were darkly pitying.

Dolly put out of her chair like an old woman. She came over to Anne and knelt down beside her, her arms flung across her lap.

"Help me to get him back again," she whimpered. "He's all I've got in the world—and I'm getting old."

Her rudded face worked nervously. Anne touched the hair and hated herself for the physical repulsion which accompanied the gesture. In this moment of victory over the hostility and rancor she had encountered on her entrance she felt no triumph, only a dull relief.

"You don't know what it is to lose something you care for," Dolly murmured, for what it is to be jealous. Something in my head. I'm half crazy! He's no good, Anne, but he's mine. I'm not much good either, but I want him back. He'll forget her she's been like this before, though never as bad."

"Get up, Dolly," Anne told her. "I'm going to see Kathleen now. It's late, but this is a serious matter. I'll straighten things out."

Dolly got to her feet, swaying on her ridiculous heels.

"I'll do anything," she promised. "I'll go away. I've a chance to get work in Chicago if I care for it; we're closing here. He'll go, too." Dolly's face hardened. "He'll have to go."

Anne put on her things and waited wearily for the door.

"You're a good kid," Dolly told her, following her. She stood close to the girl in the narrow hallway and Anne was enveloped in a scent of black orchid, stale cigarette smoke, cosmetics and liquor. "A good kid. I'm sorry I cut up rough." She held out her soft, hot hand. "Goodby," she said.

Anne held the hand a moment. "Goodby and good luck," she told the older woman.

Dolly answered, gripping the firm, slender fingers.

"Say, isn't life comic? Lissen, did I ever tell you I was married once? Yeah—to a trick bicycle rider. He's dead now—and dying was the only decent thing he ever did in his life. But he was luster say, 'Kid,' he uster say to me, 'you take a lot funnier falls in life than you do on the boards.' And he was right."

The door closed behind Anne. She leaned against it a moment, sick with fatigue, and from the apartment she had left she heard the shrill sound of Dolly's ironic laughter.

On her way to Kathleen's she thought of the other woman. It was impossible to condemn her, that tawdry, generous, passionate creature. Anne thought. If then, she worked out as I once planned.

She shuddered away from the mental pictures but forced herself to follow them to their conclusion. If she had not really fallen in love with Lawrence Eaton; if she had kept her head clear and her heart free if she had encouraged that one dangerous kiss to lead to other embraces; if she had surrendered herself for a little fleeting security; for a little easy satisfaction; if she had; if—if—if she had become eventually one of the regiment of women in which Dolly marched. . . .

She cried out and quickened her steps. She must forget Eaton; she must forget everything now but Kathleen and her immediate need. If she could tell Kathleen that she knew, that she had been tempted! And she faced the realization that in loving Eaton she was no less tempted than when she had fancied she did not deeply care for him.

2ND HUB-N. Y. AIR LINE PROPOSED

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

The possibility of Boston's second daily scheduled air line to New York becoming a reality before the end of the present month loomed today.

Official sanction, was given by Commissioner William P. Long and Airport Superintendent Albert L. Edson, of the proposal of Eastern Air Express to extend their Providence-New York line to Boston.

R. W. Diggs, operations manager for Eastern Air Express, subsidiary of General Aero Corp of American, visited Boston airport to survey the field for the possible extension of the line.

START MAY 15

After a conference with Edson and Long, Diggs declared that May 15 would be the starting date of the line if everything else was favorable.

Facilities for basing the tri-motored Ford monoplanes here must be taken care of as well as ticket agents, but all of the local flying companies will probably be lined up to take care of this end of the business.

LAND IN N. Y. CITY

Eastern Air Express has been operating the Providence-New York line for the past two months, landing at the new Central Air Terminal, Jackson Heights, New York, which is about 20 minutes from Times sq. It is the only airport within the limits of New York City.

Diggs declared that with Boston linked in with New York on his company's circuit, the next step will be to extend the service to Washington via, Philadelphia, bringing the Capitol within four hours and 15 minutes of Boston

EXTENSIONS LATER

The Washington extension will not be made until the Boston run is in operation for a month or so, in order to allow sufficient time for new ships to be delivered.

G. W. Emerson, chief pilot of the Providence line and Richard Botsford flew Diggs into Boston in one of the Fords, returning to Providence in time for the afternoon run.

BUTLER HITS AT BARUCH PLAN

William M. Butler, Republican candidate for United States senator, today told Brookline Kiwanis Club at Hotel Beaconsfield, his opposition to the proposal of Bernard Baruch of New York to revive wartime control of business.

"I much prefer the Hoover way," said Butler.

"I believe as much as anyone in keeping government out of competition with business, but I also believe whenever the government can aid business it is the duty of those who hold governmental office to give their best endeavors to aid in working for the material wellbeing of the country."

London Police Oust 13 Hunger Marchers

London, May 6 (AP)—Thirteen "hunger marchers," including two young women wearing red rosettes, stormed Prime Minister MacDonald's residence at 10 Downing st. today, but were turned away by the police.

They then entered the Ministry of Health and locked themselves in a reception room. The police ejected them. The marchers put another demonstration tomorrow near the tower of London. The second group marched to London May 1 as a protest against unemployment.

Award Maine Girl Aurora Beauty Title

Aurora, Ill. May 6 (INS)—Miss Thelma Crouse, 19, a sophomore of Crousseville, Me., was being congratulated today upon her election as the prettiest and most popular co-ed at Aurora College here. George Knightly of North Andover, Mass., was voted the most popular male student.

Soviets' Diplomat Arrested in Mexico

Mexico City, May 6 (AP)—Jacob Friedman, in charge of Soviet Russian diplomatic matters since the recent severance of relations, was arrested today and charged with Communistic activities. It was announced he would be deported within a week.

Customs Inspectors to Sail on Liners

Washington, May 6 (AP)—The Treasury today ordered seven customs inspectors to travel to Europe on the large liners sailing this month to gather information to simplify the examination of passengers on their return from abroad.

To Build Park on Boulder Dam Site

Washington, May 6 (AP)—Secretary Wilbur said today that approximately 4212 square miles of land had been temporarily withdrawn from settlement in the Boulder Dam region may be preserved as a public playground.

Port Officers to Greet All Ships

Masters of Vessels Will Be Aided in Conducting Business in Harbor

A new policy of having a Port Authority representative meet all incoming foreign vessels was put into force in Boston harbor yesterday.

Capt. George P. Lord, newest addition to the Port Authority staff, visited the Cedric and offered the official good-will of Boston.

Capt. Lord's duties will include similar visits to other ships to give captains information about Boston and help in other ways.

In the past scores of captains have had difficulty in locating the proper customs offices in which to file their papers.

The youthful graduate of the Massachusetts Nautical Training school will take maps, reports newspapers and other helpful material on board the ships.

Richard Parkhurst, secretary of the authority board, said special attention would be given to smaller vessels arriving from trade ports.

"Now there are a dozen or more passengers on board these boats," said Parkhurst, "but they do not receive the warm welcoming attention usually given to those big tourist liners. The men on these smaller vessels are generally engineers, mates and officers of the less important in their technical and commercial fields. A little courtesy to them may bring big returns to Boston."

Another Import Gain

Another of our articles on gains in imports deals with crude and refined oils. A decade ago, 5,000,000 tonnage imported was 268,037. Last year this number had swelled to 822,640 tons.

The Cub Again Reports

Our cub reporter followed Eddie Dalton, of the American Stevedoring Corp., yesterday and learned something about this busy young graduate of the longshoremen's school.

Says the cub

"Eddie is a modern kind of galley slave. The minute he boards a ship he makes the acquaintance of the cook. Eddie hasn't had to pay for a lunch for several weeks, and had to buy a new belt."

Longshoreman's Gazette

CARL MORRISON, Editor

Vol. 2 No. 5

For the second in our series of Who's Who in Boston Harbor," we present Nicholas McLaughlin, known as the champion of the interests of stevedoring companies.

Nicholas McLaughlin

"Nick" is the watchdog of the treasury of the B. A. Carroll Co.

This young man was for four years statistician for Rogers & Webb and also has been in the purchasing supplies department of the U. S. Shipping Board.

Nick is married and lives in Lynn, having migrated from East Boston. He is the proud father of a year-old boy who already shows many of his parent's characteristics.

"He's a chip off the old block," declared Nick.

McLaughlin is one of the crack bowlers of the steamship league, averaging 92.12 for the entire winter.

Some Safety Facts

The Gazette is making a study of port accidents in search of the harbor safety drive. We learned that during the first three days of this month there were 25 accidents. Of these, 16 were not serious, but the other nine involved man lo lost time and brought heavy expense to insurance firms and others.

Many of these accidents could have been avoided, as shown by the following analysis of the nine serious ones.

Case One—Man in hold has hook, which slips and cuts hand. Case Two—Man's elbow injured by heavy piece of lumber. Case Three—Block fell on man's foot. Case Four—Man hit on head by lump of falling coal. Case Five—Man fell from top of bales after rope slipped. Case Six—Man received several severe fractures when knocked 15 feet by cargo. Case Seven—Man sprained ankle stepping out of way of load. Case Eight—Man's leg was caught between two barrels. Case Nine—Barrel of rosin tipped over, causing lumber to strike man's left foot.

Special Expert Sailing

The American-Australian liner Papanui will make a special sailing from Boston about May 20, bound for ports in Australia and New Zealand. Ray Rodey of Dorsey, Lally & Co., Boston agent, hopes to obtain business for these ports. This is the very type of port commerce that the chamber and the mayor have been contending that the harbor needs.

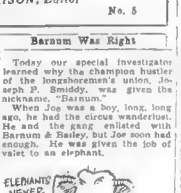
A Little Competition

P. T. Dwyer, cargo watchman for A. C. Lombard, and known as "Gus" is thinking of challenging Johnny Nolan, chief clerk of the same company, to a dancing contest. "Gus" is an amateur clog dancer and Johnny was formerly dance partner of Jack Donahue. Johnny is working on a new clog to be called, "Steamship Blues."

Barnum Was Right

Today our special investigator learned why the champion hustler of the longshoremen's union, Joseph P. Smiddy, was given the nickname, "Barnum."

When Joe was a boy, long, long ago, he had the circus wanderlust. He and the gang enlisted with Barnum & Bailey, but Joe soon had enough. He was given the job of valet to an elephant.



"I didn't dream that there was so much water in the pump," he confided to a pal.

Ever since, "Harnum" has stuck to Joe. Some day this week he is going to the circus at the Garden and try to pick out the elephant.

Have a "Recount"

Mike Buck, the "longshoreman deluxe," insists that the Gazette is in error in labelling Joe Ryan as the "Mayor of East Boston."

Says Mike:

"First, let me explain that the four sections each choose a mayor and then all four in turn select a Lord High Mayor to whom all others must bow in submission. This election is held on the first day of April every 100 years.

"The present High Lord Mayor is Manassas E. Bradley, the grand old war horse of Noddle Island, who is a special policeman at the new C dock at the South Boston fish pier.

"Our Joe Ryan is merely mayor of the first section of old Jefferies Point, and still has 75 years left in his term."

"A GIRL'S MOST ALLURING CHARM?"

Famous Screen Star say: "Lovely Skin"

Nothing attracts people as irresistibly as skin that is utterly soft and smooth. This is a secret every screen star knows.

For without it . . . say 45 Hollywood directors . . . no girl ever reaches stardom. The close-up demands skin that is beautiful—lasting as its loveliness.

Like 9 out of 10 charming screen stars, Virginia Maria Alba, of Fox Films, guards her skin with Lux Toilet Soap. "The lather is so soothing, it leaves my skin like velvet," she says.

Why Kotex gives you such a safe, secure feeling

How the scientific design and wonderful absorbency of this sanitary pad provide protection that lasts.

YOU will wonder, once you've used Kotex, how you ever managed to get along without it. For here is sanitary protection that is designed to fit; designed to protect comfortably for hours.

Naturally, one feels safe, secure —because Kotex is made of a marvelous absorbent called Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding. Cellucotton is a cellulose substance which, for sanitary purposes, performs the same function as the softest cotton, with five times the absorbency. That means five times the security.

Hospitals prefer it

Throughout America, the leading hospitals (85% of them) now use Kotex absorbent. This preference of hospital authorities should guide every woman's choice of sanitary protection.

What does one seek, besides quick, thorough absorbency? Softness, for one thing. And Kotex offers a lasting softness—not a mere surface downiness which can pack into chafing hardness.

Kotex is adjustable. You can remove layers of the filler. It may be worn on either side—doesn't have to be used in a certain specified way. You get the same, complete protection.

The fact that Kotex is so easily disposed of has changed the hygienic habits of millions of women the world over. Kotex Company, Chicago, Ill.

KOTEX IS SOFT...

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton yet absorbs 5 times as much.

3—Deodorizes, safely, thoroughly by special process.

4—Disposable, instantly, completely.

Pewter was not confined to making jugs and goblets and trenchers in the days of its general use a couple of centuries ago. The forms which it took imitated everything in the line of household silver and porcelain.

In the American colonies, wooden ware was the first product of the settlers. Later, they undertook the manufacture of eating utensils from pewter, then brass and finally pottery.

The flask shown today is pewter, and about 150 years old. It has a screw top and holds somewhat less than a pint. It is part of the pewter collection owned by A. J. Oettinger of Brookline.

In connection with the Massachusetts Tercentenary Year, the Boston Evening American is publishing daily photographs of interesting antiques. Owners of genuine antiques, particularly of Colonial or early American origin or of historic association are invited to forward photographs and records for publication. LOVE DREAM OF YOUTH DASHED BY PARENT

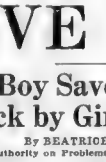
Ring, Boy Saved for, Tossed Back by Girl's Father

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

A boy or 23 has written me a letter and it seems to him that the end of the world—his world—has come. He was taking a course in English at a night school and fell head over heels in love with a stunning blond Norwegian girl. "She had a sort of golden beauty that made you think of a fairy princess," writes the young man and then goes on to tell me she was the cleverest girl student in the class. Beauty and brains—an unbeatable combination



Beatrice Fairfax

My correspondent had to take his love out in looking, as a brother, also a fellow student escorted her to and from the class And somehow the adoring youths — for there were several of them—were obliged to gaze and adore from afar

Then, after this looking and loving, with never a word exchanged, had gone on for a year, the young man made up his mind it was the beautiful Norwegian Brunhilde for him, or no one at all. And, believe it or not, he began saving to buy a ring He grew reckless as the result of his infatuation — denying himself the necessaries of life to save enough for an emerald ring for a girl to whom he had never spoken a word. For all he knew she might be unaware of his existence —but he was in love and had faith

Then the unexpected happened the instructor the must have been human and saw how things were—gave them the leading part in a play the class happened to be reading Discussing the business of the parts served as an introduction and the boy was so happy he "felt he must have died and gone to Heaven"

When they were off stage he found occasion to tell the girl just how much about her he was She did not seem at all surprised, she had known all along and was by no means indifferent. Young men who imagine they are able to conceal their feelings might do well to consider the young lady's foreknowledge. All along she knew the young man was in love with her but she didn't make a sign

He told her about the ring which she accepted as the most natural thing in the world. A week or two of delirious joy on the part of the young man, then he got a very civil note from her father, asking him to call. Full of hope, he went

And again the unexpected happened. The old gentleman laid him out in a manner worthy of Viking ancestors, he threatened to cane him if he ever spoke to the girl and he threw back at him the emerald ring. It seems that the girl was only 17, and the family didn't want her to look at a man for at least five years

And the man came darkened for my correspondent, who sat down and wrote me all about it wrote he was considering throwing the ring into the river, and he didn't care whether he lived or died

What this boy needs is courage and patience he seems to be very genuinely in love, was capable of sacrifice when he did without food and amusement to buy the ring, and he is ambitious enough to help out his education by attending evening classes—such a boy should go far Seventeen is very young for a girl to assume the responsibilities of marriage and one cannot wholly blame the Norwegian father for saying, though you wish for the young man's sake he had been a little more gentle

No, my dear young friend, life doesn't ring down the curtain at 21, no matter how badly we're hit If you grow tired of waiting for your beautiful Brunhilde, you'll probably be in and out of love half a dozen times before you settle down and marry. But I shouldn't be surprised if you got Brunhilde after all—you seem made of the stuff of real lovers.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

The Cause and Cure of Shingles

A reader in Ohio has asked me to write about shingles, that very painful malady. Of course, I am glad to do so shingles is the popular name for the disease known by doctors as "herpes zoster" or "zona" In some parts of the country it is called "vesicter." I suppose it was called "a shingles" because of the regularity of the red spots and blisters. Their arrangement is not unlike the regular overlapping of the shingles on a house.

The disease may occur in children, in young adults, or in the aged. In the case of old people it is a serious ailment and may persist for a long time.

It has uncomfortable symptoms It begins with pain, something like neuralgia. It may occur in the side, the neck, the shoulder, or on one side of the head.

The most common spot likely to be affected is the skin over the ribs on one side of the body. The pain follows the course of one of the nerves. The real trouble lies in the root of the nerve, although the disturbance is shown all along the course of the nerve. It usually starts at the spinal column and goes half around the body, like a half girdle

The eruption is in the form of vesicles or blisters as large as a pea or bean. It occurs in groups of three or four to 20 spots The surrounding skin is red, sensitive and intensely hot and puffy

The nerve which goes upward from the eyebrow to the crown of the head may be involved. This is a more serious thing The eye becomes inflamed and blisters may form on the front of the eyeball These may leave scars which affect the sight

Shingles used to be regarded as a disease due to exposure to cold or damp weather Nowadays the cause is looked for in infection from abscessed teeth, pussy gums, diseased tonsils or some intestinal or other infection.

The blisters should be protected from the rubbing of clothing. Alcohol may be applied but care must be used not to break the blisters Such applications relieve pain.

With the help of good food, sunlight and fresh air the health can be improved. Cod-liver oil is a good thing to take But you should follow the advice of your doctor. He will make a study of your case and treat it accordingly

The patient should remain in bed and keep from worrying and fretting While it lasts, the malady is a painful one and everything should be done to make the patient comfortable

Silk Suits Are Both Smart and Cool

By ANN ARDEN

(This Modern World, a department of fashions decorations and social customs.)

THE SILK SUIT, with pleated skirt and wrist length jacket, is smart and cool for the warm days soon to be with us. The jacket and knife pleated skirt of the Suzanne Talbot suit pictured are black satin. The sleeveless blouse, which may be worn tucked in or over is of shell pink with large round collar accented with row of buttons down center back.

SMALL TURNOVER cuffs of the pink high light the coat sleeves. A draped turban of Baku straw is worn, trimmed in small quill feathers. The popularity of the suit and the ensemble has developed a definite demand for a street costume.

THE JACKET suit in its many variations, all of which are now more than familiar to you, is ideal for town wear, shopping and luncheon, and, of course, as the season advances, the silk suit will replace that of wool

IN ORDER to derive the fullest value in smartness from a suit there must be the original, blouse completing it, and at least one more blouse to change it into quite a different costume.

WHETHER it tucks in or not, whether it is long sleeved or sleeveless, the blouse to be smart must be elaborate. It may be ruffled about the neck, ruffle simulating a bolero, a ruffled jabot, a ruffle cape, or a bit of a ruffle at the sleeves may supply the necessary frill. Even the tailored blouse may have a jabot that consists of rows and rows of finely pleated ruffles

A CAPE COLLAR adopts a detached and important attitude toward the parts of the ensemble with which it is worn. It appears on blouses, frocks topping suit or coat, and may be of silk, chiffon, or the new rough surfaced materials

FABRICS OF rough surface have proved their smartness for season Piqué has received much favor for the lingerie touch that silk piqué in light colors, though comparatively new, is merely a development of a fashion already endorsed Blouses, collars and cuffs, gilets of piqué de soie adopt the soft pastel shades that have proved their popularity in frocks and in accessories

SILK PIQUE too, is adaptable to the smart style details that characterize new fashions for it floats softly from the shoulders in a little capelet, flares prettily in gauntlet cuffs, or lies in a tailored bow at the neckline with equal grace

Advice in Matters of Heart and Home

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Nothing but Admiration for the Finest in the Land

HERE is a letter from a boy who admires policemen for their qualities of character But for that matter you do not!

'DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

Her letter runs: "My mother was an invalid, and therefore, I had to stay at home until I was 20, when she died. My father was strictly against my getting acquainted with any boy I could. After I left home, and came to this city, I had to make my living, get it look whatever way I best could find. I worked and saved for this time when I could work no more.

"Now at last I think I can give up steady work, but I begin to realize the need of a home. I am by no means rich, but by careful managing I can get long the rest of my days. In short, I begin to realize that I ought to have married long ago. I know I could be a good housekeeper and pal to the right sort of man, though I doubt whether I would be much of a social success. I have too long been used to meeting people in a business-like way.

"I meet many men, who seem interested in me, but I refuse going out with them, as the 'gentlemen' I have to be in the business every evening. The fact is, I don't think they are the kind that are worth while. This winter I am going to take dancing lessons, have a course in cooking, and is possible get acquainted with some man who wants a pal and a home as much as I do. But, how, is the problem confronting me. My friends are mostly women and confirmed old maids like myself, and since that gives me no chance to meet any new friends I hope to take them into my confidence

"May I also divulge a cherished secret of mine? I like policemen not because I merely admire a uniform, but because of some of her qualities of character. I have met some fine policemen, but they are all married. Are there any who are not married? Or are they compelled to resign if the wife dies?

"I belong to no church and do not think I would like one as I am, just to try to solve my problem, though I am deeply religious. Can you suggest ways and means to me who are congenial or acquainted with the right sort of men." Thank you in advance

MYNA

Yours is not an easy problem to solve, my friend. Men of your age and to let are mostly married. Middle-aged widowers are few and far between. Sometimes have a small independent in one who do not mind moving somewhere in the West—say the ranching or mining region of this country or Canada

There you might meet men members of the mounted police and also traffic police, and certainly there are more than enough women out there so a middle-aged spinster who is a good cook, excellent housekeeper and interesting companion might find herself in demand Isn't the plan worth trying? Even moving to a new neighborhood of your own town might bring new friends of the right sort You will have to do church work however, and join clubs and make social contacts, if you hope to acquire new friends including single men of your age, who are congenial

Mrs. Beeckman Tells of Correct Manners

INTRODUCING TO MOTHER

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I am going to have a party in a few weeks. When introducing Mother to a boy or girl should I say, "Mother, I want you to meet Mary Gray," or "Mother, I want you to meet my mother"?

2. When entering should a boy give me his hat and coat to hang up, or should I give him the hanger and show him where to hang his wraps?

First, you should say, "Mother, let me introduce a boy or girl to my mother." A good and correct way to make the introduction is, "Miss Gray, this is my mother" or 'Mother, this is Miss Viola Gray and 'Mother, may I present Mr Graham?" or, "Mother, Mr. Gray."

2 You do not take his wraps, but instead indicate to him where he is to place them

Eating Oyster Crackers

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

1—Will you please tell me the correct way to eat oyster crackers". Should they be taken from the bowl with the fingers, and should they be dropped into the soup, or eaten with the fingers?

2—How many should be taken at a time?

M. C. S.

Oyster crackers should, most properly be eaten in the fingers With the fingers, take them from the dish in which they are 3—Take several at a time and place them on your bread and butter plate.

Messages of Sympathy

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

I would like very much to have you help me in this little matter.

My dearest brother-in-law is dead and I would like to know if it is was right for my three children and their wives and husbands to send a floral piece and put "Mr. and Mrs." on the card or should there have been a more personal message" He was a wonderful uncle to his nieces and nephews

What I mean is, don't you think it would have been better for them to have put just their first name on the card, and also to have written a few words of sympathy? In a time of sorrow a few kind words of sympathy mean a lot, I think, my children were wrong. MRS. C.

I agree with you, indeed I do that it would have been more appropriate and warm-hearted for your children to have written their informal names on the card of sympathy And also to have added a few words of friendly sympathy and sympathetic understanding on the card it could.

Always Use the Better Form

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

Will you please tell me if one's very dear school friend should put 'Miss Betty Brown' or Miss Elizabeth Brown"?

2. Is there anything wrong with either form"

M. R. B.

Miss Elizabeth Brown is the form that we should use

Miss Betty Brown's position correct because the name and address of an envelope should be very formal affair for the envelope is a very formal affair for the eyes of the world and we should make it as perfect as possible in all of the details that we write on it. That is why we should not use nicknames, why we should write all details formally, and why we should not write query initials that stand for sentiments that are more appropriate for the letter than for the envelope

Ensemble Conscious

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

1—This is not exactly etiquette but do you think a rather dark blue and a bright red would clash? I caused a lot of commodion by wearing a red and white collar on a sort of royal blue dress)

2—Is it proper, or permissible when a girl drops a pair of gloves or something, unseen by her escort, to tell him about it, or just pick them up herself?

I could see—in my mind's eye—that this might be a very question able combination of colors! Of course, it is difficult for one who has not seen the exact shades to pass judgment on the combination —but it does sound a bit more like a striking combination in a bandanna than that we would choose for a dress

2—I don't see much point in a girl making much a fuss about picking up something that she has dropped. It seems the natural thing to do to pick up what we have dropped, and not call for assistance in such an unimportant detail

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions submitted by readers).

Household Hints

Strengthen gas mantles before using by saturating them in vinegar to which a teaspoonful of saltpeter has been added Allow to dry thoroughly.

Jams and pickles should not be stored on a top shelf, as hot air rises and heat is apt to cause fermentation.

When tieing up pudding, put a pleat in the top of the cloth. This opens out as the pudding swells and prevents it from splitting, tieing and allowing the water to get into the mixture.

Bathing caps and other rubber goods can be kept fresh and new by giving them a "bath" in talcum powder, when dry, after use

New calico, prints and lace curtains are hard to wash owing to the lime in them, but if you give them a night's soaking in warm water in which two or three hand fuls of salt have been dissolved the lime is freed and the task lightened

* * *

To keep windows clean, rub with a cloth slightly moistened with kerosene. Polish with a dry soft duster or chamois

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

What Is a New Yorker?

A New Yorker is a man who was born in Kokomo, Oshkosh Dublin, Berlin, Pittsburgh, Washington, D. C. (or what cities have you"), but has lived near Broad way long enough to write "New York N. Y." opposite his name on the hotel register, when he visits other places

A New Yorker is a person who who always looks like a million dollars, even though he often has only a dollar and 20 cents in his pocket, and owes more than that to the tailor who just pressed his trousers

A New Yorker is one who attends strictly to his OWN business, is never shocked surprised or perturbed by ANYTHING and never asks the name of his neighbor in an apartment next door.

A New Yorker does not care how much money you have nor how you GOT it—but only how you spend it!

He is a goat in lambs clothing who meekly falls for every racket and submits to being gypped by profiteers, having doormen, ushers, hawked out by traffic officers, roared at by taxi drivers, high hatted by saleswomen, bullied by barmen, held up by hat-checkers, man-handled by subway guards, charged four prices for theater seats, and put on the "sucker list" of every advertising firm—and still comes up smiling, and congratulates himself that he is a "New Yorker"

A New Yorker is a man with many habitats but no home

He is born in a hospital, lives in subways and taxicabs, is married at the City Hall and is laid from a funeral parlor. He spends his winters in Florida, his summers in the Adirondacks or in the mountains—and the spring in a sanitarium

When a New Yorker has lived for three whole years in the same two-room suite in an apartment hotel, he begins to think himself as an "old settler." One wife and a Pekingese dog, him a "family," a man and a can-opener and a cocktail kitchen, constitute his "permanent background."

The New Yorker is a hard-working person of simple tastes and sober habits who would like nothing better than to settle down and live at a rational hour and lead a sane quiet, normal life Reading the stock reports, listening to Amos and Andy, and taking his wife Poke for a walk constitute his favorite recreations

But, alas, he spends most of his evenings rushing around to speakeasies, and making whoopee at night clubs in the hope of being entertain his friends from Gophn Prairie and Main st., and live up to his reputation as a "wild spark" ing New Yorker

Most people think of a New Yorker as a fat, bald-headed, red-faced, shrewd, sophisticated gink with a cigar in his face, a third overworked chorus girl on his arm, and a wad of bills in his pocket, who spends his entire life in night clubs and cabarets, if you hope to acquire new friends including single men of your age, who are congenial

Girl Unafraid

By GLADYS JOHNSON

CHAPTER 31

Life flowed on, a thing of busy days when the small shop pulsed with customers doing their last-minute Christmas shopping. The days were a hectic tide, mounting as shopping time grew shorter.

Ardeth rose before it was light hurrying to meet salesmen and look at stock which she was too busy to select at other times. Her bookkeeping and other accounts were attended to at night after the front door was locked.

No time for lunch. She sent Ann Lyng out to get a bottle of milk and a sandwich and ate it hastily in the rear room ready to rush into the outer shop the moment she heard the door open.

No time to go to dinner with Tom, though he reported fat stuffed special times a week

No time for visits to Mary

"Look here woman!" Mary protested, 'I'll stand for this neglect if you'll promise to come to Christmas dinner"

She had just come from a shopping trip Now she flung a bundle down on the couch and sank exhausted after them She also carried Ardeth away to the bedroom to lay off her wraps. "She was too little to get the idea of Christmas last year, but I think it will take her until Easter to recover"

So Mary chattered and all the time her eyes were regarding Ardeth with a quiet uncertain look as the girl stood before the mirror.

Ardeth was altogether lovely today in a modish dress which hung her tender throat and face into warm relief and made a flame of her tawny hair. A long string of carved ivory beads and the white orchids added the necessary contrast

Mary spoke the words having an end in view, as though they were dragged from her against her will

"Ardeth did you know that Ken and Cecile have separated"

Ardeth's hand had crept to her throat, frantically twisting ivory beads

"It was just a couple of days ago," Mary went on. Then, bitterly: "Much good it will do! Not for Ken nor you—oh, my dear child, don't look so!"

Ardeth's push she rose, took the girl in her arms. "I'm all right, Ardeth, so you wouldn't hear it from someone else and be startled. Now, you give girls a stern lecture like wet black satin

Ardeth had looked forward to this quiet peace, but now she found smothering loneliness falling upon her. She tidied up the shop; she did the laundry and the cooking, she had been too busy to attend to lately. She cleaned the rear room washed out and ironed the curtains frowned anxiously as she examined her small supply of silk stockings and underwear

She made elaborate lists of ribboned packages of Marva and the Chickadee's presents and displayed for a while with Tom's present, an expensive little radio set in an exquisite oriental cabinet

And all the time the lonely ache was increasing in her heart She found herself envying Ah Ling, who at the very moment was impartially celebrating an American Christmas in her Chinese home

Ardeth found herself wishing wistfully that she had been able to send gifts to Fan and Paul. But she did not know where they were living now and she did not want to ring up Neil and ask. In some odd way the mere fact of remembering her existence would have helped Something about having one's own people at this time of year Just to know you belonged to someone If she only had Ken . . .

It was as though her thought summoned him. . . A rattle at the front door and there was a florist bow with a large square box Even before she lifted the cover Ardeth knew a scent from Kerr

Large double violets. A fragrant mass, crisp and cool, with somehow smelling of wet rain

No word with them She needed no word

When Tom came to drive her home to Mary's she was waiting for him with her wraps on and there was a bunch of white violets pinned to her coat collar Tom's watchful eyes saw that she had been crying. It was a quiet drive out to Mary's

Impossible to be sad at Mary's house a cheerful glow of candlelight and holly. With Fred, tall and grinning behind his new pipe. With the chickadee excitedly embracing everyone's knees at a incoherent with delight

If the child hasn't become entirely through sheer excitement I'll be thankful!" Mary explained and she carried Ardeth away to the bedroom to lay off her wraps. "She was too little to get the idea of Christmas last year, but I think it will take her until Easter to recover"

So Mary chattered and all the time her eyes were regarding Ardeth with a quiet uncertain look as the girl stood before the mirror.

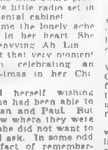
Good to Eat

As though in celebrate National Pea Week, Humphy Dumphy having his annual tumble, and all of the king's horses and all of the king's men won't be able to put up the pieces of eggs again until fall and winter come



Martha Lee

There is perhaps no other staple food commodity which undergoes such a drastic spring rut in price as does the egg Yet the food value of eggs is just as priceless when they are as high and, strange to say, they seem to taste better, at least to those who must pay the food bills, when they cost the least

So gather your eggs while you may, at the reduced prices, and break them lavishly into your mixing bowls. Omelets and custards are in order, as are all of the other recipes you thought of longingly last winter but abandoned because they required too many eggs

PIGS AND ASPARAGUS SALAD WITH RUSSIAN DRESSING

INGREDIENTS

Six hard boiled eggs, large bunch asparagus, head of crisp lettuce. METHOD

Boil asparagus until tender, or asparagus tips. Sprinkle with a little salt and bake a Russian dressing to by beating together one cup of mayonnaise and chili sauce or tomato catsup. Add a generous amount of this dressing over the salad and garnish with riced eggs

Egg and pimento timbales are delicious too, and easily made by beating three eggs slightly and adding four tablespoons of milk. Season with salt and paprika and a few drops of onion juice. Line well-greased timbale molds with canned pimentos. Four in the custard, place in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven until firm. Serve on slices of fried bread.

Creamed eggs with sardines is a combination of unusual relish, but it is truly delicious. Hard boil the eggs, take out the skins and bones from one small can of sardines, or buy the skinless and boneless kind and mash the meat. Season with salt and paprika. Add the eggs finely chopped. Make a sauce by melting four tablespoons of butter and adding one-fourth cup of thin cream or evaporated milk. Bring to the boiling point Add the egg and sardine mixture, heat to the boiling point and serve

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

EVENING New York Stocks AMERICAN News of Street MARKETS

Wall Street Gains Over Wide List

New York, May 6—Wall St. gains spread over a wide list in trading on the New York Stock Exchange today.

The scramble of the short interest to cover was less intense than in the closing minutes of yesterday's trading, and the 7,990,000-share day at which the market started soon slackened.

As the session entered the final period some notable advances had been recorded. Case Threshing at 226¾ was up 13¾; Hudson Motor at 216 was up 5¾. People's Gas at 208½ was up 4.

SOME MAJOR GAINS

American Power & Light advanced 10¾ at 101; Allied Chemical mounted 13 at 317. American Tobacco B jumped 11¾ at 262¾. Worthington common gained 6¾ at 122½.

New Haven rose 6 at 114. Jewel Tea was up 5¾ at 94.

Pennsylvania Railroad, which had earlier shown a setback of 1¾ at 218.

Chesapeake Corp. shares at the head of Kennecott and Granby, reflecting the advance trend in the copper group established new lows.

The spirit of violent trading that disrupted the market during the past few sessions appeared to have worn itself out. U. S. Steel moved narrowly in the background during most of the day.

UTILITIES IN LEAD

The market was called upon in the first two hours to absorb a considerable amount of stock purchased by professionals at the bottom of yesterday's late dip, but short covering offset a good portion of the selling coming from this quarter.

The public utility stocks led the way to higher prices, ably supported by the best grade of amusement, tobacco, steel and electrical manufacturing stocks. At 173 Westinghouse showed a recovery of 13 points from yesterday's low price, while General Electric rallied 6 points and American Waterworks on the same basis was also up 6 points.

The view was generally taken that the bears had been given a severe beating and were not likely to attempt another "raid" on the market for some time to come. Continued ease in the money market helped in the process of recovery and confidence was restored by the better outlook in important sections of domestic business.

Under the buying sale of 175 for a gain of 3¾ points from yesterday's close. Radio retirred to 85¾, for a gain of 4⅞, and Radio Keith to 42½, up 7 points from Monday's low prices. United Corporations, the lead of the low-priced, popular utilities sold close to 44, up 2¾.

CURB JOINS RALLY.

The Curb Market had little time in moving toward higher levels today. Monday's disappointing the opening attracted some profit-taking in stocks bought at yesterday's low prices, but it soon returned decisively upward later, and in the afternoon gains of 2 to 4 points were numerous.

Utilities and oils took prominent parts in the advance. American Foreign exchanges were mixed, sterling cables off ¼ at $4.86⅛, on indications of a new flow of gold from London to Paris.

DANFORTH "SORRY."

"Bill Danforth," the big Boston operator, most mentioned in the street as bear, declared that present situation was "very regrettable because so many people are being hurt." This might cause a laugh among many brokers, but from what is known of Mr. Danforth it might be accepted as sincere.

Point or better gains spread over a broad list. Included were Venezuelan Mexican, United Founders, Torrington, Quincy Mining, North American, Aviation, Textron, Mills, Kreuger & Toll, Gilchrist Co., First National Stores and American Telephone rights.

Nash rallied 2 after selling a new low. Pennsylvania Railroad mounted 2, and New Haven over 2.

General Electric and General Capital gained 2 or more.

St. Mary's Mineral Lands sold off 2 at 17 to a new low. Anaconda recorded a new bottom.

Aero Underwriters dropped 3½ at 15.

Massachusetts Investors Trust, which came through the October-November stock market decline with its portfolio at all time high, during a value in excess of cost, also purchased substantial amounts of leading stocks during these hectic days. Except for scattered purchases since then, the trust has been building up its cash holdings from $400,000 to $1,600,000. It was a buyer of stocks Monday and today.

BOSTON COALER LIFTS OUTPUT

During April Island Creek Coal Co. experienced an increase in production. It is understood that output was approximately 393,000 tons, as against 360,600 tons in March. An increase usually takes place at this time of the year, due to seasonal causes. In the current instance early commencement of lake business is contributed to a considerable result.

Last month's total, however, was under that of April, 1929, of 452,881 tons. The shrinkage of 60,000 tons, however, was considerably less than March's shrinkage of slightly over 100,000 tons from last year.

The April total was regarded as being well handled, and in March, last month for which approximate figures are available, estimated stocks decreased 4,000,000 tons to the lowest point since July 3, 1929.

Stocks of Zinc in U. S. Are Increased

American Zinc Institute reports stocks of slab zinc in the hands of American producers May 1 totaled 96,453 short tons, compared with 94,053 on April 1, an increase of 2240 tons. Production in April was 43,080 tons and retorts in operations at the end of April totaled 49,150.

Advice Is Free

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Melson, Financial Editor, Hilton Crawley American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

INCOME ASSURED

D. D., Boston—Several years ago, on your advice, I bought 25 shares Southern Pacific. A sale of the stock would net a nice profit. However, do you think I ought to keep it?

Ans.—We suggested Southern Pacific on the basis of investment, not on the market position. You can count on the income. The $6 annual dividend is well covered by earnings, which in 1929 were $12.09 a share, contrasted with $10.71 in 1928, $9.65 in 1927. The current rate has been maintained from 1924. The property, with subsidiaries, operates 18,303 miles of track. In addition, it owns public utility, oil and other properties. Of course, if the profit is alluring you must decide when to cash in.

DIVIDEND EARNED

M. M., Wellesley—Last year, on the advice of a friend, I got some shares of Coty, Inc. I now have a paper loss. What are the latest earnings?

Ans.—For year ended December 31, 1929, Coty, Inc., earned $2.73 a share, compared with $1.64 a share on a smaller capitalization. Dividends, with extras, have been paid from time to time. In 1929, 6 per cent extra in stock. Regular annual rate now is $2 a share. June 30, next, stockholders will get 6 per cent extra in stock. We must decline to comment on the market position.

DEPENDS ON MEANS

M. A., Forest Hills—My broker has suggested to buy Gold Dust. Do you approve?

Ans.—Whether you should buy Gold Dust is a large manufacturer of cleansing and food products. Earnings have been good. In 1929 net profits of $4.06 a share contrasted with dividends of $2.50 a share. In 1928 earnings were $3.51 and in 1927, $6.05 a share on a smaller capitalization. The company plans shortly to retire funded debt of $12,000,000 out of surplus.

Stock Dividend on Winterfront 2 P. C.

Chicago, May 6—The Pines Winterfront Co. declared regular quarterly dividends of 25 cents in cash and 2 per cent in stock, both payable June 1 to stock of record May 15.

CURB MARKET BUOYANCY IS RETAINED

New York, May 6—The Curb Market retained the buoyancy that featured the late activity in yesterday's session and numerous higher prices were recorded in the leading trading favorites in activity today.

A heavy accumulation of overnight buying orders brought brisk demand for all stocks which failed to share in the upturn. A somewhat softer tone came into evidence midway in the first hour, and prices receded from their initial quotations, but there was none of the weakness so conspicuous in the recent declines, nor was turnover of more than normal proportions.

A RALLY FOLLOWED.

In this group Commonwealth Edison led a sharp comeback with its runup of 15 points. Electric Bond & Share soon scored a gain of over 2 points, while other outstanding strong spots included American Superpower, American Gas & Electric, American & Foreign Power warrants, Niagara Hudson Power, Northern States Power, Tampa Electric, United Gas and United Light & Power.

Cities Service ruled steady. Leading investment oils bounded up with Gulf scoring a gain of nearly 3 and Standard of Indiana up over a point.

Securities Corporation new led an improved investment trust group with a gain of around 7 points. Other buoyant members of this list included Goldman Sachs; National Investors and Transamerica. Industrial issues ruled higher

BOND MARKET ADVANCES

New York, May 6—Bonds showed signs of resuming the forward movement of last week today. The reactionary tendency of Monday, reflecting the disturbed condition of the share market, was lacking and both investment and speculative issues displayed improvement. The volume was about even with Monday's dull session.

Money rates remained at their recently stiff call money prevailing at 3½ per cent and then dropping to 3. Time paper unchanged.

The greatest activity was in convertible bonds. The checking of the upward trend of stocks, with which they move in sympathy, influenced a rally and Warner Bros. Pictures 6s, General Theatres 6s, American Telephone 4½s, International Telephone 4½s, Baltimore & Ohio 4s advanced from 1 to 3 points.

Railroad issues were steady to slightly higher on small sales. American Telephone 5s led the utility group.

PUBLISHERS' EARNINGS UP

United Business Publishers, Inc., reports net income available for dividends of $210,382 for the first quarter of 1930 as compared with $193,448 for the first quarter of 1929.

This is equivalent, after deducting preferred dividend, to approximately 70c a share against 77c in 1929 per share on the 150,000 shares of common stock outstanding.

The United Business Publishers, Inc., is the publisher and distributor of one of the largest group of trade publications in the world.

Included among its 30 publications in the basic industries served are such well-known trade journals as Iron Age, Automobile Industries, Hardware Age, Dry Goods Economist, Automobile Trade Journal and Motor Age, Oil Field Engineering and Boot & Shoe Recorder.

Carr-Fastener's Report Is Issued

The United-Carr Fastener Corp. reports for the three months ended March 31, 1930, after depreciation, taxes and debenture interest a net loss of $20,852. The cost of rearranging the manufacturing development to coordinate the production of the merged companies has been incurred for the most part in this period and charged entirely to current operations. The resulting economies in operations are now beginning to be realized. During the month of April there was a decided improvement in the volume of business with a corresponding gain in earnings.

Sentinel Fire to Double Its Shares

Springfield, May 6—Stockholders of the Sentinel Fire Insurance Co. act May 12 on a recommendation that its capital stock be increased from $500,000 to $1,000,000. This would double the present 40,000 shares. Sentinel is a subsidiary of the Springfield Fire & Maine Insurance Co.

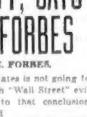
GOOD TIME TO INVEST, SAYS B. C. FORBES

By B. C. FORBES.

The United States is not going to the dogs, though "Wall Street" evidently rushed to that conclusion toward the end of last week.

The undeniable truth is that prosperity is on the mend—slowly, it is true, but unmistakably.



B. C. Forbes

Nothing tangible happened to precipitate the drastic selling of stocks which broke loose every violently last Thursday, and continued until the close on Saturday, after nearly 5,000,000 shares were jettisoned in the two-hour session, to be resumed again yesterday, when many stocks sunk to new levels, although the market staged quite a substantial recovery toward the end of the session.

The term "Wall Street" is still used by many to denote only a lot of New York stock gamblers. Time was when buying and selling on the New York Stock Exchange was confined to relatively few individuals, mostly men of means, and led by a number of nationally-known gamblers of the bet-you-a-million-dates type.

But the real Wall Street of today is almost synonymous with the United States.

Of course, there are still large-scale speculators even though not more than two or three of them figure prominently in the day-to-day chronicles of the stock market. Financial reporters do not so much as names as they did Jay Gould, Jesse L. Livermore, Arthur W. Cutten, J. J. Raskob, and during the pre-bull market days they stirred up the so-called "Big Ten" in accounting for spectacular demonstrations by various stocks. Certain war-made multimillionaires were sometimes referred to vaguely rather than by name. But everybody recognized that the "Coolidge bull market" was much broader-based than any other bull market movement, that it allured countless novices in the game of stock speculation and that widened ownership had multiplied amazingly.

Therefore, it is no longer fair to lay the sins of "Wall Street" to a number of professional speculators or to New York. The percentage of New Yorkers who dabble in stocks probably is lower than the percentage in Chicago, Detroit, Boston, San Francisco or other large cities.

It is important that the American public recognize this fact so that misunderstanding and emotional recrimination may be avoided.

The country was enjoying the most widely spread prosperity in its history at the time the writer began sounding warnings against the frenzied ongoings in Wall Street.

That warning was sounded, not because national industrial, agricultural or commercial conditions were unsound, but because stock speculation was running beyond all reason and playing havoc with monetary conditions throughout the world. One did not need to be an inspired seer to foresee that the speculative boom would inevitably burst and burst disastrously.

When the writer gave the advice was given here to buy good stocks for investment. Again it was difficult to foresee that there would be a very substantial recovery, sooner or later, from bank levels.

By the beginning of April it had become fairly clear that many stocks were being forced above reasonable prices. Consequently, intimations were repeatedly uttered here that in the highest financial circles preparations were being made for a setback.

After backing and filling erratically for a period, a deluge of liquidation overtook the market last Thursday. Without exhibiting anything but feeble rallies, the market went lower and lower until declines of 20, 30, 40, 50 and even 75 points from the previous week's high quotations were sustained. Yesterday, as already told, stocks again declined sharply but later recovered.

What is the outlook now? In the same influential circles where preparations following the market's sustained rise was sounded a month ago, caution is now sounded against following the market's frenzied decline. Just as the "Coolidge boom" was overdone, the November collapse overdone, and this year's marking-up process overdone, so it is reasoned that this latest selling orgiast is being overdone.

The writer's own guess is that investment stocks can be discriminatingly purchased now with every confidence that they will show generous profits if put into strong boxes and retained.

WARDEN DEFIES GOVERNOR TO OUST HIM

By JOHN W. DIENHART
By Universal Service

Columbus, Ohio, May 6—Informed political circles here bristled today with a report that Warden Preston E. Thomas had told intimates Governor Myers Y. Cooper dare not oust him.

He is quoted, as having declared "he knows too much." Twice before in his 15 years as head of the State penitentiary, Thomas survived investigation of his administration, though he today declined to admit he had made the remark quoted.

The warden seemed not the least disturbed that Atty.-Gen. Bettman's board of inquiry had laid upon his shoulders the responsibility for the killing of 322 convicts in the prison fire disaster two weeks ago.

"I have done no wrong and have no cause for worry," he declared.

It is common gossip around the State House and penitentiary that the "marked price" for pardons and paroles ranges from $500 to $2500, depending upon the seriousness of the charge involved and the ability of the purchaser to pay.

Keen Competition for Coal Dealers

There is a merry war for business under way among the coal dealers serving the suburbs north of Boston. The price they pay for fuel is the same among all of the dealers, discounts range all the way from 50 cents a ton to $1.25 per ton.

Consolidations and amalgamations of various large retail coal companies and the placing of branch offices of other large retail companies, which have not heretofore operated in these suburbs, has to date resulted in reductions in the price of anthracite to the lowest mark it has reached in a dozen years. Malden, Medford, Everett, Melrose, Somerville and other nearby communities are affected.

Budlong Divorce Review Refused

Washington, May 6—Jessie Margaret Budlong, of New York City and Newport, R. I., yesterday was refused a supreme court review of the divorce proceedings brought by her husband, Milton J. Budlong.

It was the second time the court had refused to interest itself in the celebrated divorce proceedings of several years ago.

Wants a Job

Can you help Ed Scullion get a job? He's a native Bostonian and veteran of the Canadian fire. He is wearing some oddals given for heroic wo (Staff photo.)

WAR HERO CAN'T LIVE ON GLORY—WANTS WORK

What price glory?

With a pocketfull of war medals, award for five years' service with the Canadian forces during the World War, Ernest Scullion, native Bostonian, is walking the streets, penniless, today, seeking charity.

Scullion, who lost a job in the West when the plant shut down, came back to Boston this month, hoping to obtain work in his home town.

An earnest and friendless, he trudged the streets, going three days without food, until taken in and cared for by a Lynn family.

"All I want is a job," said Scullion. "I'm able to work. I'm a cook, and I've done bricklayer work and handled a drop hammer, and have worked in factories.

"I'm willing to do anything.

"I had a good job in the West, where I went after the war, but conditions are pretty bad out there and the plant shut down.

"I was born in Boston. My father was killed in the Spanish War and my mother died three years later. In 1914 when the War War broke out I went to Quebec and enlisted. I went overseas immediately with the 13th Canadian Battalion, arriving in France Christmas night."

"I got a shrapnel wound in the shoulder, a bayonet wound in the left hand and was gassed. I came home in 1919 and was mustered out, with an 58 a month pension. I told 'em to keep it and got myself a job."

HIT BY DEPRESSION

"It was pretty good until the recent depression, when so many plants laid off help. There doesn't seem to be much prosperity now."

At Odds On Site for Medford School

Refusal of Mayor Edward H. Larkin to approve a site for a new 18-room schoolhouse by the Medford school committee at High, Jerome and Fairfax sts., is expected to result in a battle before the school is erected.

Mayor Larkin thisweekend said that the site of the school he at present owned and at a cement footbridge he erected over the Boston & Maine tracks at West Medford for the school children. The city already owns 3 land at the site recommended by the committee.

Collar Man Is Shot by Burglar at Home

Troy, N. Y., May 6 (AP)—Angus Gillespie, former treasurer and vice-president of Cluett, Peabody & Co., was shot in the back and wounded seriously late last night by a negro intruder in his home at Barberville. The man was attempting to enter a window when Mr. Gillespie discovered him. He escaped after the shooting. Physicians expected the former manufacturer to recover.

Hoover Should Have More Faith in Wisdom of American People

The President's address on returning prosperity is good and it is true.

Moreover, what the Presidfdt did in order to overcome the depression was good. He deserves all the credit he gives himself for this action, and all the credit the Hearst newspapers give him, and all the credit the public gives him.

It is the first instance in history when a people refused to take a crisis "lying down."

President Hoover organized the business forces to check the remorseless wheel of the business cycle, and they have checked it. The country is on the road back to its normal prosperity.

It is also fair for the Hearst papers to remind the President that before he took action, they suggested to him the business conference he called to salvage the nation from shipwreck.

On November 15 all Hearst papers published an editorial signed by William Randolph Hearst and addressed to the President of the United States. It read, in part, as follows:

"Honored Sir:

"The present unwarranted depression in the value of sterling securities is due partly to the vicious manipulation of bear interests and partly to the alarm of the public at the sudden and unjustifiable collapse in values.

"Such panics, as President Wilson said, are largely a matter of psychology.

"Lack of confidence is contagious; but, on the other hand, so is confidence contagious.

"The people expect as much from you, Mr. President, an active and experienced business man, as they would have expected from your strenuous predecessor, Mr. Roosevelt, under similar circumstances.

"Surely your administration could assemble the banking and financial leaders of the nation and insist that they cooperate with the government.

"Undoubtedly President Roosevelt would have taken some such rigorous action, and Wall Street leaders would have known he was in earnest and would not have hesitated to co-operate with his administration to the utmost."

That was published in the Hearst papers of November 15. On November 16, the following day, the President announced a preliminary conference of representatives of industry, agriculture and labor to meet with government department heads. This was followed by further conferences and the eventual mobilization of business to overcome depression, with the happy results related by the President on Thursday night.

All that the President now needs to do is to flourish Mr. Roosevelt's "big stick" a bit to prevent the international bankers from manipulating the stock market in the interest of their forthcoming foreign loans.

The Hearst papers do not mention their recommendations to exalt themselves. They merely transmitted to Mr. Hoover through their columns what was being said among the 30,000,000 readers of these papers. Mr. Hoover did the rest.

The Hearst papers simply recall these facts to remind Mr. Hoover that the advice of the Hearst papers is good, because it expresses the popular will.

Their advice is based on information gleaned from all parts of the country by an institution which believes in government by the people, and which believes in the ability of the people to decide public questions wisely and well.

We recall this advice because of the success which attended its application and in the hope that Mr. Hoover will take some further advice about the League Court and other matters in which the Hearst papers have advised him, both for his own good and for the good of the country.

There is no reason why Mr. Hoover should have only this one popular act to his credit. He could have many if he would have more faith in the people's wisdom and more democratic respect for the people's will.

A Rich Man's Fine Houses

He Is Gone, THEY Are Useful

Years ago George J. Gould, whose father was among the first very rich men of the United States, built for himself a magnificent residence at Lakewood, N. J.

Situated amid thousands of acres of pines, in an even, mild climate, protected from the winds in Winter, it was an ideal home for his large family of children.

Now George Gould is gone, his children are married, scattered, some in Europe, some here.

But the fine house with the big park around it, beautiful lakes, drives, magnificent trees, is the home today of a much bigger family of children.

It was known as Georgian Court when George Gould lived.

It is now the Georgian Court College, under the management of the Sisters whose school was previously located at Plainfield, N. J.

Many young girls, educated by the Sisters, enjoy all the advantages that George Gould had planned for his own family.

The building where George Gould kept his polo ponies has been rebuilt, transformed into a chemical laboratory where Sisters of young girls study solemnly.

The "Court," a large separate building, devoted to George Gould's guests, who came in great numbers, has been made into a dormitory for the girls.

The private golf links is now the school golf links. The great building for the indoor riding school and indoor tennis courts is used by the girls.

Everything that George Gould planned for his own daughters, splendidly built to last, is now enjoyed by many American girls and will be enjoyed by many others as the years go by.

The school, because of its great success, has outgrown the great buildings that George Gould built for himself, and it is announced that the Sisters have purchased, to use as an additional dormitory for the older girls, a large place adjoining Georgian Court, built by George Gould for his daughter Marjorie, who is now Mrs. Anthony Drexel, living abroad.

She lived there with her children when they were small.

The Georgian Court College hereafter will include that large residence, entirely enclosed within a high wall, and two buildings adjoining.

Nearby is the Newman School for Boys, attended by the sons of Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador; Mr. Vanderbilt, Clarence H. Mackay and others.

Lakewood has the mild Winter climate of Aiken, S. C., combined with nearness to New York, less than two hours away by good automobile roads and the Holland Vehicular Tunnel.

TAKING THEM FOR A RIDE!

THIS OLD CHAUFFEUR knows all his vegetables, all his stocks and most of his Senators.

He has a few old reliables on behind as spare tires.

THOSE SPARE TIRES may have to absorb some shocks when next election comes along. But they're having a fast ride now. More comfortable for them than for you, as you sit on the inside wondering what the bill will be.

EVER RIDE in a taxi? If you didn't or if you did, you're going to start a good ride now and keep on going. Fasten your eye on the taximeter and you'll see fancy figures.

"Up, up it goes, see it go up," as they used to say in the child's book.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

BOOK III

Chapter V

EVOLUTION OF MAN

Sec. 1. Man; a Vertebrate; a Mammal; a Primate

There is no need to stress the physical likeness of the higher apes, chimpanzees, gorillas, or orang-utans, to ourselves.

But it is perhaps not often realized how extremely close the resemblance is, and how, if a Martian scientist, with no personal prejudices on the subject, had been given the task of classifying the animal inhabitants of our planet, he would at once have put man in the same small group as the tailless apes with the same lack of hesitation with which he would have classified the hive-bee and the solitary bee together; and how quite unintelligible he would have found the long failure of human naturalists to take this step, and the storm of protest which arose when at last a few bold and logical spirits dared to take the objective view of man's place in nature.

The closeness of our likeness to the apes may best be realized by measuring it against our likeness to other vertebrates.

Take a man's body and compare it with a frog's.

A man is really very like a frog in the general plan of construction; both have internal skeletons made of bone; a spinal cord running along the back, enclosed in the backbone's tunnel; brain in a brain-box; eyes, ears, nose, mouth, and teeth in the same general relation; two pairs of limbs, with skeleton corresponding almost bone for bone; and a close resemblance in the plan of their internal anatomy.

Their chemical arrangements, too, are quite alike. Both have livers which break up aminoacids and store sugars as glycogen; both have a pancreas which secrets trypsin; the adrenalin manufactured by the frog's adrenal glands is not only like, but chemically identical with the product of the adrenal glands of man.

In these and scores of other ways a man is not only like a frog, but unlike the vast majority of animal types. The man-frog plan of structure and working is definitely unlike that of a cuttlefish, or an ant, or a crab, or a leech, or a sea-urchin. In zoological terms, men and frogs are vertebrates, and these other animals are not.

On the other hand, if we draw a few other vertebrates into our comparison, we see at once that there are degrees in their likeness.

Man is more like a frog than a fish, for frog and man both possess lungs and fingered limbs and a fish does not.

But man is less like a frog than a dog, for man and dog both have hair, and divided hearts, and warm blood, and teeth of several different sorts, and milk, and young that are nourished in the womb; and frogs have none of these things. In the matter of classification, men and dogs are mammals, frogs are not.

But again a man is less like a dog than a chimpanzee. For man and chimpanzee have nails, not claws, and grasping hands with the thumb opposable to the rest of the fingers, and limbs for walking and climbing; they have no tail; their females have monthly periods and a single pair of breasts; their brains are large and deeply furrowed and convoluted.

And in all these ways and many others, notably in their teeth, they differ from dogs. In zoological terms, men and apes are primates, dogs are carnivores.

But the resemblance between man and chimpanzee is much closer than these facts alone would indicate. We have already seen how close is their invisible, chemical resemblance. Then the visible resemblance permeates every detail of their anatomy.

Their skeletons are not merely alike in general plan, but correspond actually bone by bone; the grinding teeth are extremely similar in pattern; the ape's hands and face and expression are all but human. In a number of points the chimpanzee or the gorilla differ more from the other great apes that they do from man.

It used to be asserted that there existed definite structures in man's anatomy, especially in his brain, which were absent in apes.

T. H. Huxley, as far back as 1863, demonstrated in his classical essay, "Man's Place in Nature," that this was not true. The difference between human structures and ape structures are only differences of degree.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR BAER

The Night Census of Rembrandt

Census indicates that we have millions of human binks scattered around between filling stations and lurking on detours.

But other millions have been missing from the vital budget. Some were overlooked during the eclipse of the sun and many were shanghaied in brokers' offices.

In order to capture everybody, the government got smart and started a night census.

That's the one that gets us and Tex Guinan.

Tex claimed a day census displayed extra partiality and favoritism on the part of the government. She is not quite such a wholesale employee of labor as Henry Ford or U. S. Steel. But she certainly keeps thousands of government agents busy.

How about lodge members and night watchmen who number way up in the king row of the adding machine. They pay taxes even if their office hours are upside down.

The midnight caucus shows over seven thousand bridge dummies who registered at the last election. You couldn't check them up in the daytime because life to them is just one big eclipse of the sun.

America is a day and night institution and before knocking on the door you want to make sure who is parked in the hammock. A house-to-house canvass doesn't grab everybody because the mistress of the home is generally borrowing a cup of sugar from the lady next door.

The best way to take a census in this era of speakeasies is to yell "cops" and then count 'em as they come out.

Then you discover that everybody is named Smith and you wonder why Al wasn't elected.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Take 'Em or Leave 'Em

Hardest job on earth—getting on with our own folks. Queer—we can hit it off fine with strangers. No trouble at all being pleasant and tactful with people we hardly know, and patient with their blunders. But just let one of the family try to pull something like that and—!!!???!!!½ ¼@@!!!

Elsie Robinson

Yet we're fond of our folks. We honestly want to be happy with them. But —you know how it is. Just one row after another! And even if it doesn't break into sound, the fight's always going on inside—one spirit yanking at the other, demanding agreement, demanding understanding, demanding obedience—

Why? Why do ye traffic so easily with outsiders yet tangle so terribly with at-homers? Because we're willing to let outsiders be themselves but we want to make our own kin over.

A stranger's his own boss and has his own notions. We may not admire those notions. We may consider him a very odd and limited person. But we don't quarrel with these facts. We accept him As Is. And he accepts us in the same spirit. As a result, we do not sit in judgment on each other—nor bear grudges, nor expect impossible co-operation.

But when it comes to the family—that's different! Are we willing to take them or will they accept us as is? Try and do it! All the ringside rules for Human Behavior are discarded when we enter the Family Circle. Because we share the same blood, we expect perfect understandings, consideration and co-operation from our relatives. We also feel that we have unlimited right to meddle in their affairs and give advice and criticism. If they resent this meddling, we feel affronted. If they fail to show understanding, we are aggrieved. And if they insist on living their own lives in their own way, we regard them as unnatural monsters.

As a matter of fact, there's no particular reason why relatives should understand each other. You may have a name in common, but that's no guarantee that you have and interest in common. All men are "spirits clad in veils"—and blood kin are no exception. Your relations are actually as detached from you as the stranger on the street and should be treated with as much consideration. You've no more right to meddle with a brother's or sister's mail than you have to meddle with President Hoover's. Nor have you any more right to demand perfect understanding from a mother or father than from George V.

After all a family is only a collection of catch-as-catch-can individuals. Each one is separated from you by a thousand differences in mind and body. Love them if you can. Work with them, if it's possible. But don't feel outraged or cheated if you can't or it isn't. Use the same philosophy with blood kin which you would use with any stranger—take 'em or leave 'em! Live and let live!

Three-Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING

Before the World War came along and ended in a peace which changed considerably the colonial map of European nations, Germany was represented in the South Seas by an island territory known as the Bismarck Archipelago and Kaiser Wilhelm's Land. Now this territory, within a stone's throw of Australia, is under the control of that British colony. It staggers along under the awe-inspiring name of "The Mandated Territory of New Guinea."

Rabaul is the metropolis of that part of the territory known as New Britain and it is a South Sea city such as one becomes acquainted with through novels, the moving pictures and the stories which cater to the almost universal imagination.

Rabaul, at present, offers a thoroughly international atmosphere. There will be found on its streets a sprinkling of the pre-war German colonists, adventurers from all parts of the world en route to or from the gold fields of New Guinea proper.

As in the case in so many of these South Sea communities, Rabaul has an extensive Chinese quarter. "China 'cross the bay" is not distant, and through the past several decades large numbers of Chinese have emigrated to New Guinea. On the streets one sees the Chinese of old China in their loose pajamas and with queues hanging far down their backs. From the windows of their homes come the weird strains of Oriental music mixed with their unintelligible chatter. Then, there are the young Chinese. The lads and girls who have been westernized. No pajamas or queues on these young men.

Many of the Chinese have become prosperous—to the advantage of the agents of American motor cars!

Conditions have changed in Rabaul. Time was—during the German regime—when the native blacks or the Chinese were kept apart. Now, under Australian control, all are on an equal footing and it is a serious misdemeanor to discipline the blacks in the way which was favored formerly.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

New York, May 6—During a wakeful hour last night I jotted down a number of ideas that seemed at the time perfectly handy to clutter up much of this space today. But a moth must have eaten them or the maid threw them out, for I cannot find them anywhere.

It is a happy conceit of columnists when they can think of nothing else to write about to write about themselves. Modest what-nots, the columnists! I have already made several starts in self glorification, but jerked the sheets out of the typewriter and sat staring.

Then it occurred to me to write about the business of columning and reactions of the columnist. It is not a particularly hot idea, but here it is 10 p. m. and something must be done. Often the best columns are turned out by writers who are in a frenzy for material.

A column that brought me as many letters as any other was dashed off in a moment of desperation. I had just disembarked from a long ocean voyage and discovered that one day of the weekly—and O, how weak!—series had been misplaced by packing. I had not slept in four nights. Was I sea sick?

The missing day had to be supplied in a half hour to be dispatched by messenger to a syndicate office. Fatigue was so great I nodded all through the effort. Yet when I saw it in print there was a purr of pride, and even now—six years later—there is an occasional letter about it.

This effort I already realize will have none of that spark of the sub-conscious. Indeed, right now I would like nothing better than to yank this out of the machine and call it a day. But there are mouths to feed, income taxes to pay, etc., so, like Pagliacci, I must carry on.

The wonder is—a few bars of "Hearts and Flowers," pianissimo, professor—that we columnists do not have more vacuous days like this. In any other calling, a fellow in almost any emergency can put it off until tomorrow and bulwark himself with a night of refreshing sleep.

But the sappy columnist, O, the pity of it, must carry on. And he's cockeyed telephone ringing madly doesn't help either. Some day I'll write a nasty piece about the telephone and then where will it be? A great blessing becomes a supreme curse, um-de-tum-ti-tiddle.

Did you ever stop to think what a grind columning is? A rookie you never even gave it a teeny-weeny thought. Every day the columnist is supposed to be merry and bright. With a single sweep he must try to strike the varying chords of emotion. If he doesn't a thousand and one jazz-ass will call him a bum. If he happens to hit the believe he hears no applause. There are no posies tossed over the footlights or salvo of "Bravos!" Come to think of it, maybe he is a bum. But he does try so hard. Ask anybody.

Well, here I am more than half way through the ordeal. If I had the ordinary job it would be 3 o'clock in the afternoon. In two hours and a half, a bell would ring and I would be off to the locker for my pearl gray hat and a swing across town to catch the 5:45 for suburbia. As it is, it is near midnight. Broadway is filling with merrymakers and here I sit. Does it give you a rough idea of what you have to put up with in this racket?

Even if I get through at 2 a. m., there is no place a simple homebody can go at that untimely hour. All I can do is walk with my dog along desolated streets, pass the usual banality with the neighborhood cop and be scared stiff that a bogey man will pop out of a dark place to chase me back to my hotel.

One more paragraph is needed and the good grey master will think it up for you right out of his own head. It may not be much of a paragraph, but I have a feeling you will all understand. I could fill it in with dots like these . . . But no such perfidy will be found if I can hold out. Fan hard, Judkins. No matter the cost, I will be true to my public. So with a heavy heart I struggle gasping to the very end, which fortunately enough is right now.
